LEGISLATIVE MAKESHIFTS.

This is a day of legislative makeshifts, when men undertake to regulate the laws of nature, the laws of commerce, the laws of supply and demand and to correct the imaginary inequalities or shortenings by legislative enactment. There are few of the ills that afflict the people or any class of the people that some crank don't think he can thus cure.

Crank Blair undertook to educate the growing generation of the American people of both colors, at a cost of about $70,000,000 when the truth is a majority of those whom he especially wanted educated wouldn't take an education if it was handed to them in a silver plate. They wouldn't know what to do with it if they had it.

Another statesman undertakes by subsidies to build ships to establish a commerce between countries where hostile legislation makes commerce impossible. He attempts the absurd feat of neutalizing one stupid species of legislation by the enactment of another, leaving both in operation and in a constant state of clash.

Another undertakes to adjust the the prejudices of race, born of instinct, by legislative remedies and becomes mad and disgusted to find after all his efforts that he has been trying to climb a greased pole head downwards.

Another undertakes by legislative tomfoolery to make a two-dollar sheep profitable on a hundred-dollar-an-acre farm, and fails to see the folly of it after over quarter of a century of trial.

Another thinks he can cure all the ills of which the farmers of the country complain by lending them money at a low rate of interest or money at no interest on their crops.

This latter is the so-called subtreasury plan which has been so much talked of lately, which Mr. Wheeler, of Alabama, wants considered in the House, and for which Senator Vance was scolded by the Progressive Farmer because he declined to support it.

This is the last makeshift in the interest of the farmer, and, in our judgment, the poorest that has been invented in forty years. In its sum and substance it is simply a scheme to have the government help the farmer to hold his crop for a certain period until the prices suit him better, by loaning him money to enable him to get along without marketing his crop. This would be at best but at temporary relief, because it does not provide for the removal of any of the causes to which the depression of the agricultural industry is due, and as one crop must be disposed of before the next comes on, the farmer would be compelled to sell to repay the government the money advanced, or throw the produce deposited on the hands of the government for sale. But even if it worked all right it would benefit only a limited number of farmers, and those the richest and best able to take care of themselves, while the poorest, who need assistance most, would get no benefit from it. In this respect it is not as good as the real estate plan, for by that the farmer who desired could borrow money from the government on his farm whether he lived in a county which produced $500,000 worth of products or not.

Its only result would be to hold the crops back for a time, during that time running the prices up perhaps, and later turning them loose all at once and running the prices down, a see-saw process by which the produce storer would lose as much or more in end than he had gained in the beginning.

How is the warehouse going to help him dispose of his surplus to better advantage when it does not in any way provide him with a market for that surplus, and while he is pratically limited by restrictive tariff legislation to the "home market" which has not the capacity to take what he has to offer?

The farming industry of the country is in the condition of a gorged stream which overflows its banks until the gorge is broken and the surplus waters find an outlet, so the restrictive tariff legislation stops the current of foreign trade and throws the surplus back on the hands of the farmer. Break this gorge and the surplus would find an outlet to the markets of the world. While the farmer continues to raise more than he can find a market for, this subtreasury plan to put him on his feet will be but a poor makeshift at best, of which he and everybody else will be fully convinced after it has had a brief trial. The trial would be brief, if its advocates succeeded in passing it through Congress, for there is not vitality enough in it to make it last long.

A thrifty chap in Bangor, Michigan, dodged the saloon license by fitting up his saloon on a scow and anchoring in the lake opposite the town. He refused to pay license tax because he wasn't doing business in any city, town or township. The Circuit Court decided against him, but the Supreme Court on appeal reversed the judgment of the lower Court, holding that the township boundary extended to the water line only, and that beyond that the township had no jurisdiction over "original" or any other sort of liquid packages.

Since the passage of the Dependent Pension bill a pension office has been opened in New Orleans, and the States says from the way it is daily crowded with colored ex-soldiers that State must have sent about a million to the front, instead of twenty-five thousand, who, tradition says, fought in the late "onpleasantness."

Mr. Porter's census subs gave Fort Smith, Arkansas, a population of 8,000. But the authorities were satisfied that this was a gross slight of the Smiths, had a recount made at the town's expense and triumphantly showed up with 12,000.

Serious Illness of Dr. Hoge.

Several telegrams were received yesterday from Saratoga, N. Y., in regard to the condition of Rev. P. H. Hoge, D. D. The first dispatch stated that his condition was critical; other dispatches reported a slight improvement; but the last telegram received at 5 o'clock, said that the indications were less favorable and that he was steadily growing worse.

Lsst night a meeting was held in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian Church, at which fervent prayers were offered for Dr. Hoge's restoration to health. Rev. Dr. Primrose, of St. Andrew's Church, conducted the services. It was announced that another prayer meeting would be held this evening.

A telegram received at 11 p. m., stated that Mr. Hoge's condition was unchanged, and that Dr. Grant had been called in for consultation.

County Commissioners' Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Commissioners of New Hanover county, held last Monday, the county treasurer's monthly report was submitted showing balances on hand as follows: To the credit of the educational fund, $9,777.85; to the credit of the general fund, $10,386.93.

The Register of Deeds reported $19 collected as fees on marriage licenses.

Wm. Hansley was appointed special surveyor to survey lands of B. A. Carter.

Liquor licenses were granted to Jno. M. Bremer, Front and Ann street; J. L. Bowers & Co., Fourth street, and J. O. Nixon, Nixon street.

It was ordered, that an entire new registration of the voters of the county be made for the election on the first Tuesday in November.

Crops in Bladen.

A correspondent of the STAR writing from Dawson's Landing, on the Cape Fear river, says:

Crops are very good in this community; watermelons are plentiful. Mr. J. H. Tatom had one which weighed 51 pounds.

Mr. Guy has a stalk of cotton with 200 forms and bolls on it. Swamps have been cleared and much new land brought into cultivation in the last two years. Our people are looking up.

The STAR is read and appreciated here.

The Very First of the Season.

An open boll of cotton was received at the STAR office yesterday, from Dr. H. McDonald, who writes that it was plucked August 1st, from the farm of John L. Phelps, near La Grange, N. C., and that many more open bolls can be seen in the field.

Cotton factors here are expecting the first bale of the new crop to come along about the 15th inst. Last year the first bale arrived on the 22d of August.

REV. SAM JONES.

The Evangelist will be Here in September.

Rev. Sam P. Jones telegraphed yesterday that he would commence his meetings here on Thursday, the 25th of September. The meetings will continue not less than ten days, and possibly two weeks. No definite arrangement has yet been made for the site for the tabernacle, but the committee in charge will have everything prepared in due season.

Drowning Accident.

A telephone message was sent to the City Hall last night stating that the mate of the schooner James Ponder, lying at the Carolina Central railroad wharf, had accidentally fallen overboard from the deck of the vessel and was drowned. Further particulars of the accident were not obtainable, nor the unfortunate man's name.

Death of Mr. A. Overbaugh.

Mr. A. Overbaugh died at his home in Fayetteville Monday afternoon. The deceased had been sick for a long time. He was about sixty years old, and was a well known hotel keeper, having been for years proprietor of the Overbaugh Hotel in Fayetteville.

Say, maiden, with the raven hair,
So beautiful and lithe and tall,
With eyes so bright and cheeks so fair.
Why let your teeth destroy it all?
For they are dark, and feel the want
Of a soft brush and SOZODONT. †

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT.

THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE GUARD.

Fine Weather--Arrival of Troops--Battalion Drill and Dress Parade --Rosters of Companies on the Grounds--The W. L. I's Bill of Fare.

The first installment of troops to arrive at Camp Latimer yesterday was the Rocky Mount Light Infantry (Co. D) and the Wilson Light Infantry (Co. F), who marched into and took their places in the regimental line at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A little later, or at about half-past 3 o'clock, the Wilmington Light Infantry (Co. C) marched in, reported and then took the place assigned them in the line. The following is the roster of officers and members present in each company:

CO. C—CAPTAIN W. R. KENAN, Commanding.

First Lieutenant—Du Va French.
Second Lieutenant—D. T. Cronly.
First Sergeant—Walker Taylor. Sergeants—E. W. Moore, R. L. Holmes, J. J. Smith, G. A. Huggins.
Color Sergeant—W. E. Perdew.
Corporals—P. Heinsberger, Jr., L. H. Burnett.
Privates—J. H. Bunting, W. C. Corbett, R. S. Collins, N. N. Davis, C. D. Foard, C. S. Grainger, P. E. Kiley, J. H. Lewis, R. R. Love, J. C. Morrison, W. R. Morrison, J. M. Murray, C. D. Myers, Jr., A. D. Myers, W. H. Northrop, W. P. Oldham, Jr., H. N. Parsley, G. H. Perdew, R. J. Price, J. A. Smith, J. R. Turrentine, Jr., W. Ulrich, J. L. Cantwell.

CO. D—CAPT. H. R. THORP, Commanding.

First Lieutenant—J. L. Arrington.
Second Lieutenant—J. D. Odom.
Junior Second Lieutenant—S. R. Hilliard.
First Sergeant—R. W. Thomas. Sergeants—E. L. Daughtridge, C. H. Harris, J. D. Bullock.
Corporals—W. B. Thorp, T. L. Conyers, E. W. Taylor, R. L. Skinner.
Privates—J. C. Arrington, J. N. Bullock, L. D. Bullock, W. B. Braswell, J. H. Collins, J. H. Cuthrell, M. B. Davis, F. Daughtridge, S. T. Fountain, J. K. Harper, Jr., W. J. Harper, A. Hart, C. Y. Harris, M. Joyner, W. S. Joyner, G. W. Killebrew, W. R. Lancaster, F. H. Lancaster, J. R. Moore, M. L. Pittman, J. H. Short, W. N. Smithson, J. B. Stroud, J. C. Tillery, J. L. Vaughn, A. Williford, C. W. Fulford, J. K. Harper, Z. Daughtridge.

CO. F.—CAPT. J. BRUTON, commanding.

First Lieutenant—W. P. Wooten.
Second Lieutenant—J W Crowell.
First Sergeant—D. Herring. Sergeants W. H. Davis, J. Lipscombs.
Corporals—R. Winstead, W. P. Snakenberg. J. T. McCraw.
Privates—J. J. Barefoot, C. D. Blount, W. B. Bridges, T. R. Brooks, T. L. Bryant, A. S. Copeland, J. D. Gold, W. G. Green, W. T. Harris, C. Harris, T. Hayes, F. J. Jordan, J. Speight, S. Walls, S. M. Warren, Jr., W. E. Warren, G. T. Williams, J. B. Woodard, E. K. Wright, C. Wooten.

Each company as it came into camp, in heavy marching order, moved with soldierly precision and presented a fine appearance. All the companies belonged to the Second Regiment, and they were an honor to the organization as well as to the State Guard.

Col. W. C. Jones, commanding the Regiment, with his Adjutant, W. N. Harriss, arrived with the first two Companies and they began at once to prepare for the duties before them, and in a short time after the arrival of the Wilmington Light Infantry, he had the battalion under arms and out for drill. His idea was that there was work to be done and that to make it as effectual as possible, there should be no delay. The men engaged cheerfully in the exercises, and in the marchings, wheelings and other evolutions, as well as in the manual of arms, made a very creditable display.

At half past 6 o'clock there was a dress parade of the three companies present, at the conclusion of which the men were dismissed for the day. Then, after a short time, they had their first camp supper, which they enjoyed with a relish.

It being the first day of the Encampment there were not many visitors present, especially of ladies, but that will be made up undoubtedly by the number who will be there to-day and to-morrow.

At about half-past 7 o'clock last evening the following companies arrived and went into camp, tired and hungry.

Co. B, (Lumber Bridge Light Infantry,) Captain J. D. Malloy.

Co. E (Maxton Guards)—Captain William Black.

Co. A (Sampson Light Infantry)—Captain W. A. Johnson.

Scotland Neck Rifles (no letter)—Captain G. S. White, temporarily attached to the Second Regiment.

At the same time and on the same train the following companies of the Fourth Regiment, Colonel J. G. Martin, arrived:

Co. A (Statesville)—Captain J. F. Armfield.

Co. B (Lincolnton)—Captain W. W. Motz.

Co. C (Waynesville)—Captain R. A. L. Hyatt.

Co. D (Monroe)—Captain W. C. Heath.

Co. F (Asheville)—Captain Duff Merrick.

Co. G (Concord)—Captain J. F. Reid.

Co. K (Dallas)—Captain W. F. Holland.

All the companies looked soldierly in heavy marching order. and the camp promises to be lively with fun and at the same time one of useful instruction in military tactics.

That the soldiers propose to live well while in camp may be safely inferred from a glimpse at the menu, gotten up for the Wilmington Light Infantry, subject, however, to change without notice!

Troops All in Camp and Work Fairly Under Way--Showery Weather--Roster of Companies.

Yesterday the work of the Encampment was fairly under way and the men fairly put to the duties of the soldier. The weather, during the forenoon, was showery, which somewhat interfered with the exercises, but the little dampness did not drown out the soldiery ardor that was everywhere manifest. The companies had all arrived the night before and the camp had a lively and truly military appearance.

The following is the roster of companies of the Second Regiment which arrived after our report of yesterday closed:

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The Conference on the Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill—The Anti-Lottery Bill Before the Senate Committee—Its Constitutionality Questioned—Report in the House Contested Election from the Second Florida District.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Aug 4.—The conferees on the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill were in session to-day about three hours, and made considerable progress toward an adjustment of the differences between the two Houses. The appropriation for a geological survey was not reached. It is said that at the last meeting of conferees on the Fortification Appropriation bill, the differences between Senators and Representatives were so marked that a disagreeing report was prepared, and has since been signed by the Senators. The Representatives, however, have thus far declined to sign it, and in consequence a feeling prevails that the conferees may yet come together on a compromise measure. Two of the principal points of variance are the items for the erection of a new wing of the Watervliet Gun Foundry, and construction of heavy ordnance by private firms.

The Senate Committee to-day took up the Anti-Lottery bill, prepared at the Post Office Department, and which was reported on favorably to the House last week. Some doubt is expressed as to the constitutional right of Congress to interfere with matter entrusted to the mails, and the bill was referred to a sub-committee, consisting of Senators Sawyer, Mitchell, and Reagan, for examination and report.

The name of Stephen M. Eaton, to be postmaster at New Orleans, will be favorably reported from committee.

WASHINGTON, August 4.—The majority report of the House Committee on Elections in the contested case of Goodrich vs. Bullock, from the 2d Florida district, was to-day submitted to the House by Chairman Rowell. The report discusses allegations concerning the alleged misconduct and alleged practices of the officers of election in obstructing colored voters. The committee decided that Goodrich is entitled to the seat, and the usual resolution in contested cases is appended setting forth this fact.

WASHINGTON, August 5.—It took just ten minutes this morning for the House Committee on Elections to adopt the report drawn up by Mr. Lacey, declaring that Representative Breckinridge was not elected from the second district of Arkansas. This would have been done last week, but the Democratic members did not attend the called meetings, and no quorum was obtained. By means of telegraphic notices, however, a full attendance of Republican members was obtained this morning, and the report was adopted with but a single dissenting vote against it, that of Representative Maish, the only Democrat present.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—The final meeting of the conferees on the Land Grant Forfeiture bill, for the purpose of signing their report, which was expected to have been held several days ago, was postponed at the request of the Alabama Senators. They have received a request from parties interested in the Mobile and Girard railroad, a portion of whose grant is declared forfeited by the bill, for an opportunity to lay before the conferees some additional information respect that grant. The conferees consented to delay final action until that could be presented, and were assured that the gentlemen who are in possession of it will be here to-morrow.

WHOLESALE POISONING.

A Colored Preacher in Georgia and his Wife Charged with Putting Rat's-bane in the Food of a Colored Family of Ten Persons, Three of Whom are Dead.

ATLANTA, GA., August 3.—The attempt of a colored preacher, named W. H. Boone, in Gordon county, to kill by poison a family of ten persons, three of his victims being now dead, has created intense excitement, and the prisoner and his wife are carefully guarded in jail. He put rat poison in the food of a colored family named Talley. Boone puts the crime on his wife, saying she was jealous of Mrs. Talley's affection for him. The wife puts it on her husband, saying he sought to obtain possession of Talley's crop. The other victims are not yet out of danger.

KENTUCKY.

General Election—Indications of a Sweeping Democratic Victory.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LOUISVILLE, August 4.—A general election is progressing quietly throughout Kentucky to-day. The only office to be filled by the choice of the voters of the entire State is the Clerkship of the Court of Appeals. Woodford Longmoore, Democrat, for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, bids fair to have a larger majority than the Democratic ticket received at the last election. Gov. Buckner came from Clifton Springs, N. Y., to his home in Hart county especially to vote. A Judge for the Court of Appeals will be elected from the third district, and three Judges of Superiour Courts will be chosen. Delegates to the first constitutional convention since 1849 will be chosen.

HAPPY ALABAMA.

Democrats Carry the State Election—Encouraging Prospects.

MONTGOMERY, August 4.—The election in Alabama to-day for Governor and other State officers and members of the Legislature passed off quietly. Specials from all portions of the State indicate a sweeping Democratic majority. The Legislature will contain but few Independents or Republicans.

Reports of crop condition to the Commissioner of Agriculture are: Cotton, 98 per cent. of full crop; corn, an average of 93 per cent. compared with two years, and 89 per cent. compared with last year.

— Rockingham Spirit of the South: There are ten prisoners confined in the county jail at present—five white and five colored. —— The population of Rockingham is only a little over 1,100. What has gone with the other 900 we heard was here? —— Governor Fowle has appointed Mr. James T. LeGrand, of this county, a delegate to the National Farmers' Convention at Council Bluff, Iowa, which meets August the 26th to 29th. ——That dare-devil fellow Leveston was captured last Saturday morning at the Adams bar-room, on the South Carolina line, by Deputy Cameron, and he is now lounging in jail here. —— On last Saturday, the 26th instant Mr. John W. Thomas, died at his residence near Green Lake church, in this township. Mr. Thomas was 64 years old at his death. —— Mack West, a young colored man, hailing from Sumpter, S. C., was lodged in jail on Wednesday last, charged with breaking into a shanty occupied by the brick yard hands of Mr. D. B. Brown, at Hamlet, and taking therefrom a lot of provisions and shoes belonging to the hands. He had on his person when arrested two pistols, a razor and a large bunch of keys. He is supposed to be the same chap that has been breaking into freight cars at Hamlet recently.

WILLIAM KEMMLER.

HIS EXECUTION BY ELECTRICITY IN AUBURN PRISON.

All Over at an Early Hour in the Morning—Between One Thousand and Two Thousand Volts Applied—Two Currents Necessary to Produce Death—The Incidents of the Day and Last Words of the Condemned Man.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

AUBURN, N. Y., August 6.—At 5 o'clock this morning landlord Gregory, of the Osborne House, holding in one hand a list of room numbers, stood in his office tapping the push buttons that rang the electric fire bell in each of the rooms indicated upon his list. In them were the sleeping persons who had been summoned by the prison warden to witness the death of the murderer, William Kemmler, by electricity. Almost simultaneously porters were heavily thumping at the rooms corresponding to the numbers on the list. There was to be no mistake about the efficacy of summons, and there was not. The doctors and laymen hurriedly dressed, and while they did so the sun was laying its bars of light level over the city of Auburn. The sky was cloudless, the air cool, and a slight breeze swayed the tree tops. The men of the press had been vigilant, and they too came trooping from their rooms to join the others at coffee and rolls before going to the prison. In the pocket of each guest of the State was a card bearing an order of admission to the prison, and before retiring each had been privately warned to present himself at the prison gate not later than 6 o'clock this morning. Some were there at the hour named, others were not, and warden Durston, under evident nervous tension, was pacing the halls and peering often and anxiously down to the big iron gate at the entrance, impatient of the delay.

The stated hour had expired and fifteen minutes more before Dr. Spitzka arrived with a case of instruments in hand. Doctors Shrady and Jenkins, of New York, were yet missing. They were yet at the hotel table.

At 7 o'clock the twelve hundred convicts would be marched out from the mess room to the shops, and then the belting to operate the dynamo away down in the loft of the shop could not be run on without the prisoners knowing that Kemmler was about to die. No one could tell what spirit might be developed by the men in striped clothes, if such knowledge was forced upon them, and the warden therefore grew momentarily more impatient. He would have his execution all over, if possible, before the men were astir in the shops.

"Gentlemen, I will not wait any longer for those who are not here," he exclaimed at length, after peering for the last time down to the iron gate. "This affair cannot be made subject to personal convenience, and I think it unfair to me that I should have been kept waiting until this hour."

The big clock in the main hall then marked twenty-three minutes after six o'clock, and only thirty-seven minutes were left in which to take Kemmler's life before the convicts should be released to work. Acquiescing, and silently, those awaiting in the cool, breezy hall gathered about the warden, who led the way to the rear hall, where the guard with the great key stood to open and close the the door to the basement region of the prison.

The huge iron bolted barrier swung back, the warden led the way, and the silent party descended the iron stairway to the stone-floored hall, where the fatal apparatus and its first subject were waiting. The way lay through the low doorway in the massive basement wall into a room dimly lighted as yet by early sunrise. In the semi-gloom the massive chair of death seemed to loom out of the shadows a little distance from the entrance. As each guest passed it he might have noted that every strap and every buckle to biud the victim was carefully placed, to avoid all possible delay. The electrode for the head hung in its place like a sprinkler disc for a shower-bath. The chairs and benches stood about the room in a semi-circle, and they formed a horse-shoe, in whose opening stood the heavy chair with its dangling straps and buckles. Over one window toward the east a heavy shade was drawn, while through the bars in the other window the morning air came cool and fresh through the Virginia creepers that swept the iron with a soft rustling touch. Suddenly the room was lighted from within. The warden had turned up a low burning flame at one of the blackened gas burners on an ancient chandelier.

In his final arrangements the warden had placed all of the electrical apparatus in the ante-room, the wires being run over the casement to the death chamber. This ante-room the warden kept carefully shut, being opened only when he or some helper passed hastily in or out. In charge there were three men whom the warden refused to name. The purpose of the late change of the electrical bolt meter and the switches to another room became apparent. Those who should see Kemmler were never to know who had pushed the switch to send the death bolt to Kemmler's vitals.

While the final adjustments were being made Doctors Shrady and Jenkins entered, and the witnesses were all within the room.

In the meantime Kemmler, in his cell, was being prepared for the ending of his life. He had gone peacefully to sleep early in the night, and had slept soundly, and was snoring until 5 o'clock, when he was awakened by one of his guards, Pastor Houghton, who has attended Kemmler, as also prison chaplain Yates, went with him. They read to him from the Bible and he prayed with them. He dressed himself without aid in a suit of gray mixed goods. About his neck he buttoned a turned down collar
