In the trenches before Sebastopol he was knocked down by a solid shot striking near him, and rendered senseless, while those about him were instantly killed. Some of the most startling disclosures ever made in relation to any of the seemingly endless litigation over A. T. Stewart's millions are promised in relation to the suit brought by the Irish claimants to recover their alleged portion of the dead man's fortune. These disclosures were summed up yesterday in the announcement that a syndicate, composed of men in New York city and Boston, has been formed for the purpose of pushing the claims of the Irish claimants, and that the members of the syndicate will bear all the expenses of the litigation merely as a speculation, hoping to be recompensed should the contest be successful. Further, it was said that the syndicate has been selling stock at the rate of $1,500 for every $50,000 that may be recovered if the will is broken. That is for every $1,500 put up by the speculators $50,000 will come back to them if the will is

A GREAT GATHERING AT FREDER-ICKSBURG, VA.

Memorial Day Celebration-A Monument to the Dead of the Confederacy Unveiled-The Procession-Address by Gen. Bradley T. Johnson, Etc.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star FREDERICKSBURG, June 10 .- The town is profusely decorated to-day with bunting and Confederate and National flags in honor of Memorial Day and the unveiling of the Contederate statue. Thousands of visitors are in attendance, including a number of Confederate Camps.

About 3 oclock the line of procession was formed and marched through the principal streets to the cemetery, where 8,000 Confederates are buried, amid cheers from the throng which lined the

The procession, which was under the direction of Grand Commander Wm. P. Smith, and marshals, comprised carriages containing members of the Ladies Memorial Association and distinguished guests, bands of music, uniformed Confederate veterans, sons of veterans, the Fire Department and civic organiza-

Services at the cemetery were opened with prayer by Rev. I. W. Couler, of the Methodist Church, and then Gen. Bradley T. Johnson, orator of the day, delivered the unveiling address, which was in part as follows:

Fellow Confederates, men and women: For the last twenty years I have been observing with growing wonder the phenomenon of feeling towards the actors on the Confederate side. It is a fact, and a wonderful fact, that the pathos sentiment and reverence of the war between the States is concentrated and crystalized about the cause of the Confederacy. In the North to-day no name thrills human hearts like that Lee; no name electrifies people like that of Stonewall Jackson; no flag flashes, no sabre glistens, like that of Stuart; neither Grant nor Sherman, nor Sheridan-great and successful soldiers of the victorious side-have left such an impression on the imagination or hearts of the people as have the leaders of the Confederates, who died in battle or yielded to overwhelming force when further resistance would have been criminal. I do not mean to intimate, for I do not believe, that the North has changed its opinion as to the wisdom of our course. They thought then, and they think now, it was foolish to break up the Union, because, first, the Union was profitable; and second, because it was impossible before the overwhelming force for us to succeed. I do say that the idea is clearly pressing it-self upon the Northern mind that we tried to avoid war and did not want war, but that it was brought on, waged and continued for the purpose of keepfrom a living dog to the right arm ing a faction in power, and enabling the controllers of that faction to make profit out of it. He declared that the Confederate soldiers were the greatest Gen. Johnson then paid a warm tribute to the Confederate soldiers, and to the women of the South. Occasionally, but she has since held his misfortune at having been a Yankee over his head and has made a better man and a better soldier of him every time." The statue was then unveiled by inches of the sciatic nerve from the Capt. John W. Barney. It is a bronze dog's hip. Quickly taking up the statue of a Confederate soldier, nine and a half feet high. He is represented as standing at "parade rest," with musket in hand and with blanket thrown over the left shoulder. A haversack swings from the same side, while from the right side swings a canteen and bayonet and scabbard. On his head rests the familiar slouch hat. The corner-stone of the monument, the apex of which is now crowned by the Confederate statue, was laid June 4, 1874, by Fredericksburg Lodge No. 4, A. F. and A. M., and the monument was completed and unveiled on Memorial Day, Thursday June 9th, with imposing and elaborate exercises. The monument was erected by the Ladies' Memorial Association, and the stone was taken from the farm of Mrs. Dowman, in this county. It is of gray granite and stands on a mound five feet and six inches high. There is a column on each corner of red granite and with gray granite and plynth base. Fatal Cases of the Disease at Atchinson

THE SOUTHERN EXPOSITION

An Invitation Extended to President Harrison to be Present. By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, June 10 .- A delegation of about seventy persons, representing all the Southern States, waited on President Harrison this morning and invited him to attend the Exposition to be held at Raleigh, N. C., in October and November next. The party was headed by Senator Ransom, of N. C., and Mr. Patrick Walsh, of Augusta, Ga., and included Mayor Badger, of Raleigh; Col. A. B. Andrews, of Richmond; Major R. S. Tucker, Col. Burgwyn, and representatives of nearly all the leading Southern cities. Governor Holt, of North Carolina, intended to be with the party, but was not able to come. The President received them in the Cabinet room. Senator Ransom made an eloquent address, inviting the President to Raleigh, and assuring him of a warm and hospitable welcome.

The President, in reply, thanked them for the cordiality and impressiveness of their invitation, and said it was very gratifying to him to teel that they had come so far for such a purpose. Their invitation called for serious consideration on his part, but he could not now tell what he would be able to do at the time of the Exposition. He said he knew he would be received with kindness, as he had recently had conclusive evidence on that point. He regretted that it was not his privilege to pass through North Carolina on his recent trip. He continued, "No; I cannot promise at this time. Indeed, I am very chary about promises. Public men have been severely criticised for making promises they could not perform, and have made it a strict rule not to make a promise. There is too much doubt about the future state of public business for me to anticipate what I may be able to do. You will bear in mind that October and November are apt to be busy times with the President in conection with the assembling of Congress, and in the discharge of my constitutional duty I must try to enlighten Congress as to the affairs of the country, so you see it will not be easy for me to get away in the Fall. I am in full sympathy with every movement for the display of our magnificent development and material prosperity in the arts and sciences. I will bear your invitation in mind and will try to arrange my affairs so as to accept it. The President's remarks were loudly applauded. On another tobacco leaf of the same size is the following: "To visit them at the capital city of the 'Old North State' during the Southern Exposition, October and November, 1891." Above and on each side of both leaves are bunches of rice grown in North Carolina, below are bolls of open cotton, representing agricultural products. THE COTTON CROP.

Estimate of the Department of Agriculthre of Acreage Planted and Condition on the 1st of June.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. WASHINGTON, June 10.-The report of the statistician of the Department of Agriculture for June makes the acreage in cotton 97.7 per cent. of the area of 1890, and the average condition 85, The reduction in area is attributed in some districts to concerted contraction on account of low prices, but it is evident that it is mainly due to unfavorable conditions for planting and germi-nation. The record of planting in the May report is quite accurately a history of the crop to the present time. Planting was delayed by early rains, droughts in the latter half of April, followed by continued drought in May. Germination arrested, replanting active, defective stands corrected, are features of the record frequently and almost universally reported. These conditions were tlements; on the North side, sabies; on less general and controlling in Texas the East, a cannon, and the words than in other States. Arears as compared with those of last year are given. as follows: Virginia 96, North Carolina 94, South Carolina 96, Georgia 95, Florida 99, Alabama 96 Mississippi 95, Louisana 96, Texas 105, Arkansas 96, Tennessee 95. The general condition is the lowest for June since 1874, though it is only a fraction lower than that of 1883 and 1889; the latter a year of good yield through favorable later conditions.

State average of condition are: Virginia 78, North Carolina 75, South Carolina 80, Georgia 80, Florida 90, Alabama 80, Mississippi 88, Louisana 88, Texas 91, Arkansas 89, Tennessee 73.

The temperature of May was quite too low for cotton, cool nights checking germination and retarding growth. Of course these conditions make crops late stricken. Dr. King says that there is in development in some places—a few no doubt that the disease was transmit- days in some, in others a week or two later than in seasons of early development. There is frequent mention of bad stands, but constant replanting will reduce the vacancies to a minimum. Cultivation is necessarily late and fields are grassy, with the usual variation resulting from differences in soil, amount of replanting and relative promptness and efficiency of plantation managers.

Baby Afflicted with Bad Sores and Eruptions, No Relief. Permanently

During the summer of 1889 mv eighteen months' old infant was so afflicted with eruptions that ordinary domestic remedies failed to give any relief. On his hips would often appear the seeming track of a little wire-like worm, and on other parts of his body had sores cyme and remained till I procured the Curtcura Remedies. For some time I used the soap and salve without a blood medicine, but they did not do so well as when all were used together. It has now been nearly a year since the eruption was healed, and I very much feared it would return with the warm weather of this year, but the summer is passed and not one sore has appeared on him.

Cured by the Cuticura.

I had three of the best physicians in Paducah, and they did me no good. I used your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and they have cured me sound and well. I was sore from my waist down with eczema. They have cured me with no sign of return. I owe my life to CUTICURA, for without a doubt, I would have been in my grave had it not been for your remedies. Allow me to return my sincerest thanks.
