The Man Proves to Be a Believer in Short Hours and Lives Up to His Belief. Chicago Herald. Senator Jones gives considerable money to the needy, but he can't be fooled. He had been talking politics in the Richelieu for a couple of hours yesterday afternoon and started out for a walk. As he reached the street a professional the most conspicuous of all." beggar, approaching with bowed head, said: "Please, sir, help a deserving cause. I don't care for money; work is what I'm after. I've eaten nothing since yesterday, but would take work now in prefence to money." "You would never get so low as to work, would you?" asked the Senator. "A chance is all I ask, sir. I've been to every store in Chicago and found nothing. "What would you do?"

"Anything that's honest, sir. "You may be a true bill after all, and I'll give you a chance. I'll give you 50 cents an hour to work for

"Thank you, sir, for saving my lite. I'll work two days for that." Senator Jones told the fellow to walk along and he would find him something to do. The rich politician from Nevada does not give money to street-beggars, but makes them work for whatever he chooses to give them. He walked with his tattered old tramp up Michigan avenue, and it was a funny sight. Pedestrians turned around to see the fine-looking companion. Near Harrison street workmen were moving a quantity of old timber. Senator Jones asked the foreman if he wanted to hire a new man. When he answered no, the Senator said he would pay the man. All he wanted was a chance to have the man work and earn his

. Under these circumstances the foreman was glad to get a new man for nothing, and the fellow pitched in to work like a hero, stopping only now and then to thank his benefactor for saving his life. The man had worked about five minutes when a gaudy tally-ho came sailing down the boulevard. The Senator stepped aside to look at the gay coach, and when his back was turned the tramp jumped the fence and ran down Michigan avenue for dear life. No man ever escaped from work so rapidly as he, and the Senator laughed very heartily as he realized that he was yet to be fooled by tramps who are dying to go to work.

Telling the story afterward Senator Jones remarked that the greatest tramp in Nevada was Scotty. "He has never worked a day in his life,' said Mr. Jones, "but he is so clever that every one helps him. When I was out west last time he ran across me and I asked about his brother.' "'Don't mention his name to me, implored Scotty, as the tears sneaked down his cheeks. "Has he turned out badly?"

His Luck was at an End When He Held That Hand. Detroit Free Press.

I was watching a game of poker once at Helena, Mont. The players were a gambler (whom I knew slightly, who bore the soubriquet of "Lucky Bill,") and two miners. Suddenly, after the hands were dealt and the players had "chipped in" and drawn cards, Lucky Bill, with perfect calmness and not so much as the shadow of a change in the expression of his face, laid his cards on the table, took a note-book from his pocket and deliberately wrote a few words. Then he tore out the leat and handed it to me. "Look at that when you get home to-night."

His voice was steady, and did not betray a particle of excitement. I thrust the paper aimlessly into my pocket and gave the matter hardly a second of thought.

The play progressed. Lucky Bill's face was unyielding as a stone and entirely unexpressive. He noticed everything, however, and his vigilant eye did not miss the slightest move on the part of the other players. He was a typical gambler and one of the most successful of his guild. Hence his sobriquet. At last there was an altercation the discussion of 1892 as it has ever been before. It is simply the question: Who pays the freight, or rather the taxes, and who receives the benefits? For a thousand years the question has been discussed, and for a thousand years more it will continue to be. Occasionally, as in the past, wars will come to divert attention and change conditions; but when a war is over the question springs again to the front and remains there till another war displaces it. Whatever else may become an issue in '92 the tariff will be

BACCARAT.

The Game Which Sir Wm. Gordon Cum

ming Played Crooked.

Although the game of baccara, or baccarat, has been introduced in this country in a modified form, it is comparatively unknown here. It is played with the ordinary playing cards, and in very simple in its details and freer from complications than most games at cards. Any number of players may participate, and as many packs of cards may be increased to correspond with the number of players. One member of the party is selected to act as banker.

He deals out the cards from a box similar to a cigar box, after they have been shuffled. The face cards each count ten, and the others according to the number of their spots.

After the bets have been made the banker deals two cards to each of the players, including himself, but Ligafter the first distribution of two cards to each, any player has a "natural"-that is, a sum making 9, or next in value, 19-he declares it wins and the banker pays all who hold superior hands to his own, and claims from those holding inferior hands. The players stake their money separately, there being, in fact, as many separate games in progress as there are players, and the spectators may wager their money on any of them, all of which must be accepted by the banker in

The great difficulty to an ordinarly prudent baccarat player is to rat affair that are worth considering.

Sir. William is alleged to have resorted to a form of cheating known as "poussette"—that is, adding to the stake when the banker has lost and decreasing it when he has won.

Now, had the table been better conducted, it would have been impossibie for this to have occurred. Prior to the banker making a start he states the amount in the bank-for example, £50. Any one sitting down at the table has the right to call the whole of the bank, selecting the left or the right on which to pick up the cards. If the bank is not called, then the banker proceeds to deal to £25 a side, or as much of it as may be "marked" or called-the former meaning that the money is placed on the table: the latter, that the banker has accepted the bet without the money being staked.

The latter course, however, is quite the exception, the ready coin being invariably planked. Previous to the banker dealing the cards it is the duty of two croupiers, one on the right and the other on the left, to count up the stakes deposited on either side, and then make up the bank. Thus the banker knows to the smallest coin the exact amount of his liabilities. Had the game been properly played at Tranby Croft no one attempting the "poussette" would have stood an earthly chance of either increasing or decreasing

I have been a Dyspeptic for the past fifteen ym and lately have suffered with Derangement of myli nary Organs, evidenced by great difficulty in wish the urine. About six months ago I commenced b use of the Otterburn Lithia and Magnesia Span Water, and since that time there has been marked gradual improvement in my entire condition and m of health. My digestion is better than it has been five or six years, and the urinary trouble is entirily lieved, and has been for the past two months,
