THE SOUTH HAMPERED.

When the obstacles against which the South has had to contend are considered the progress which it has made in industrial developement within the past twenty years is marvellous. While in some respects it resembles other sections it differs in some from other sections, and whilst it may be to its advantage to differ in some, it is also to its disadvantage to differ in others. As far as industrial developement goes it is to its disadvantage that it is so sparsely populated and that some of the sections which naturally present the greatest advantages for industrial enterprises are among the most sparsely settled sections. Convenient and cheap transportation is one of the requisites to success in industrial operations in these days of business rivalry and keen competition. Population and production are necessary to sustain systems of transportation of whatever character they may be. This is one of the obstacles against which the South has had to contend -want of sufficient transportationan obstacle which is not encountered to the same extent in any other section of the country.

The reason of th rapid development of the West was its many lines of railway, which penetrated the settled sections and helped to people the unsettled. The Middle and Eastern States are also densely populated compared with this section. They have good transportation facilities, and consequently it is much easier for them to successfully establish such industries as they have the resources for, because they have not only the population and the railroads but money in abundance, the lack of which the South has felt and still feels even more than it does the lack of transportation. If we want to build a railroad or engage in any other enterprise that requires a large amount of money we have to go North to negotiate a loan, and that's the way the most our railroads that have been constructed since the war have been built.

One of the stereotyped phrases which we hear repeated every day is "the South needs capital," which is as true as it is old. If the South had capital, all that could be judicially used in the development of its resources, or the building up of its industries, and in the construction of highways for the transportation of its products, this section would be humming with activity and its industries would be doubled or trebled presence. within the next ten years.

How can that capital be secured? This is the problem. There are but three ways; one by interesting capitalists of other sections in the industrial potentialities of this section. This has been done to some extent and will be done still more in the future. This has helped some in the past and will help in the future. Another is by a large increase of the volume of currency by the coinage of silver. There is such a decided opposition to this by an element. which is potent enough to make its power felt that there is little prospect of deriving any benefit in that same; is perfectly pure; entirely whole-some; free from substances foreign to way. Another is in the establishway. Another is in the establish-ment of State banks, which would plished by scientific process.

enable our people to deal upon their own credit and to utilize property which they have as a basis of currency to meet the demands of the times. There is but one thing to prevent this, and that is the prohibitory tax on the circulation of State banks of issue. If this tax were repealed there isn't a State in the South which would not have banks enough to supply all the money for which there might be a demand, in connection with the national banks and the money issued by the Government. Thus millions upon millions of dollars worth of property could be utilized as basis for bank ing capital, which is now practically useless for such a purpose.

In that event, if this prohibitory ax were removed and the State banks that would be established were n operation there would no longer be a dearth of money in this section and thousands of industries would spring into existence. Capital would flow in from other sections to be invested in these banks, and as it would be to their interest to encourage legitimate enterpises that year. their might be more use for their money they would encourage them and help them along, our towns and cities would improve and industrial establishments be multiplied, there would be work for hands that want work, new railroads would be built, short lines as feeders to longer ines and long lines where they might be needed. Our waterpowers would be utilized more than they are and factories built to give employment to people of sections where now there are no factories, the streets of our cities and our country roads would be improved, our farms improved, for our farmers could then borrow the money they might find would have such increased business tive capacity. These are some of the results which would follow the increase of capital which would come from the establishment of State banks, which is now prevented by this unjust and We thank those of our subscribers | arbitrary State bank tax. # COTTON SEED OIL.

Its Product and Uses-Prejudice Against It in this Country-Three American Cities Take Nearly One-haif the Yield. It is about forty years since cotton seed oil first appeared upon the commercial markets. After several partial successes, says the New York Journal of Commerce, its manufacture had fairly started when the war materially interrupted its development. Just after the war, however, the production increased very rapidly, until now it reaches considerably over a million barrels per year. In 1892 there were crushed some 1,250,-000 tons of cotton seed, from which

It is interesting to note the channels of consumption for the large and increasing industry. It is estimated that one-half of it is used for making lard. At Chicago, 800,000 barrels were used, and at St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha about 300,000.

were obtained about 1,000,000 barrels of

There are 200,000 to 300,000 barrels exported to Rotterdam for use in butter. 50,000 to 100,000 barrels are used by soap makers for toilet soaps, and 20,000 barrels go to the coast of Maine to pack sardines in. Considerable quantities are also exported to Marseilles, Trieste and many points on the Mediterranean coast for mixing with olive oil. There is a strong prejudice against cotton-seed oil for food purposes in this country, but it is possible that in time his may be overcome. Already in certain sections it is growing in favor, noticeably in Texas and the New England States, where the oil in its pure state is used for cooking, and is recommended by physicians as a remedy for indigestion. There is no doubt but that there is a general growing demand for the oil for table use and culinary purposes. Its introduction for these uses is only of recent date. It has undoubtedly come to stay, and the time may not be far distant when it will equal, if not excel, its competitors in popularity. It is already extensively used in paints, ossessing in a degree the properties of inseed oil. It is a chemical possibility to obtain from cotton seed oil linseed oil; but as yet no practical method has been devised. To the paint and varnish manufacturers this is a very important possibility, and one to the solution of which they are looking forward. As an adulterant in olive oil, for which very large quantities are used it is difficult to detect, owing to a special refining process it undergoes which conceals its

There was a good attendance at the sale, but only one bid was made, and that was by Mr. Junius Davis, receiver of the Bank of New Hanover, to protect the interests of the bank. His bid was $7,500.

At 12 o'clock noon, the steamboats Wilmington and Clarence, property of the Wilmington and Southport Steamboat Company, were sold by auction by Mr. Sol. C. Weill, commissioner, at the foot of Market street. The steamer Wilmington was first put up and Mr. Junius Davis, as receiver of the Bank of New Hanover, started the sale with a bid of $9,000. Capt. Jno. W. Harper, of this city, and Mr. Gibson, of Savannah, Ga., then entered the lists, and after some spirited bidding the Wilmington was knocked down by the auctioneer to Capt. Harper at his final bid of $14,000. The result of the sale as received by the spectators with hearty cheer.

The steamboat Clarence was then put up, and Mr. Davis, for the bank, put in a bid for $3,500. No other bid was made, and the sale was closed.

POSTAL FORGERIES.

Perpetrated by a Negro Postmaster and His White Accomplice-Many Fraudulent Money Orders and Postal Notes

There is great commotion in postal circles just now over the forgeries and frauds perpetrated by the negro Henry C. Tindal, late postmaster at Packsville,

S. C., and his white accomplice. Tindal was arrested for robbing and burning the postoffice there, and embezzlement of money orders and postal funds and forgery of money orders and postal notes, and was committed to jail at Sumter, S. C., in default of $1,000 bond. The Charleston News and Courier says the number of the first money order issued by J. M. Bradham, the new postmaster at Packsville, was 101, and the number of the first postal note issued by him was 201. All money orders and postal notes from Packsville bearing lower numbers than these, and having the name of J. M. Bradham written thereon, are forgeries. Packsville money orders from No. 75 to 100 and posta notes from No. 126 to 200 are missing. The negro is already in jail at Sumter James H. Brunson, alias Julius Brunson, is Tindal's accomplice. He has passed some of the money orders already, and the department therefore thinks he has all that are missing. Brunson "run with" the negro constantly and it is believed that he, 'hearing of Tindal's arrest, is doing his best to keep out of the way. A man answering to the description ot Brunson tried at Florence to pass orde: No. 84 from Packsville, payable to John A. Barnes, and supposed to have been sent by John R. McCall. This order was for $66.80, and was a palpable

Every effort is being made to apprehend Brunson, and, considering the liberal rewards generally given by the Goyernment in such cases, it is probable that United States Commissioner S. M. Norris, of Sumter, or Inspector F. D. Peer, in Charleston, will soon have informa tion that he has been captured.

esful Experiments With Permanganate of Potash as an Antidote for Morphine Poisoning. Dr. William Moor, a New York physician, has discovered that the permanganate of potash is a certain antidote for morphine poisoning, and that if administered in any reasonable time, it will counteract the effects of any opium salts. A few days ago he demonstrated his discovery before the members of the West Side German Clinic, by experimenting on himself. In spite of the remonstrances of some of the physicians present, few of whom believed in his discovery, and some of whom left the room rather than see him "commit suicide," he swallowed three grains of morphine, a certainly fatal dose in his case, as he is especially sensitive to the action of narcotics, and afterwards swallowed a dose of his newfound antidote. No evil results followed at all, and Dr. Moor felt as well and acted as bright as though he had not W. Norwood was chosen President, Mr. taken the morphine. He found that when morphine was mixed with other things, as would be the case in the stomach after it had been swallowed, the permanganate will select and destroy the poison before affecting any of the other components of the mass. Dr. Moor says that where other preparations of opium besides sulphate of morphia has been taken, the antidote will act more quickly and efficaciously on being acidulated with one part in five of vinegar. Further and later experiments on the same line with rabbits were successful and go still further to strengthen the belief that Dr. Moor has really discovered a remedy of great value to humanity.

The Department of State has received the first official information of the operations of the British Naval forces at Bluefields, near the mouth of the Nicaragua Canal. It came in the shape of a dispatch from United States Minister Baker at Managua. He says that the United States Consul at San Juan Del Norte, Mr. Braida, 'telegraphs him that soldiers from the British warship Cleopatra have been landed at Bluefields, and strongly urges that the United States Naval vessel be sent there at once.

There is no explanation in the Minister's despatch of the reason for the landing of British forces. The preceding reports of Consul Braida show that when the Nicaraguan Government forces occupied Bluefields, the reigning Mosquito chief appealed to the British Consul at San Juan Del Norte for protection, and the question of interest at this stage of affairs is whether the British troops have been landed to afford that protection to the Mosquitos or whether the landing was made to protect the British citizens only.

The resolution of inquiry concerning the British at Bluefield, which was introduced in the Senate by Senator Morgan to day, was the result of the discussion of the subject by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at its meeting this morning. There is an apprehension in the minds of Senators that the English Government is making an effort to obtain a footing on the eastern coast of the Isthmus, in violation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and the action of the committee is directed to the end of securing whatever information the State Department may have upon the subject. Senator Morgan is especially jealous of any movement on the part of a foreign Government which might effect the Nicaragua Canal, and probably nothing could happen to give him greater concern than for England to secure a foothold in that section.

Senator Morgan said in reply to a question as to the purpose of the resolution that he had no information upon the subject except such as he had obtained from the newspapers in which he had seen a statement that the British were at Bluefields for the purpose of interfering with the sovereignty of Micaragua over the Mosquito coast.

"Do you suppose," was asked, "that the fact that the Kearsarge was headed in that direction had any significance?' "What was she going there for?" was his response. "Of course," he added, "I don't know that such was the case, but i looks like it.'

The Democratic members of the Fi nance Committee repaired to the committee room as soon as the skirmish over the Bland bill was ended and applied themselves to the consideration of the Tariff bill with redoubled energy. Mr. Voorhees left at 5 o'clock, but Messrs. Vest, Jones. McPherson and Harriss remained and ordered their dinner sent to the committee room, it being their intention to remain in session to-night so long as might come necessary to complete the bill and send it to the printing office. At the same time orders were sent to the Government Printing Office to have a force of men on hand ready to take the copy as soon as it was sent and have the bill printed in time to lay before the committee at eleven o'clock to-morrow morning. Having laid all plans for the final stages of the bill, the committee renewed their attack upon the disputed schedules. One of the members, who was seen for a moment, intimated that the bill would, he thought, when it reached the public, be found to contain some very great surprises. Heavy cuts have been made in many of the schedules of the Wilson bill, and, if the policy of the committee is carried out as indicated, the amount of revenue yielded by the Senate bill will be less based upon present importations, and omitting the duty on sugar, than that figured upon by the Commit tee on Ways and Means in the House It is uneerstood that this afternoon some attention was given to the metal schedule in the belief that iron

Mrs. Lucinda - Durham Globe: Glenn, widow of the late E. Walker Glenn, died suddenly Saturday night, at her residence on Peabody street. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause of her death.

- Yanceyville News: Oliver Stallings, tramp printer and professional drunkard, was committed to jail here last Wednesday for the theft of a blanket from Capt. S. D. Crowder, who had the kindness to lend it to him the night be-lore, and which said Stallings abstracted and pawned next morning for fifteen cents to buy whiskey with.

- Goidsboro Argus: Mr. Jno. W. Isler, the noted chicken raiser of this county, who is conducting the business on an extensive and, we are glad to say profitable scale, was in the city yesterday making some shipments of eggs to the Northern markets, where he always commands the highest market price. He told us that he has now one thousand young chicks just from the shell, and hatched by an incubate - Shelby Review:

He was a prominent and useful citizen. negro man was so terribly frozen Saturday night between King's Mountain and Old Furnace that he fied a few days later. - Sam Ross, the negro who waylaid, shot and astempted to rob Kelly Hendricks, was captured in the mountains last week and is in jail in Rutherfordton.

- Salisbury Watchman : There seems to be something wrong in the internal revenue laws—only recently dis-covered—or else it is improperly exe-cuted. Distillers are not allowed to sell in packages containing five or more gallons. But a few days ago thirteen kegs were seized by the officers here because they contended that some of said kegs were five-gallon kegs; and yet we are told none of the kegs really had as much as five gallons.

- Asheville Citizen: The news of he assignment of John D. Brevard, the west Court Place merchant, was heard with general expressions of regret. The deed of assignment was filed Saturday night, and names J. A. Porter as assignee. Mr. Brevard's liabilities are about $20,000, and his assets are thought to be $30,000 or more. He had endorsed for parties here, and the pressure of the holders of his endorsement forced the assignment.

-- Charlotte News: Mr. Esau M. Crowell died at the home of his son, Samuel W. Crowell, in Steel Creek township this morning, at the age of 89 years. - Winston Sentinel: The will of the late Col. John M. Heck, of Raleigh, has been probated. His executrix, his widow, gives the value of the estate, upon the lowest possible estimate, at 460,000. The will is a singular one and unlike any ever probated in that county. Mrs. Heck and her children over 21 years old are to form a council, having power to dispose of any property, and this is to continue until she is 60 years old, when the majority shall appoint one or more persons to take her place. She s given all the personal property and his life insurance and $3,200 annually until the youngest child is 21 years old.

- Liberty Herald: There is a very peculiar and pitiable old man who lives two or three miles northeast of here. His name is John Bunton. He has been deranged for many years. For the past several years he has lived under a brush shelter and slept in a bed of leaves. He does this in preference to living in a house and sleeping in a bed. He generally goes barefooted all the year round, holding that it is a sin to wear the hides of animals in the shape of leather or any other way. He also prefers to wear cotton clothing and doesn't like to eat hog meat. John is perfectly harmless and is of a religious turn of mind.

-Newton Enterprise: A short time go Deputy Sheriff S. C. Sellers, of Cherryville, Gaston county, was digging well. It was twenty-four feet deep, and when it had been walled up about eight feet work had to be suspended and the well was covered over with plank. His two little sons, Grover Cleveland and Henry Grady, were playing on the planks when one of them gave way and Grady went through. He fortunately missed the wall, and when a workman, who happened to be near, made his way down the windlass rope, the youngster was found floating with his bead out of the water and as sound as a dollar. - Wadesboro Messenger-Intelligener: Mr. David Bass lives near Beaver Dam, Union county. Mr. Bass is about 75 years old and has been almost entirely bald for over twenty years. Indeed, we are told that his pate was as slick and shiny as a newly-scrubbed tin bucket. Some time ago he dreamed that he would live to be 106 years old, and that before he died his head would be covered with an ample growth of new and beautiful hair. The dream was so vivid that Mr. Bass awoke from his sleep greatly impressed, fully believing that the vision would prove a true one. So great was his faith in the dream that he at once began to examine his head for the appearance of a new growth of hair, and, most wonderful to relate, it was only a few days until his anxious search was rewarded by the appearance of a soft fuz all over the bald part of his cranium, and now we are assured that his head is almost entirely covered with a luxuriant growth of hair, and we are told that the hair is still growing.
