

We are again sending bills to our subscribers. In the aggregate they amount to a very large sum. Many of our subscribers are responding promptly. Others pay no attention to the bills. These latter do not seem to understand that they are under any legal or moral obligation to pay for a newspaper.

BOODLE'S LEGACY.

Mr. Benjamin Boodle sat at breakfast. No importance attached to the act of sitting. No chickens were hatched, although several eggshells were empty. While munching the maternal meal Mr. Boodle received a letter. "Like to this," he cried excitedly. "The 'Tumble' v. C. Dear Sir—We beg to inform you that our late friend, Mr. Richard McConomy, has bequeathed to you the sum of £1,000. Be good enough to call at my early convenience. Yours very truly, George & Sticks."

Mrs. Boodle over her coffee cup in her excitement. Never before had such unexpected fortune visited the modest abode of the Boodles. Mr. McConomy died and left you £1,000. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?" Here he handed her the letter. "By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket."

Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing." "Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

DAW AND THE NEW DOG.

An Incident Showing the Bad Results of Not Taking Good Advice. When the son warned the sire that he ought to get acquainted with the new dog, the sire ignored the advice, and in less than 12 hours he most heartily regretted it. It happened in this way: They live in the Rock church parish, and not the least important member of the family is the oldest boy, who has a fancy for stray dogs, cats and other beasts. He is constantly bringing home sore-eyed kittens and neglected and abandoned canines, only to have them thrust out into the cold world through the back alley gate. One day last week, however, there fell into the young man's possession, in that mysterious way in which some things will in spite of respectable parents and proper instruction acquire property, a dog that was different from other dogs that he had rescued from a fate more or less cruel. It was a good dog—never mind the breed or pedigree. Boy and dog became the closest and most intimate, not to say affectionate, friends almost at the first meeting. The brute was domiciled in the laundry for a few nights until he could become accustomed to the place. Thursday it was decided by the boy that the time was ripe for giving the animal the freedom of the yard. Then it was that the sire was warned by the son: "Better come out in the yard, pop, and get acquainted with my dog. He's a mighty good watchdog, and if he doesn't know you, you can't get in when you come home to-night."

"Oh, I guess not. That dog wouldn't bite me unless you buttered it," he said. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

ODD RITES OF FAKIRS.

The Curious Religious Ceremonies That Are Performed in India. The following interesting description of an Indian fakir's from a correspondent in Lahore: "Two days ago I returned from a short trip with a friend to the sacred city of Kashi. This time I saw several interesting fakirs. There were the ordinary blind-eyed, ash smeared fellows, one with long brown hair hanging about his shoulders. There was one fat, bearded looking man, with practically nothing on but a shawl, who was lolled lazily under a tree looking more or less inebriate and content, his back propped up by the tree, his head on one side, contemplating his feet with some expression alternately with a well rounded punch and a brother fakir, who was performing his devotions very energetically at a short distance off. "This other was a very lean man and tall. When I first noticed him, he was seated in abstraction, Buddhavise, which is something like a tailor sits, only that the feet are brought out on to the opposite thighs, soles uppermost. He was apparently contemplating his feet with some expression alternately with a well rounded punch and a brother fakir, who was performing his devotions very energetically at a short distance off."

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

WILMINGTON MARKET.

STAR OFFICE, Feb. 18. NAVAL STORES. SPIRITS TURPENTINE.—Steady at 24 1/2 cents per gallon for country and 24 1/4 cents for machine-made casks. Later, sales were reported at 27 cents for machine-made pigs. ROSIN.—Market firm at $1 25 per bbl for Strained and $1 80 for Good Strained. TAR.—Market steady at 90 cents per bbl of 800 lbs. CRUDE TURPENTINE.—Market firm at $1 20 for Hard, $1 70 for Yellow Dip and Virgin. QUOTATIONS same day last year.—Spirits turpentine 25c; rosin, strained, $1 05; good strained $1 10; tar, $1 00; crude turpentine $1 10, 1 50, 1 70.

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

COMMERCIAL.

WILMINGTON MARKET. STAR OFFICE, Feb. 18. NAVAL STORES. SPIRITS TURPENTINE.—Steady at 24 1/2 cents per gallon for country and 24 1/4 cents for machine-made casks. Later, sales were reported at 27 cents for machine-made pigs. ROSIN.—Market firm at $1 25 per bbl for Strained and $1 80 for Good Strained. TAR.—Market steady at 90 cents per bbl of 800 lbs. CRUDE TURPENTINE.—Market firm at $1 20 for Hard, $1 70 for Yellow Dip and Virgin. QUOTATIONS same day last year.—Spirits turpentine 25c; rosin, strained, $1 05; good strained $1 10; tar, $1 00; crude turpentine $1 10, 1 50, 1 70.

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Condition of the Gold Reserve.—The Morgan Syndicate Will Get About $38,000,000 of the New Bonds. By Telegram to the Morning Star. WASHINGTON, February 19.—The Treasury gold reserve at the close of business to-day stood at $31,448,820. The withdrawals for the day amounted to $388,000. Up to the close of business as reported to the Treasury, $78,000,000 have been paid in on the recent gold issues, under the plan of redemption by which $50,000,000 have been taken up in the Treasury funds. $30,000,000 still remain in national bank depositories. Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., and associates, under the plan of redemption by which $50,000,000 of United States four per cent bonds of 1905 made in accordance with the recent circulars of the Secretary of the Treasury, are entitled to receive bonds of the same value of about four million seven hundred thousand dollars, in addition to those of which they have already been notified. Ex. act figures cannot be stated until returns from various sub-treasuries are fully received. It was stated by Mr. Morgan about $88,000,000 of the new gold issue.

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

WILMINGTON MARKET.

STAR OFFICE, Feb. 18. NAVAL STORES. SPIRITS TURPENTINE.—Steady at 24 1/2 cents per gallon for country and 24 1/4 cents for machine-made casks. Later, sales were reported at 27 cents for machine-made pigs. ROSIN.—Market firm at $1 25 per bbl for Strained and $1 80 for Good Strained. TAR.—Market steady at 90 cents per bbl of 800 lbs. CRUDE TURPENTINE.—Market firm at $1 20 for Hard, $1 70 for Yellow Dip and Virgin. QUOTATIONS same day last year.—Spirits turpentine 25c; rosin, strained, $1 05; good strained $1 10; tar, $1 00; crude turpentine $1 10, 1 50, 1 70.

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

"Suppose you should, Mrs. Boodle, 'what then?' returned the elated Mr. Boodle, waving the letter in his wife's face. "Suppose you'd treat me as he had. Take some time to rewrite this letter, wouldn't it? It would take a pretty powerful dream that could unmake poor old Boodle's will, shall I say?"

"By Jove! Wonder if your charge me six and eightpence for sending me the information? I shan't pay it. I'll have to come out of the pocket." Mrs. Boodle often told her husband he was a very mean man. "But why has he left you £1,000?" she asked. "I shouldn't have I can't believe it a thing."

Castoria promotes Digestion, and overcomes Flatulency, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, and Feverishness. Thus the child is rendered healthy and its sleep natural. Castoria contains no Morphine or other narcotic property. "Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it in all cases of constipation, diarrhoea, or feverishness. It is so innocuous that it may be given to the youngest child, and it is so effective that it will cure the most obstinate cases of these ailments. It is so pleasant that the child will take it with pleasure. It is so safe that it may be given to the most delicate child. It is so cheap that it may be given to the poorest family. It is so good that it is the best medicine for children that I have ever used."—Dr. J. C. Jackson, Lowell, Mass.

What is Castoria? A Practically Perfect Preparation For Children's Complaints. Castoria is a natural and healthy medicine for children. It is so well adapted to children that I recommend it in all cases of constipation, diarrhoea, or feverishness. It is so innocuous that it may be given to the youngest child, and it is so effective that it will cure the most obstinate cases of these ailments. It is so pleasant that the child will take it with pleasure. It is so safe that it may be given to the most delicate child. It is so cheap that it may be given to the poorest family. It is so good that it is the best medicine for children that I have ever used.

Wholesale Prices Current. The following quotations represent Wholesale Prices for small quantities. Prices have to be changed. The quotations are always given as a primary a percentage of the market price. Any variations from the actual market prices of the articles quoted.

Table with columns for various goods like Flour, Sugar, Coffee, etc., and their corresponding prices.

Table with columns for various goods like Cotton, Wool, etc., and their corresponding prices.

Table with columns for various goods like Lard, Butter, etc., and their corresponding prices.

Table with columns for various goods like Oil, Soap, etc., and their corresponding prices.

Table with columns for various goods like Tea, Coffee, etc., and their corresponding prices.

Notice. THE UNDERSIGNED HAVING QUALIFIED AS ADMIRALTY CLERK OF THE SUPREMACY COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, AND BEING DESIROUS OF SECURING A SUFFICIENT NUMBER OF ASSISTANTS TO ASSIST IN THE DISCHARGE OF HIS DUTIES, HE OFFERS TO RECEIVE APPLICATIONS FROM ANY PERSONS WHOSE NAMES HE MAY BE DESIROUS OF INCLUDING ON HIS ROLL OF ASSISTANTS. APPLICATIONS SHOULD BE MADE TO HIM AT HIS OFFICE, 111 SOUTH BOSTON STREET, NEW YORK CITY, ON OR BEFORE FEBRUARY 19, 1906. ADAM W. WATSON, ADMIRALTY CLERK.