Story About Augustus Thomas That Shows Anthors Are Not a Jealous Lot.

A very pretty story is told of Augustus Thomas and a fellow playwright. "Let me read you a soone from my new piece," said the friend. "Very well," was the reply, and the au-

A WELSH FESTIVAL.

The Spring Hiring Day and the Manney In Which It Is Observed. I had the luck to be in Aberdaron during the spring hiring day. This great domestic festival-or otherwise-took place it Sarn, a market village six miles away. It upset the economy of a multitude of homes far and wide. From an early hour the lanes were thick with flighty young women who had given their mistresses no tice and meant to lease themselves out for the coming six months at largely enhanced wages: with carts containing farmers and their wives in quest of servants and farmhands: and with loose limbed men in black. carrying boxes under their arms, which held all their worldly kit and which, with themselves, they were anxious to transfer to a new regime. The fair sex, without n, were imposingly attired. cannot say that they were dressed up to date. They told me in Aberdaron at the millinery shop that the servant girls of the district do not care for a fashion until it is two or three years old, somewhat crusted, in fact. But there was no doubting their taste in bonnets. They wore them as large nearly as the narrowness of the district lanes would permit. Seen in the Sarn market place, the damsels were suggestive of nothing so much as a grove of palm trees with rather short trunks. The evening of this important day was devoted to revelry of a kind scandalous to the stricter Welsh people. There was slip of a circus in the village, and some gingerbread stalls. These, with beer, made up a gala occasion of a very emphatic kind. The carts reeled home through the night. Their noise and that of their Scupants awoke me several times during h& flark hours. And the next day those of the servant girls who had got their wages in advance (a £5 note or so for the half year) trooped into the village and indulgdd themselves en masse with new gowns and bonnets.-Cornhill Magazine.

The Shaws browse trash in the shape of sweets and acids and over every thought it got and then chewed the cud at leisure.

But it even carried this into its love affairs. The young men were exasperating, and had the young women known any-thing better very few marriages would have taken place in the Shaws. The latter were accounted douce, a trait that was alogether in their favor, but it was caused by nothing more nor less than their training in patience, both by precept and ex-ample—the first in their childhood and the second when they were old enough to observe for themselves

A young man of the Shaws unconsciously followed the leading of his heart, but only so far. He took love and fact, weighed the one against the other and became reflective. A struggle usually ensued, and love sometimes won, sometimes other con-siderations, in which latter case he would retire from the field with the admonition to the young woman that love was terribly deceiving and dangerous to meddle with. The two would part in silence, and the Shaws would exonerate the young man. No one never knew how Lang Tam began his courtship of Peggie Wilkle, but the first real symptoms of his love, as far as the Shaws has any record, was the Sabbath morning he gave Peggie a peppermint when they met at the kirk gate. Peter Pirn stood by and saw them. Lang Tam, he afterward said, was like one transfigured. He seemed to grow in height and strode as no one had ever seen him do before, even to leaving Peggie a step or two behind in that moment of his tense emo-tion. He stumbled when he reached the kirk steps, which was interpreted as a certain sign that his happiness blinded him. Peter said they would make a match of it some time, and the Shaws settled down to

A Cheerful View.

The following story is told of a correspondent who has recently returned from a trip to the far west of the United States. Two men who had been sitting together in the seat near the door of a railway carliecame engaged in an animated controversy, and their loud voices attracted the attention of all the other passengers. | Suddenly one of them rose and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I appeal to you to decide a disputed point. My friend insists that not more than three persons out complain. of five believe they have souls. I take a more cheerful view of humanity than that. Will all of you who believe you have souls raise your right hands?"

Every hand in the car went up. Thank you," he said, with a smile.

"Keep them up just a moment. Now, will all of you who believe in a hereafter please raise your left hand also?"

Every hand in the car went up. "Thank you again," he said. "Now, while all of you have your hands raised." he continued, drawing a pair of revolvers and leveling them, "my friend here will go down the aisle and relieve you of whatver valuables you may happen to have. The Fulminate of Mercury.

A peculiarity of fulminate of mercury is that it produces a shock to which all other substances are sensitive, and its supreme value as an explosive rests in this fact and in the known liability of all explósives to be detonated by more or less distant explosions. There is a current of sympathetic influence in these terrible mical compositions that is as strange as it is dangerous. What is required to produce explosion is the rapid generation of great heat along with large quantities of oxygen. In gunpowder, for instance, the nitrate of potash -saltpeter-which is the chief ingredient, is practically imprisoned oxygen, and when it is decomposed along with charcoal an immense heat is developed, which causes the gases to expand suddenly; hence explosion .- All the Year Round

Indian Ocean Serpents.

Among the most venomous serpents in the world are the marine snakes of the Indian ocean. They are the dread of fishermen and it sometimes happens that vessels are obliged to thread their cables through barrels to prevent the reptiles from swarming on board. Great numbers of them may often be seen floating on the surface of the water as if asleep. They are exceedingly fierce and will commonly attack human beings without provocation. -New York World.

I looked at her plate, and she had two kinds of pie and a glass of half cream and half milk. When she got up to leave I saw that she was afflicted, as indiscriminating eaters generally are, with a large abdomen. Her habits of cating, as displayed in her luncheon, very largely accounted for it She ate things that "filled her up," to put it coarsely, and caused flatulence, distending the stomach with gases. Drinking great quantities of liquid, such as tea and coffee, or a great deal of milk or water, will distend the stomach in the same hopefully: "Weel, the laddle's beginning to fike, manner and cause the uncomfortable

A summer visitor in Mount Desert fell into conversation with a native who was busily engaged in doing nothing. "How in the world do you manage to make a living here?" inquired the summer visitor when the conversation had become somewhat confidential. "Waal, stranger," said the native slowly, "there ain't anything to make hereabouts, true to say. But, ye see, in winter I haul logs, an in summer I haul mealers, an twixt them two I manage to scrape along." "Mealers?" repeated the visitor doubtfully. "Cottage folks that take their meals to the hotels an ain't got strength to walk half a rod," explained

It was nearly four years since the engage ment, and Lang Tam and Peggie were still unmarried. Had the probationary courtship lasted that time nothing would have been thought of it. The Shaws was seized with another fear and felt that its reputation was in jeopardy. Lang Tam had long before returned to his normal mind, the only difference noted being an absent manner whether with Peggie or alone. According to a report brought to the village by them one evening under covert for two hours on the edge of the Caithly woods, about the only thing Lang Tam said in

"Aye, umpha, just so-aye." And Peg-"It is terrible hoo the time gaes by."

One or two believed that Lang Tam was carefully considering the matter, while others feared that his long reflections were induced by a desire to withdraw, and that he was simply planning the safest means to do it. Jeames was consulted as to the behavior of his son at table, and when he told Peter that he was "just a kinda aff his meat" Peter, who was an oracle on the subject, pronounced it "naething ava." Seven months later, when Jeames was again asked for the signs, he announced

Peter and William exchanged glances and nodded simultaneously. There was no fear of Lang Tam now. He would soon marry Peggie. Some time after, when Peggie was Mrs.

Thomas Ford, Lang Tam explained in a moment of confidence to the questioning stare of Peter:

"It was sae sweet tae think that Peggie was mine that I juist roued an roued it like a sweet morsel under my tongue until I cudna keep the lassie waitin ony langer, but the mair I thoct o' the time when we wad get married it was maist o' cud get thro' wl'. Mermaids.

All the world over there are legends about mermaids. The Chinese tell stories not unlike others about the sea woman of their southern seas. Mankind is taught on the most excellent evidence that a mermaid was captured at Bangor, on the shores of the Belfast Lough, in the sixth century, while another caught at Edam, tation. in 1403, was carried to Haarlem and kept there for many years.

Gay Jackets of Fishskin.

The Eskimos of Alaska make jackets of the skins of the red spotted trout of that region, known as the Dolly Varden, which they tan for this purpose. The Dolly Varden is a handsome fish of a pale purplish gray color; it attains a length of 21% feet and a weight of 10 to 12 pounds. The skin is waterproof, and with its bright red spots it makes a very showy jacket.-New York Sun.

The House Resolution for Adjournment No. Acceptable to the Senate.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, May 6 .- The House resolution for a final adjournment on the 18th of the present month is considered in the Senate as too early a date. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and will not be reported back to the Senate until the appropriation bills are in a fair way to be out of the road within a known period of time. It is sale to assume that Mr. Allison will not consider the resolution for at least ten days and the conclusion of Senators who have discussed the question with members of the committee, is that an adjournment will not be had earlier than June 1st. The only snags in the way-the Peffer resolution to investigate the bond sales and the Dupont case-will be out of the way early by agreeement as to when the votes shall be taken, and it is expected that nothing will then interfere with the continuous consideration of appropriation bills, and the reception of conference reports on such bills as may be in the hands of the conferees. OUT OF WEAKNESS comes strength when the blood has been purified, enriched and vitalized, the appetite restored and the system built up by Hood's

HOT ON THE TRAIL

WASHINGTON, May 6.- The police are hot on the trail of a man believed to have murdered Elsie Kregle, in the northeastern suburbs of Washington Monday alternoon. Several arrests were made but no positive evidence was found against any of the prisoners. To-day the police ascertained the owner of the revolver found near the dead girl, and from this clue they raided the house of a colored man named Irving L. Ford, located a few miles north of the city. Ford was not there but his blood-stained clothing was found and other incriminating evidence. A warrant was immediately issued and the police of this city. aided by the authorities of Montgomery county, Maryland, will find him. prcbably, before to morrow. The man is so well known that he can hardly escape. He was located in the vicinity of the murder at the time it was committed, the revolver was his, and the underclothing he left behind him were saturated with blood. He is a negro, very black, six feet in height and with a bad repu-
