It is sur-mised that he was led to make this change by reason of the detention of his lighters and saw a week's delay in effecting a landing unless he went in where he did and ran his troops and artillery directly ashore. He has thus avoided exposing his troops to the hardships suffered by Shaiter's men as they lay for so many days off San-tiago. No Money to Do Business and Merchants Timid About Making Purchases.

The Customs Duties.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, July 27.-The War Department to-day made public the following dispatch, received from Gen. Shafter, in response to a query by the department as to ships being turned away from Santiago: Santiago, via Hayti, July 26.-Press reports not true. I only know of three hips having arrived-one from Kingston, the others from the United . The Bratton has sold its cargo. One of the others, a ship from New Orleans, has sold only a part, and the captain tells me he is going away to-night. I think he will sell before he eaves. The trouble is they did not expect to pay any duty and arrived here without money. The Spanish customs as applied to Spanish sub-jects have only been collected, and the 20 cents per ton as ordered by the secretary. I discovered this morning an attempt on the part of the munic-Ipal authorities to collect a local tax of 40 cents per thousand kilos; in this ustance, amounting to $2,500. I had already settled this matter by order-ing its non-collection. The fact is, there is no money here to do business and merchants are very timid about making purchases, fe

As a matter of fact, it is one of the unwritten secrets of the battle of July 1st, that the plans made the night previous did not contemplate an assault upon the works of the enemy before Santiago. Two divisions, those of General Wheeler and General Kent, were to remain in column on the main road to Santiago, to rein-force General Lawton whose division was to assault El Caney on the extreme right, while Grimes' battery

But when the Spanish guns began to drop shrapnel shells over the road on which our column rested, and when word came that Gen. Lawton was successful at El Caney, it became necessary for Wheeler's and Kent's divisions either to advance, retreat, or remain quiet under the storm of shells that was bursting over their heads. Under these circumstances it was less dangerous to advance and charge the enemy's works than to stay where they were, and with a general impulse to get where they could return the enemy's fire the advance regiments, the Sixth and Sixteenth infantry, moved out. The others followed. There is a question whether any specific general command to charge was ever given. Regimental and company commanders simply led their way heroically forward up the hill. The hill was taken, the American flag planted on its crest and the enemy driven pellmell into his inner line of entrenchments beyond.- The men were too much exhausted to follow up their victory, though it has since been asserted that had the pursuit been continued that afternoon, the demoralized Spanish would have surrendered that night.

Wheeler Alone Undismayed.

So terrific had been the slaughter of our men-90 per cent. of whom were then under fire for the first timeon the night of July 1, the officers of high rank, brave soldiers, too, went to Gen. Wheeler who was in command at the front (Gen. Shafter being still aboard his ship), and appealed to him to withdraw. They predicted an awful disaster to our arms if we attempted to hold the position he had earned so dearly. But the intrepid old cavalry leader of the Confederacy said, "No. He spoke reassuring words to those who came with dire forebodings. "We are in an uncomfortable position," he said, "but the Spaniards are more, uncomfortable than we. Pass that word down the line." Gen, Wheeler even sent back a disatch to Gen. Shafter, telling him of the pressure that was being brought to bear upon him. "I presume the same influences are being brought to bear on you," he wrote in effect, "but it will not do. American prestige would suffer irretrievably if we gave in an inch. We must be firm."

The Cubans have proved a disappointment throughout this campaign, even to their warm-est friends. They have been everywhere except where the battle raged, but their chief and favorite station has been near chief and favorite station has been near the commissary. So persistently have they hung about the supply stations that they have come to be known and described in language more forcible than elegant, as the "mango-bellied degenerates." During the various actions since the army landed only actions since the army landed only seven Cubans, so far as is known, have been wounded. At El Caney, when the pack train brought up supplies for the starving refugees, the Cubans crowded out women and children and demanded miles and children and

The President discussed this complex subject all day with various members of the cabinet as they called in the course of ordinary business. Secretary Day and Postmaster General Smith spent some time this after-noon at the White House, presumably that there is a reasonable certainty of encountering little opposition to our demands. The Spanish government might insist upon the proposition thrown out by the Vatican yesterday, namely, that the United States shall annex Cuba, the ostensible purpose being to secure full protection for the Spanish element left on the island, but while this would be a vexatious point it would yield to adjustment. As to the Philippines

there is a full expectation of greater difficulties to be surmounted. There is reason to believe that these difficulties, like the Cuban settlement, will be rather internal than international in their character, at least from the outset. The President is firmly of the opinion that the United States has no use for the islands as a permanent possession. The gravest problems of government would result were the attempt made to annex them, owing to the heterogeneous and ill-favored character of the large population of the islands, while any effort to unite with other powers in a joint administration might be fairly expected to result as unsatisfactorily as the tripartite arrangement between Germany, the United States and Great Britain for the government of the Samoan group.

However, there are evidences that a large element in the United States are of the opinion that the islands should be acquired by the United States, and it is hoped by the President that before it comes to the formulation officially of the United States demand, public sentiment in this country, through newspaper discussion and otherwise, will have so far crystalized as to enable the government to per-ceive the popular demand clearly. It may be stated that it is confidently expected that when the two governments arrive at the point of actually fixing the terms, they will be found much closer together than is generally supposed.

Cuba and Porto Rico.

It is felt by officials that with diplo matic formalities out of the way the actual peace terms would require little time for arrangement, and to-day it was even suggested that the anomalous condition might be presented as of Spain conceding as much or more than the United States felt justified in demanding. There is little reason to doubt that Spain has made up her mind to give up Cuba. It is almost equally certain that Spain recognizes that she must consent also to the abandonment of Porto Rico. With these two vital points passed, there is likely to be little delay on the question of indemnity, as there is every disposition here not to press with un-due severity on Spain in this respect. About the only reason which would impel this government to insist upon an indemnity would be a further stub-

The Americans were obliged to withdraw to the coast.

Wanted an Armistice.

LONDON, July 28. - A special dispatch from Madrid says it is rumored that the request of Duke Almodevar De Rio, Minister of Foreign Affairs, was for an armistice lasting until Sunday. It cannot be ascertained whether his action was spontaneous, in order, if possible, to forestall the invasion of Porto Rico and the fall of Manila, or whether it was due to advice from the Vatican and the powers.

The Carlist Movement.

LONDON, July 28 .- One of the chief supporters of Don Carlos says that Don Carlos would issue a proclama tion the moment Spain is committed to a demand for peace.
