— Political discontent is rife in Porto Rico, where a strong partisan movement for a more independent form of government has been directed against the Admistration. Even on this peaceful little island leading citizens must go armed in time of political turmoil, and the right to the freedom enjoyed by other Territories in the United States is made to cloak a multitude of more or less flagrant offenses against the recently imported Government. Our new subjects are not used to us yet .-Philadelphia Record, Dem.

— If Mr. Bryan had accepted a bribe of $150,000 to have the free silver plank inserted in the Democratic platform he would be universally estimated as the most contemtible public man this country has produced since the days of Benedict Arnold. The crime were so monstrous that the people would be, slow to believe it of Mr. Bryan although irrefutable proof were brought to bear, yet a reputable newspaper in New York city printed this charge against him upon the unsupported assertion of one Kingman, of Peoria, of whom the public never heard. Such campaigning is disgraceful and the American people will not tolerate it. Character is too precious to be trifled with for campaign purposes. — Richmond Times, Gold Dem.

HOME AGAIN.

Far down the lane A window pane Shines mid the trees through night and rain; Through which a fence Sprawls out, one sees not where nor whence, And there the springhouse, indistinct of line, O'er roofed and tangled with a trumpet vine.

No beast or bird. Only the rain by which are stirred The draining leaves And trickling eaves Of crib and barn one scarce perceives. And gardens where old fashioned flow'rs hang

The phlox, the candytuft and mignonette

Why should I wait? The hour is late; She has not heard me at the gate The rain was proof Against my horse's hurrying hoof, And when the old gate with its weight and Creaks she will think it but the wind and rain.

Along I steal With cautious heel

And by the lamp lit window kneel, And rocks and knits On face and hair, so sweetly sr . and gray,

Dreaming of him she thinks is far away. Upon my cheeks Is it the streaks
Of rain, as now the old porch creaks Beneath my stride? And open wide The door flings, and she's at my side.

Toung Bowen's Contempt For Army Red Tape.

Young Clancy Bowen brought to New York from his western home a life equipment of so much energy, combined with the unshakable belief that it was easy enough to "do things" if you only "got down on your four legs and exercised," that his friends, both new and old, expect a great deal of him. But they are yet awhile no nearer dropping the objectionable introduction to his name than they were three years ago, when Bowen had no better sense than to spend a week of his preclous time in the attempt, according to a promise, to collect an old and outlawed debt from a vanishing person in the east for the benefit of some one "at home." Then and always they called him "young." Only this winter he had an experience which should have been formative. It stunned him, perhaps, but he awoke unchanged. Bowen's brother, a soldier in the regular army, went to the front in 1898. The stay at home, however, bore a heavier burden of the distresses of the campaign in Cuba than the one who saw the battles. When he read in the newspapers that the army was keenly uffering for food while whole shipful of stores remained untapped at anchor a few miles off the beach, the young man seethed with pent up irritationpent up until he had finished a scrap of breakfast at his boarding house, where there was no one but the landlady, and she deaf, and found the ear of an acquaintance down town.

"Say, what good are those generals? They ain't fit to be pitching hay! Say, I'd get a rope on to every one of those ships, one by one, and haul 'em up on shore, and I'd dump 'em out and fill up the brave fellows fighting for their country till they was gorged!"

"You couldn't do that, or anything, not if you was a general," said the other. "Red tape." He repeated the last words decisively. "Red tape?" "I'd ravel it all out!" cried Clancy and hurried off. That was the man this is the simple experience:

The brother came back from the war not a bit the worse either for the fasting or the fighting, but the chance of army life did not bring him within reach of Clancy's arms for more than a year. Then, after everything else had been said, the soldier let fall the Information that he had been obliged to leave his extra clothing, together with most of his worldly goods, at the barracks in California when he was ordered to the front and regretfully wished he had them now.

"Where did you put the things?" asked Clancy, alive at once, ready to take charge of the matter of getting them back.

"Captain told me to pack my stuff in my company locker, and I did-No. 65, Benicia barracks, Second infantry storehouse." rattled off the soldier. "Well, all we have to do is to write out to the man, the janitor, or what you call 'em, who keeps care of the building, and ask him to send your duds along-eh, as you have need of

'em here. I'll fix it up for you." "I dunno," said the other hesitatingly; "that wouldn't be quite right, you writing the letter and all. I'd better ask my captain to write. He'll say 'communicate' to the chaps out west. Then it'll all be reg'lar."

"Oh, well," Clancy sniffed; "that will do, I s'pose. Is your captain a good feller? Will he tend up to it sharp? If not, you'd better let me"-But the other interrupted decidedly.

He would do things in the right way, and it would be better in the end, he said.

Several months passed. Nothing was heard from Benicia barracks. Clancy tried to make his brother "punch up" the captain. He even wrote a fevered appeal himself to the man who, he reckoned, must have taken away those things and sold them, but the soldier would not let the letter be mailed. The brothers nearly split up over this question, for Clancy said he was ashamen that one of his family should have so little "hustle" in him. "I tell you it's no use to do anything but wait," said the brother in his stupld, firm way. And last week he was proved right. A red inked, blue inked, green inked bundle of paper, all pasted together and strung out with a pinned copy of his letter to his captain, came to the soldier. He brought the thing to Clancy at the first opportunity. "Snakes!" said the young man. "Is that quite all? Conversational, ain't it? Well, let's see. 'Respectfully forwarded to the adjutant, Benicia barracks, with request that a search be in-

Clancy turned and twisted the wad of papers about until he found what he was looking for, then read: " 'Second indorsement. The box locker referred to was shipped, with all its contents, to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., on Dec. 8, 1890,' and he says he knows you might possibly get it if you applied to the quartermaster at Fort Leavenworth. That's good news. Course they haven't made it take any more journeys since. Now your captain takes a hand. He's respectful, but he puts his paw right down. I see that, request that the contents be forwarded as soon as practicable.'

"'Fourth indorsement. Respectfully referred to the quartermaster.' That's at Leavenworth. Now we're getting warm. 'Fifth indorsement. Respectfully returned the adjutant, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas,' he says. Well, he's found your stuff and wants 'authority to ship.' That's what we're after. 'Sixth indorsement. Respectfully forwarded to the assistant adjutant general something or other department of Missouri, requesting authority to forward.' Well, he just very respectfully returns to the quartermaster up there, who returns back to him, and then he returns it to somebody else, who tells 'the commanding officer' at Leavenworth that he can send you your old pants if he wants to, William, but he must be sure and send the papers back." Clancy sighed seriously. "Tenth indersement. Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Respectfully referred.' Oh, respectfully referred, to the quartermaster for his information and guidance. Want to save the wear and tear on the quartermaster's brains. Be cheaper to buy you new duds, I should say. Here's a few more. 'Eleventh indorsement." Clancy paused, his brows knitting. "Oh, this is good stuff," he cried out. "It tells the story, all of it. Listen:

"'Respectfully returned to the adjutant. Fort Leavenworth, Kan., with the report that under authority indorsed hereon and in conformity with'-there's a lot of dates and requests that he has to conform to, but he made out to pack your things in a box, and, William, they're a-coming. There's more indorsements, though: Respectfully returned to Private William Bowen, Inviting attention,' I guess so! Have you got the goods, William?"

"No," said William. "I been reading this."

castic: "Do you circulate a round robin before they'll let you put on them pants?" he asked.

And a few weeks later he had entirely recovered from the shock. Young Clancy Bowen was himself again. "You'd orter let me write out about your things," he said .- New York Commercial Advertiser.

In Natal fire still continues to be one of winter's perils. After months of drought plantations become so much tinder, and should by chance any field take fire and a "hot wind" be blowing the devastation wrought is widespread if not ruinous.

One "Black Monday" nearly 30 years ago will long be memorable for the destruction wreaked through two countles by the ruthless fire flend. "Ffre breaks" of trees or bare spaces combined with vigilance in suppression have greatly lessened the risks of conflagration, but the dangers of grass fires will long be a menace to the tree planter and pastoralist in the upper districts. Natal has been described as a "vast meadow." Its hills are clothed from foot to brow with crisp and waving grass. The latter often overtops a

American answer to the French note. which is the pending phase of the Chinese negotiations to be disposed of, has been pretty well defined, although it will remain for the return of the President and a meeting of the cabinet to give the answer formal definiteness. Intimations have been conveyed to some of the foreign representatives that this government may not be able to concur in the interdiction of the import of arms into China, and also that there may be serious constitutional reasons requiring at least two of the French proposals to be submitted to the American Congress before they can be acted upon affirmatively. These two latter propositions relate to the establishment of a permanent legation guard in Pekin, and to the permanent maintenance of a line of communication from Pekin to the sea. The permanency of these plans appears to involve a possibility of territorial occupation, though of a limited character, both at Pekin and along the road from Pekin to the sea, and it is understood that even if these moves were regarded with favor by the executive branch, there would be constitutional

The Imperial Court. The news which the United States government has received of the purpose of the Chinese Imperial Court to take up its abode at Tsingan Fu in the province of Shensi comes from Japanese official sources, but so far there has been nothing from the Chinese officials to show that the movement has taken place. The State Department has put forth all of its efforts to bring about an abandonment of the project. However, it is now conceded that the presence of the Emperor and Empress in Pekin is not absolutely necessary to the attainment of a satisfactory and permanent settle ment of the Chinese trouble, though it is undoubtedly true that their return would hasten the settlement.

A Chinese Edict. The Japanese minister to-day left with the Secretary of State a copy of a telegram, dated October 1st, received from the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs to this effect:

"The Japanese acting consul at Shanghai reported on the 28th ultimo the publication in the Chinese papers of an undated Imperial edict, the purport of which was as follows: Though we have accompanied he majesty the Empress Dowager to Taj Yen and settled there, it is not our is tention to remain there permanen Inasmuch as Chang-An was the lead of the ancient rulers of China and i is defended by nature, we order the acting governor of Shensi to select a suitable site for the Imperial palace in the city of Si Ngan and to provide everything necessary for our journey thereto. ## Opinion in Germany.

BERLIN, October 6 .- Public attention in Germany was occupied to an unusual degree this week with the Chinese situation. The newspapers ndulged in a lengthy discussion of the view that the question seems approaching a settlement, A feeling of general satisfaction has been caused by the French note, the contents of which were only published here to day. It receives courteous treatment, but is considered to contain matter that can wait. A foreign official, discussing the French note with a representative of the Associated Press, to day expressed the view that the prohibition of the importation of arms to China should be indefinitely prolonged, and also held that the military guard be maintained at Pekin by the unanimous consent of the Powers should remain for an indefinite period. He also said that since the Powers now hold the Taku fortifications, the question of their demolition is not press ing, for they can be demolished at any time, Regarding indemnities, the informant of the Associated Press said there was no difference of opinion on the question of the principles which will prevail, though the details will require discussion. Certain newspapers criticise the omission of the word "international" in M. Delcasse's proposal of a permanent military occupation of the dis-trict between Pekin and Tien Tsin, expressing the opinion that the omission indicates that Russia will insist upon proprietary rights to the district, upon the ground that her administration of the railroads justifies it.

The official of the Foreign Office expressed the opinion that this conclusion was extraordinarily far fetched, adding: "All the powers are equally interested in maintaining communica tions with Pekin." While the latest German note has apparently, not yet been formally answered by any one of the powers. the Foreign Office here has been informed that they all agree to it. The press of various shades of opinon regard the new German note as the rallying point of the Powers in the present negotiations. It is interesting, at a moment when the Powers are ex ercising comity towards China, to note that Professor Jellinik, Professor of International Law at Heidelberg, shows in a law journal that relations, according to international law, between China and the Powers, do not exist, since China has never voluntarily recognized the obligations of international law. The latter presupposes the equality the States, whereas the Chinese theory is that the other States are vassals of the Emperor of China. The fact that China has been forced to permit ministers of the Powers to reside at Pekin does not change the situation. The ministers merely enjoy treaty rights. Therefore, the attack upon the ministers was merely a breach of treaty rights. The Chinese are utterly in ignorance of the idea of the sanctity of the ambassadors.
