WILMINGTON, N. C. FRIDAY, - - NOVEMBER 9, 1900

AMERICAN COMPETITION. A short while ago the English

iron makers howled because Amercan firms took away from them contracts for about $5,000,000 worth of work in South Africa, which the Americans agreed to do for about-20 per cent. less money and in about half the time the Englishmen would contract to do it in. This was simply a case of American enterprise and push against English enterprise and push. This isn't the first time this has happened, for some time ago the English iron men howled because Americans secured contracts for some steel bridges and railway equipment in Northern Africa, which General Kitchener needed in his operations in the Soudan. Then, too, American enterprise and push got away with the British and other European competitors. A couple of weeks ago an American secured against English competition a contract for a large lot of steel rails for a railway in Ireland, and for some time American locomotive builders have been selling locomotives to English railways, the excuse for the purchases being that the English builders could not supply them in the time allowed. Much of the steel rails, structural steel for the bridges, and nearly all the locomotives used on the trans-Siberian railroad were furnished by American firms and at a price which European firms could not furnish them. All the road making machinery employed in the construction of that road is of American invention; built in this country and shipped to Russia. This machinery was not introduced until most of the work of grading was done, but it is said that if it had been introduced when the work was begun it would have been completed a year or so ago, with a saving of millions of dollars.

As American enterprise and push achieving these victories in foreign markets apply the screws to their home customers whom they have in their power, because the protective tariff which handicaps and keeps the European manufacturer out of our markets gives them a monopoly which enables them to charge home customers any price they please, and therefore they insist on an exorbitant profit on the things they sell at nome and are content with a moderate profit on the goods they ship to other countries. Why this system is perpetuated and these tariff protected favorites are thus permitted to impose on the American people while dealing reasonably and fairly with foreigners s one of the mysteries which the average American cannot understand. But is a fact repeated every day in the year, and a fact which will account for the enormous campaign funds which the Republican party managers can command.

MUST TAKE FULL RESPONSI-BILITY.

With the result of Tuesday's election, and the practical endorsement of the McKinley administration, the Republican party must assume the full responsibility for the administration of the Government for at least the next two years if not four. The result is not what we would have it; it is not good for the country now, and not good for the country in the future, but the sensible man tries to make the best of what he has, if he cannot get what he wants, and philosophically accepts what he could not prevent. Every man who cast his vote for Wm. J. Bryan cast the vote of a patriot and a well-wisher of his country, while every man who cast his vote for Wm. McKinley practically, whether he so intended it or not, voted to endorse the McKinley administration and everything it stood for. It was virtually a license to the men who have been running that administration to run it in their own way regardless of traditional precedents or of constitutional limitations.

It has been said and, will doubt-

FOREST PRESERVATION.

We have written a great deal in these columns about the destruction of our forests, which the axe and the saw-mill are now so rapidly depleting. Recent unprecedented freshets in some of our Western streams has called attention again to this subject, and elicited the following from the Charlotte Observer :

"There is a new argument now-at least to us-for the necessity of forest preservation. Our observant and houghtful Morganton correspondent calls attention to it in his letter in this norning's paper. The destruction of the forests results in unusually disastrous floods when rivers in the timber denuded section overflow. The Catawba river in Burke county has lately made a new high water record by rising two feet above a new steel bridge near Morganton, which has been built five feet above the old danger point. At the same time the stream runs lower in Summer. The cause of this is beieved to be forest destruction by the lumbermen and the forest fires. The latter burn off the leaves and mould on the mountain sides which absorb part of the falling Winter rains and prevent the abnormal flooding of the mountain streams. As our corre spondent remarks, this is a question which riverside land owners, bridgeless be said again, that in as much builders and manufacturers dependthere were several issues and the ent upon water power, the parties most directly interested, need to turn their attention to." Whether the extraordinary freshets herein referred to were the result of timber cutting and fires or not we know the fact that forest depletion and forest fires have been the cause of destructive floods in our own and other countries. Matter enough to make several !large books has been written and published on this subject. We know that streams in this country which before settlement by white people rarely if ever overflowed their banks are now flooded almost annually; the reasons for which are so manifest that they have ceased to be a matter of doubt. And yet we are proceeding with the destruction of our forests as if their only value was the dollars that can be got out the lumber giving no the war. Later, he was foreman of thought to the penalty that posterity, if not ourselves, will pay for this indiscriminate tree cutting.

Peerless Leadership. [Special Star Telegrams.] RALEIGH, November 6.-The State of North Carolina has remained true

to Bryau and Democracy. The majority will not be short of 30,000. The Democrats have carried every Congressional district in the State, except the Eighth and Ninth. Returns from those two districts are very meagre, but it looks like Crawford has been defeated in the Ninth district, and news from the Eighth shows that the vote is close. Hon. Furnifold M. -In Germany a combination of all the nations whose manufacturers and producers suffer from this combination has been suggested as a defensive measure, but that scheme will not be so easy to carry out because of the conflicting interests involved, one nation being interested in keeping out one line of goods, another another line. But they doubtless would if they could form a combine against this country, whose commercial supremacy is becoming a serious factor with them. And yet it is not surprising that such a suggestion has been made, for such a combination would be the logical outcome of the protective tariff, practically prohibitive, which we have adopted to keep European manufactures and European raw materials out of this country.
