BERLIN, Dec. 12 .- In the Reichstag to-day the Imperial Chancellor, Count Von Buelow, referring to the complaints of Emperor William's failure to receive Mr. Kruger, said the announcement that Mr. Kruger was coming was made twenty four, or at most forty eight hours, before leaving Berlin. Up to that moment it had been assumed that Mr. Kruger would go from Paris to Holland.

The chancellor added: "We apprised courteously and considerately, through the Paris embassy and Dr. Leyds, that the Emperor regretted he was not in a position to receive him.

Notwithstanding this, Mr. Kruger started. He was told again at Cologne, in the most considerate terms, that the Emperor was unable to see

The chancellor repudiated the suggestion that the government's action was due to any wish or proposal from the English court or government to the Emperor or to himself, the chancellor. For the Emperor only German national considerations were authoritative. If family relations or dynastic considerations influenced the foreign policy he would not remain minister

Continuing, the chancellor said the Anglo-German agreement of 1898 did not contain a provision relating to war between Great Britain and the South African republics, and the Yangtse and Samoan agreements had no secret clauses. When the Emperor, in 1896, sent the telegram to Mr. Kruger there was no question of war between the States. It was a matter of a filibuster ing expedition. The Emperor did not intend to determine the Gera an policy forever by that telegram. The chancellor added:

"I commit no diplomatic indiscre tion in saying that the reception of that telegram outside of Germany left no doubt that in the event of a conflict with England in Africa Germany would have to rely solely on her own strength."

Baron Von Richthofen, secretary of state for foreign affairs, referring to the expulsion of Germans from the Transvaal and the Orange Free State territories, said: "It has appeared to me that these expulsions in many cases have been unjustifiable, both as to cause and manner, and contrary to international law; and an expression of this view has been made in Lon-

TOPEKA, KAN, December 12.- J. A Newman, chairman of the Sante Fe grievance committee, arrived here toay to confer with the striking operators. Mr. Newman is very sanguine about the ultimate result of the strike. In the Top-ka depot office three mer and one woman are at work. In the general office here three new men are

Mr. Newman's dispatches indicate, he says, that the strike conditions are decidedly favorable for the telegraphers. Permanent headquarters for the strikers have been established in a Topeka hotel.

Topska, Kan., December 12 -The Sauta Fe railroad has broken off its relations with the Order of Railway Telegraphers. All the courtesies preva lent between the road and the operators have been revoked.

"We will have nothing further to do with an organization that has proved itself incompetent; that broke its contract to give us thirty days' notice and gave us but thirty seconds," said General Manager Mudge to-night. "That is not saying that recognition will be denied the O. R. T. permanently or under competent management. Presidently Ripley, in an interview says he favors the existence of railroad organizations. I am also he said in favor of the Brothers.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, December 12 .-The telegraphers claim the railroad officials are making offers of better positions to get strikers to return to work. They claim that traffic on the Sante Fe is congested at numerous places, and that the whole Atchison system is losing $800,000 per day.

100th Anniversary of Establishment of Seat of the Federal Government.

AN ELABORATE CELEBRATION

Reception by the President to Governors of States and Territories-Parade of Military-Procession to the Capitol-Joint Exercises.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. WASHINGTON, December 12.-The National Capital is in gala attire today, in celebration of the 100th anni versary of the establishment of the seat of Federal government at Washington, and for the time being the wheels of government have ceased revolving and business, public and private is suspended, while the President and his cabinet, the Senate and House of Representatives, the Federal Judiciary, the Governors of many States, and a great concourse of citizens and visitors join in the elaborate festivities of the day. Perhaps never again will this generation witness such a significant gathering of the executive heads of the States, and of the Chief Executive of the country.

One hundred years ago the transfer of the seat of government was made from Philadelphia to Washington and the site previously selected by President Washington was taken possession of by the various branches of the government, President and Mrs. Adams driving over from Philadel-phia, and the Senate and House holding their sessions here for the first

The Day's Programme. The programme for the day began with a reception at 10 o'clock by President McKinley and the members of his cabinet, to the Governors of the States and Territories, at the Executive Mansion. This was followed by the unveiling in the East room of the model of the proposed enlarged Executive Mansion, which is to be a lasting memorial of to-day's celebration.

The other events were a parade from the White House to the Capitol, participated in by the President and other dignitaries and visiting and District militia, and joint exercises by the Senate and House in the hall of the House of Representatives. To-night a reception was tendered the Governors of the States and Territories at the Corcoran gallery. Plans for the New Mansion.

Colonel Bingham exhibited his mcdel of the proposed enlargement of the executive mansion and explained its details. He advocated Mrs. Harri. tory of the first century of the national oa's plans for extension, consisting, he said, of buildings about the size of the present house, one on the east side and one on the west side of the White House grounds, connected to the present mansion by curved wings—the quadrangle being completed by rebuilding the conservatories at the south end of the grounds. This maintains the present openness to sun and air toward the south and southwest, and preserves the beautiful unobstructed view to the south. This plan leaves the present mansion unchanged. He estimated the cost at $1,000,000.

The Speech Making.

President H. B. F. MacFarland, of he board of district commissioners, reviewed the century's development of the district. He contended that it is generally admitted that for the District of Columbia the present form of government is the best possible.

Governor Shaw, of Iowa, closed the speech making at the White House, with an address on the undevelop ment of the States during the 19th century. He said the close of the century finds Americans the best housed, the best fed, best clothed, best educated, best churched, most profitably employed, and the happiest people at any time or under any sky. The weather was ideal for the out door features of the celebration, with clear sky, bright sun and invigorating

As Congress had declared the day a national holiday for the District of Columbia, the whole city presented a holiday aspect, and the public turned During the early hours there was the sound of bands as the Virginia sections arrived to take part in the procession. Great Public Spectacle.

State troops and those from other

The great public spectacle was the parade and escort of the President from the White House to the east front of the capitol, where the President reviewed the marching thousands. At the head of the parade rode Lieute-nant General Nelson A. Miles, chief marshal, in full uniform, mounted on a superb charger. His staff included Brigadier General Breckenridge and many other prominent officials, mounted and in uniform, presenting a brilliant appearance. The military forces participating included artillery, cavelry, marines and sailors. First came the Second United States artillery, Lieutenant Colonel My rick Coleman, and three battalions of artillery from other regi-ments, The Fifth United States cavalry acted as the immediate escort of the President. Under Colonel William A. Rafferty, the troops were assembled along the north curb of Pennsylvania avenue fronting the White House, and as the President appeared the cavalry salute was given and the troopers wheeled into column of platoons and swept down the avenue to the capitol. With the President were the various members of his cabinet, in carriages. Then came the National Guard of the District of Columbia, three regiments strong, Brigadier General Harris commanding. Vieing with the Presidential party in the interest excited was the notable procession of Governors of the States and Territories, with their staffs and military escorts. This gave a touch of individual interest to the people from many States, and the chief executives were warmly welcomed all along the line of march. The Governors marched in the order of the admission of the States into the Union, Governor and especially invited guests followed, The parade moved from Pennsylvania avenue between two densely packed masses of humanity. As the parade reached the capitol it swung northward to the broad plaza on the cast front. The President took position on the reviewing stand directly at the easterly entrance of the capitol. He stood surrounded by his cabinet and prominent men of the Senate, House of Representatives and various walks of public life. The various divisions gave him the regulation salute.

In the Hall of the House

After the parade came imposing exercises in the hall of the House of Representatives, where gathered as Rives a splendid appetite, sound di Restion and a regular bodily habit that insures perfect health and great energy. Only 25 cents at R. R Bell-Lamy's drug store.

Heresentatives, where gathere as distinguished a company as its walls had ever held. On the floor were the President and the members of his cabinet, ex President Harrison, the members of the Senate and House, the ambassadors and ministers of foreign countries, in full court uniform, the chief justice and associate justices of the Supreme Court in their judicial robes, Lieutenant General Miles and many distinguished officers of the army and navy who had received the thanks of Congress, the Governors of more than half the States of the Union, and the commissioners of the District of Columbia, while the galleries were resplendent with the wealth and culresplendent with the wealth and culture of the national capital.

As a spectacle nothing could have been more imposing or impressive. The bright sun streaming through the ground glass ceiling, on which were the arms of the several States, flooded the hall with light and brightened the effect of the gowns of the ladies in the galleries, the glistening uniforms on galleries, the glistening uniforms on the floor and the elaborate scheme of decoration which submerged the hall in a sea of color. A company of "Jackies" from the government yacht Dolphin had literally swathed the hall in flags. The fronts of the galleries were hidden by them, the brass railings which marked off the lobbies were estooned with them, and the Speaker's marble rostrum was covered with them. Not more than half were American flags, and this fact was at first rather startling until the full beauty of the color scheme dawned upon the spectators. But below, circling the hall and walling in the distinguished assemblage, were the glorious buff and blue, under which the Continental army of Washington had achieved the independence of the American Republic, while fronting the audience, back of the Speaker's desk, was the beautiful silk flag of the republic and from it stretching away on either side, over the paintngs of LaFayette and Washington, blezed the Stars and Stripes. Circling the area in front of the Speaker's rostrum were large leather chairs for the President, his cabinet and the members of the Supreme Court. The Speakers.

Representative Richardson, of Ten nessee, minority leader in the House, delivered the opening address, on the transfer of the seat of government from Philadelphia. He said that the controversy that led up to that action was a contest between Hamilton and Madison, the North versus the South, and in the end Hamilton and his friends prevailed. But the decision was a compromise one, the condition of which was that the seat of government should go south to the banks of the Potomac. Prior to this action Congress had practically decided to lo cate the capital at Wright's Ferry on the Susquehanna. After rejection of Wright's Ferry, Germantown was the most promising location until the compromise effected over the question of the assumption of the debts of the States fixed it "on the river Potomac, some place between the mouths of the eastern branch and the Conogochea-

The address of Mr. Payne, of New York, the floor leader of the majority in the House, was on the "establish ment of the seat of government in the District of Columbia.

Senator McComas, of Maryland, followed with an address on the "his The fervid eloquence of Senator Daniel, of Virginia, who spoke on "The Future of the United States and Its Capital," repeatedly evoked applause. He said: "Ancient history had no precedent for the United States of America and modern history has no parallel. The United States contains the most diversified and assimilative elements that ever composed a great nation. Our domain is the best located. Our longevity projects itself to the fartherest reach of human speculation, and the future is gorgeous with every sign of hope and courage."

The Senator referred to the heart feelings of friendship the people have for each other, to the valor of the American soldier, to the strength of our electoral system as exhibited by the experience of over a century. Our only strife, he said, was over the her-itage which empire foisted upon our ancestors against their will and which the republic has removed forever. We are the foremost nation of the world, said the Senator. If our problems be mighty they grow out of our might and have the mighty to deal with them. Kind words were uttered by the Senator in behalf of the proposed enlargement tof the White House. An eloquent plea was made for a new building for the Patent Office, to stand on Capital Hill facing the Senate hall, as a companion piece to the Congressional Library. Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, concluded the exercises with a finished and scholarly oration.

The exercises were concluded at 6:15. After dissolving the joint session, Senator Frye turned the gavel over to Speaker Henderson and the House immediately adjourned.

POWERS IN PEKIN MAKE AGREEMENT

The Conditions Outlined by the German Government Formally Accepted.

SLIGHT MODIFICATION.

Clause Saying Demands Are Irrevocable Eliminated-U. S. Warships Making Preparations for Winter.

Supplies for Troops Landed.

By Cable to the Morning Star. LONDON, December 12.-The negotiations of the Powers in regard to the joint China note were concluded satisfactorily yesterday, all agreeing to the conditions identically as outlined by Count Von Buelow, the Imperial chan cellor of Germany, November 19th, with the exception of the introductory clause, saying the demands are irrevocable, which is eliminated.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.-The Lokal Anzeiger has a special dispatch from Pekin, saying that fire has destroyed the quarters of a number of officers about a thousand paces from Count Von Waldersee's headquarters.

London, Dec. 12.-The Pekin correspondent of the Daily Mail, wiring Tuesday and confirming the reports of the agreement as to the collective note, says that a committee of representatives of the Powers has been chosen to regulate the conference with Chinese plenipotentiaries.

Preparations for Winter.

WASHINGTON, December 12 .- To the danger of having any of our war vessels caught fast in the Gulf of Pechili, the Navy Department has reduced its representation in that quarter to two ships. One is the Monocacy, which has been ordered into a mud dock in the Pei river, near Taku, where she will serve as a station ship. The other is the New Orleans, which will ply between Shanghai, Che Foo eral Ghaffee's troops comfortably through the Winter.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, L. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Boils and Running Sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels; expels poisons, helps digestion and builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by R. R. BELLAMY, druggist. Every bottle guaranteed.
