MAROONED ON AN ISLAND. BY M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.

If you had a chart before you, you would see that Wakes island is a bit of a dot in the Pacific ocean, lying a little south of the regular sailing route between Honolulu and Yokohama. Now and then it is sighted by steamer or sailing vessel making the passage, but the great majority pass it by 200 miles to the north. The traders call there occasionally for water or fuel, but as there are no inhabitants there can be no trade. It is an island three miles long by one and a half broad, and it was thrown to the surface by an earthquake. There is but one spot where a landing can be made even in the calmest weather, as its shores are rocky and rise to a height of from 30 to 100 feet. Much of the island is wooded, and bowlders lie about everywhere, and it is probably one of the loneliest spots in the universe. For some reason which no one can explain no birds are ever found there, nor is there any animal life. The only living things are land crabs, and they are of such size and fierceness that traders have had to flee before them.

In the year 1861 the bark Restless sailed out of San Francisco on a voyage to Japan and China. She had just been purchased by a man named Robert Westall, who was little known, but had suddenly made a lot of money, and the cargo was also mostly his. He went with his ship, and a fate befell him which reads stranger than fiction of the sea. He was a landsman, knowing nothing of ships and sailors, and it transpired that the captain he selected was a thoroughly bad man, while the mate was little better. It was probably the captain's idea from the outset to get possession of the ship, but Westall's suspicions were not aroused until after they had called at Honolulu and resumed the voyage. Then he overheard observations among the crew which alarmed him, and he went to the captain with his statements. He was told without any beating around the bush that the bark was to change hands. He was to be marooned on her voyage as captain and crew decided. It was one man against 15, and of course he was helpless. Neither threats nor promises had the slightest effect, and when he stormed he was cautioned to hold his temper, or he would be set affoat in a small boat to perish of thirst and starvation. When the island was finally reached, Westall was ordered into a boat to be rowed ashore. Not a pound of provisions or an extra article of clothing was to go with him. He was not even to have the means of kindling a fire. Rendered desperate by the situation, he made a fight for it, but was soon knocked senseless by the blow of a capstan bar, and while in that condition was rowed ashore and dumped on the beach. When he recovered consciousness, the Restless was sailing away and was already miles distant.

Jules Verne has told how a sailor cast away on a desert island almost naked managed to live almost luxuriously and provide for his every want. The difference between imagination and reality was exemplified in Westall's case. He tried for days and days to produce fire by rubbing dry sticks together, but he never succeeded. He constructed a hut in the woods, but his food consisted of shellfish, roots and wild fruits, and there was no way to replace his clothing. He soon found fresh water, and he also made the discovery that the spot seemed accursed of all living things except the land crabs. As a rule these loathsome creatures did not bother him during daylight, but as soon as the sun went down they swarmed over the whole island. They were gigantic in size, and his only way of escaping them was to climb a tree. He built a platform among the limbs ten feet from the earth, and every night during his long stay he resorted to it. About once a month, generally at midday, the crabs would swarm by the million and hold possession of the island for two or three hours. At such times the noise made by their claws as they passed over rock and soil was almost deafening and gave him a great scare. While the man speedily recovered from the blow on the head given him on shipboard, his lonely situation soon began to tell on his mind. One day, at the end of three months, he found that he had forgotten his own name. It was two hours before it came to him, and then, fearful that it might go out of his mind for good, he carved his initials on the bark of a tree with a sharp stone. After making the circuit of the island three or four times he settled down near the landing place, and every day for weeks and months and years he hoped that some trader would put in or some ship send in her boat. Traders did call on three or four occasions, but he missed them. Once he was asleep in the tree top; again he was ill. On a third occasion the crabs were out in such numbers that soon as he had touched. You will wonder how a man could have lived for a month as Westall lived for three years. For eight months there was a species of wild fruit something like a plum. Now and then a fish was left by the tide for him to capture, but he had to eat them raw. There were oysters and mussels and limpets clinging to the rocks, but after awhile he could hardly force himself to swallow them. In six months his boots were gone and his clothing was in tatters, and as the days dragged away the man had it on his mind that his memory was failing him. When a year had gone by, he could no longer recall his identity. The initials on the tree stood for a dozen different names to him. Six months later he was little better than a wild beast. During his second year, had he thought to erect some sort of signal at the landing place—some such signal as a sailor was going to general the second was a sailor would have made that his mind that his can war, having been a member of the Astor Battery, serving in Manila, and who lived at an up-town hotel, committed suicide by shooting himself this evening at Sixth avenue and 41st street, dying almost instantly. At the time of the shooting the avenue and adjacent streets were filled with pedestrians. Two detectives had been informed that place—some such signal as a sailor would have made—he would probably have been rescued, as two or three traders came in for water, but he did not even heap up stones or set up a bush to attract attention. He had existed on the island three years and two weeks when the American whaling ship Jonathan touched there for water. I was in the boat first sent ashore, and while waiting for the water casks to arrive I followed a path up into the woods and discovered Westall asleep on his platform. I believed him at first to be some monster gorilla.

black, his hair was long and matted, BIG BLAZE IN THE and he was without clothing. As he came tumbling down I ran away and gave the alarm. That frightened him, and seven men of us spent half a day in his capture. He fought us with the greatest ferocity, and for a long time we could not make out his nationality. He chattered a queer jargon or sulked. and we had put in at a Japanese port before we could keep clothing on him. I was one of the apprentice boys on the ship, and, as the wild man had taken a great liking to me and I seemed to be the only one who could control him, the American consul advised that I be left behind with the man while the ship made a three months' circuit. Quarters were provided for us, and was instructed how to go to work in an effort to restore the poor fellow's memory. By this time he had let fall enough to satisfy us that he was either

English or American. We had also connected him in a way with the missing ship Restless. She had been reported as leaving Honolulu, but that was the last of her. I put up a blackboard and turned schoolmaster. chalked down the letters of the alphabet, made figures, drew pictures and tried to start his memory to work. For month I had no luck. The man's mind was as blank as night. He tried hard enough, and he used to break down and weep almost daily, but he could not get hold of the end of the string. I had about given up all hope when one day as I was going through the usual performance memory came back to him like a flash. He suddenly uttered a shout and sprang to his feet

"It has come! It has come! My name is Robert Westall, and I can remember everything!"

and as I turned on him it was to find a new look on his face and to hear him

So it turned out, but the shock of re covery brought about an illness that confined him to his bed for weeks. When he could relate his story, the consul went to work to find out what had become of the Restless. Inquiries were made at all the ports of China and Japan, but no news was obtained The search was still being prosecuted when a sandalwood trader from one of the Philippines brought the consu some wreckage picked up three years agone which proved that the bark had gone to the bottom in a gale encountered soon after salling away from Wakes Island. To this day there have been no tidings to alter this belief. The wratches who so coolly and deliberately planned the death of the shipowner by starvation did not live beyond a few days to enjoy their triumph. The three years spent on the island made an old man of Westall be fore his time, and he never was clear headed again, but he lived for 15 years after and managed to get together quite a little property and to spend his

A Good Snake Story. The latest authentic snake story is from North Glenwood Farm, near Easton, one of the country places in Talbot county, Md. The other day a big black snake was seen emerging from an ice pond. It was killed. A protuberance was noticed about the middle. The snake was chopped in two, and a porcelain turkey nest egg rolled out. Captain Noble Robinson was tenant on the farm last year. Mrs. Robinson raised turkeys, using chins eggs in their nests. She says that 14 months ago she missed the nest egg from a nest near the ice pond. She supposed a boy who had the range of the meadow had taken it. When the egg from the snake was shown to Mrs. Robinson, she identified it as one she had lost by a certain incised mark upon it. The snake had carried the china egg 14 months in his vermiform stores and stock of the Baltimore Bargain House, 212 to 220 West Baltimore street, were totally destroyed by fire this morning, and the stock and building of Grotjan, Lobe & Co., which adjoins it, were considerably damaged. The fire was discovered shortly after 3 o'clock in the morning and burned fiercely all the balance of the night and far into the morning, completely obstructing traffic in the busiest part of the city during the early morning hours. Several firemen made narrow escapes from death, but none was seriously injured.

The Baltimore Bargain House, of which Mr. David Epstein is the head, is one of the largest concerns of the kind in the South and had a large holiday stock on hand. Mr. Epstein is as yet unable to give an accurate estimate of the loss on stock, but roughly places it at $150,000. Grotjan, Lobe & Company estimate their loss at $5,000, while the loss on the buildings will probably swell the total to $300,000, all being fully covered by A Miraculous Escape.

Fireman John Flynn had a miracuous escape from being killed. He fell five stories from the rear of the western section of the series of buildings included in the Baltimore Bargain House. Flynn was on the roof of the building when, overcome by smoke, he lost his balance. His companions who saw him topple backward and fall felt sure that every bone is his body would be broken. In his fall the fireman struck three different times on a zig rag arrangement of rain spouts; each section that he struck gave way, but each broke the momentum of his fall. As he struck the piece of rain spout nearest the ground his fireman's hel met of alumnium fell off and beneath him. He struck upon the helmet mashing it as flat as a piece of paste board. When his companions picked him up he was unconscious, but revived shortly when it was discovered that the only injuries he had received were a number of bruises on his shoulders and a broken ankle.

HEAD END COLLISION.

Preight Trains Wrecked Near Richmond. Va.-One Man Killed and Three Others Injured.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. RICHMOND, Dec. 8.-A head end collision occurred between two freights on the Atlantic Coast Line, two miles below Richmond, to-night, in which one man was killed, three others were injured and an engine and a dozen freight cars wrecked.

Fireman Robert Boyd, whose home was in Weldon, N. C., was fatally crushed under the overturned engine; Engineer William C. Flippen, of Man-chester, Va., was badly scalded and severely though not fatally injured, and colored brakemen Ben Powell and Jesse Butts were less seriously hurt. Flippen was brought to his home in Manchester, the brakemen were brought to a hospital here, and the body of Boyd will be sent home to morrow to his heart-broken bride of a few months. The Coast Line train ran into a Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac shifting freight which had come from the belt line and was backing to the Coast Line track. To night's trains all came over the belt line.

Accident to the Express Train from Washington to New York. By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8 .- Twenty persons were injured to day in an accident on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad, at Gray's Baltimore, D. c. 8.—The extensive | Ferry station in West Philadelphia. An empty box car jumped the track and damaged several of the passenger coaches on the express train which leaves Washington at 8 A. M., for New York. Miss Emma Dougherty, of Chester, had both legs broken and is in a critical condition, and Miss Ella Little, also of Chester, was dangerously wounded. The Express train was made up of three Pullman cars, a dining car and six day coaches. The latter was filled with residents of Chester, Pa., and most of the injured were of their number. About thirty were injured by broken glass, but were not taken to the hospitals.

The Pullman cars contained Washington and Baltimore passengers, almost exclusively.

Deer Captured Alive in a Steel Trap-A Negro Drowned in Honey Creek. [Special Star Correspondence.]

ROCKY POINT, N. C., Dec. 8 .- For some time Mr. C. J. Miller has been sus pecting from appearances that depreda tions were being committed on his lettuce beds and he concluded that he would see if he could not catch the marauder. Night before last he set a steel trap under a slit that appeared to have been made by some sharp instrument through the canvas and next morning he was out bright and early and found a beautiful yearling deer fast in the trap. The doe is being tamed by Mr. Miller. A colored man named George Sanders was found this morning drowned in Honey Creek. His cloth-ing was left on the bank. He is said to be from Duplin county. An inquest was held over his remains and the verdict was that he came to his death by being drowned.

Little Consideration Given in England to Cable Dispatches Dealing With Probable Action of the Senate.

By Cable to the morning Star.

LONDON, December 8 .- The Nicara gua Canal creates only mild interest in England. The long cable dispatches dealing with the probable action of the United States Senate and its delibera tions are read by the general public with comparatively little interest and less understanding. The report that the British government has in any way indicated its willingness to ac-cept the amended treaty is utterly false. In fact, the indications, such as they are, point to Great Britain refusing to consider any amendment to what the Foreign Of-fice already believes to be a generous concession. To quote a high authority. "We would not have ab rogated the Clayton-Bulwer treaty for any other nation in the world. Unless all the traditions of British foreign policy are reversed I fail to see how we can afford to give away any more advantages, even to America."
