ENGLAND STILL LEADS

FRIDAY, - - FEBRUARY 1, 1901

England still continues to be and will for many years to come be the world's greatest cotton manufacturer, although she does not raise a pound of cotton and buysevery pound she manufactures. She will cease, some day to be great manufacturer she has been and is, for she is destined to be confronted with competition which she cannot withstand, competition from cotton_growing countries, the most formidable of which will be the United States and Russia, the former of which does and the latter of which will raise its own cotton. She will have other competitors, Germany and France, both of which are looking to the future and taking steps to supland. ply the cotton their mills will need by encouraging its culture in their African colonies. To what extent they will succeed in this remains to be seen, but it is said the climate and the soil in the colonies where the attempt is to be made are well adapted to it. If so then England will have several competitors in a field where she once had undisputed sway.

But as it is both Germany and France are making considerable progress in cotton manufacturing, for the former has increased her exports about one-third in the past decade, while the latter has nearly doubled hers. It is only within the past decade that the manufacturers of the United States have struck out for the world's markets, but within that time they have increased their exports from 136. 000,000 to 258,000,000 yards.

This is a very small showing along side of the 5,134,966,000 yards exported by English manufacturers ten years ago, and the 5,034,250,000 yards exported in 1900. It appears from these figures that England has already begun to feel the effects of competition, because the exports of last year have fallen below those o currents, and not at the flag that flies on the ship that holds the

We now have more mills than are needed to supply the home markets. and we must let them remain idle a part of each year and build no more, or we must build more and enter the fight in earnest for foreign markets. The four hundred textile mills that were built in this country last year is proof that our cotton manufacturers have their eyes on the world, and are going to reach out for it. Our people are not going to content themselves with growing cotton for other nations to spin and weave and get rich out of. That is not business. They are not any more likely to do that as a regular thing than they are to dig iron ore and ship it to the countries that manufacture iron. Mill building in this country has not yet fully begun, and it is nearly at an end in Eng-

SOMETHING IN WHICH THE SOUTH IS INTERESTED.

It is said that there are fewer catas a volunteer in one of the Minnetle raised in this country now, notwithstanding the increased demand, than there were ten years ago, attributed to the more contracted pasture ranges and to the exhaustion on some of the ranges of the grasses on which the cattle fed. As bearing want the public to know, upon this we clip the following from the New York Sun, because it is something in which the South is interested:

"A well known cattle dealer who recently wrote a review of the cattle market in 1890 expressed the opinion that, before many years, nearly all the beef cattle of the country would come from the corn belt States. He said that overcropping was rapidly destroying the grasses on the great plains, and that their importance as a source of beef was constantly diminishing

"There is no doubt that the very large cattle industry in the corn belt is capable of indefinite expansion. The farms, as a rule, are kept in a state of excellent fertility. A given area will supply enough forage and grain to send to market eight or ten times as many fat cattle as are now raised on the same area in the range States and Territories. Great Britain is buying from us every year over $30,000,000

This captain was accused of charging ex cessive fees for pilotage and appropriating some of the money to his own use. He had the editor arrested and it is claimed that investigation proved the charges to be unfounded. egislative Proceedings - Apportionmen for Senatorial Districts-Many Bills Passed Final Readings - Aycock's Text Book Bill.

Special Star Telegram. RALEIGH, N. C. Jan. 28 Mr. Willard introduced a bill to secure a proper assessment of property for taxation. It proposes to coufer on the Corporation Commission the power to see that the tax laws of the State are properly executed by the locil tax assessor's and listers. A clause requires a member of the commission to visit each county at least once a year, investigate the methods used, and see that proper valuations are observed. The commission in this capacity will be known as the Board of State Tax Commissioners. Mr. Willard says a law like this, enforced. and further provision of a special act for reassessment of property this year, will provide all the additional revenues the State will need. Mr. Winston introduced an impor tant bill, to restore to the State Board of Education its former power to reg ulate the use of text books in the pub lic schools. It encroaches somewhat on the ground covered by the famous Aycock bill. Other bills were introduced as fol lows: By Hoey, for government of th deaf, dumb and blind institution. By Nash, to incorporate Elizabeth City Water Works Company.

By Gattis, to extend the time to set tle the State debt. By Morgan, to regulate the stock lew.

By Gaither, to confer public power on deputy sheriffs. Also, to amend Chapter 93, Laws '93, relating to physicians' license.

The following important bills. among many, passed final reading: To allow commissioners of Brunswick county to levy special tax; for improvement of roads of Person county; to amend Chapter 106, Laws '85, relating to the stock law in Edgecombe; to allow High Point to issue

BABY'S BUSINESS

A healthy baby is comfortable; and that is enough for a baby. His business in life is to grow.

Aside from acute diseases, his food is the cause of most of his troubles. But Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil delivers him from it.

He isn't sick; only a little hitch, somewhere, in his machine for turning food into growth. It is a great thing to do, for a baby, to help him over a hitch with mere food-the emulsion is food that has the tact to get there. The tact to get there is medicine.

Other notable bills were: Dean, to incorporate the Blue Ridge and Atlantic Rail road Company; Baldwin, to regulate the employment of school children; Carr. to incorporate Snow Hill-Bank ing and Trust Company; Taylor, to allow Beaufort to levy a special tax; Duls, resolution requesting members of Congress to support the bill for purchase of Temple farm and the Moore house by the U. The following, among other bills, passed third reading: To provide of Carteret, opposed action now, bea jury list for Scotland county; to incorporate the Goldsboro Oil Co.

Bills passed second reading: To authorize Snow Hill to subscribe to the capital stock of the Great Eastern Railroad; to incorporate the Piedmont and Alleghany Railroad.

Other bills introduced were: By Foushee, to repeal Chapter 296 Laws of 1899; Dula, to re enact Chapter 363, Laws of 1893; Currie, to repeal Section 768 of the Code, conferring

The following bills were introduced By Stewart, to allow the town of Dunn to issue bonds; to pension W. A. C. Clark and W. A. Cullington; to epeal Chapter S12 of the Laws of 1895. By Watts, to authorize Iredell county o work convicts on public or private property.

By Wright, to amend section 783 of he Code; to place all Confederate soldiers over 55 years of age and not worth over $500 on the pension roll. By Craig, to allow the Asheviile and Spartanburg railroad to be consoli-

The Text Book Bill.

The Joint Committee on Education held a lengthy session this afternoon to consider Aycock's text book bill. The committee had previously referred the bill to a sub-committee for examination, and the committee reported back at the meeting to-day favorably, barring a few minor changes. The following is the report of the sub committee:

There was discussion favorable to the bill by Senator Avcock. J. B. Whitager, Jr., and others. Morris, cause he had a bill introduced which he desired considered along with the Aycock bill, as he thought it would take its place and cover the ground more satisfactorily.

The committee proceeded to con sider the Aycock bill by sections, and adopted the two first sections without change before a recess was taken to tomorrow afternoon. These prescribe that the Board of Education adopt the the books and methods by which these upon county commissioners power to shall be selected. Ten or more sections abolish the office of treasurer of the remain to be passed on. There will be which provides for a commission cous sisting of representatives from each of the congressional districts to pass upon books offered in competition by pub lishers for adoption. There is a strong probability that the whole fight will result in a determination of the committee and General Assembly to adopt the advice of Mr Mr. Venable, superintendent of schools in Buncombe county, to make as little change as possible in the general school laws and just provide all the money possible on longer school terms. The whole matter of books and school government will in all probability be referred to the State Board of Education.

Senatorial Districts.

Senator Morton, as chairman of the Committee on Senatorial Districts, has issued notice to all Senators, the present apportionment of whose districts are not satisfactory, to appear before his committee and state their grievances. It looks now as though there will be very few changes in the present status of districts.

The fight for New Hanover to retain her representation of two members in the House promises to be an interesting one. The chairman of the committee, McNeill of Cumberland, says he is anxious to have the representation remain unchanged if possible.

- Judge T. C. Fuller, of the United States Court of Private Land Claims, and well known to many people in this section, is seriously ill at the Buford Hotel, Charlotte, Men ten years ago, but not enough to show any serious crippling, while the immensity of the figures show the determination of the Britons to make a hard fight to hold the field where they once held full sway.

That they will make a hard fight may be taken for granted, for an industry that gives employment to so many people, makes business for so many ships, and brings in three or four hundred millions of dollars annually, will not be surrendered without a hard and prolonged struggle. The same reason that will keep the New England mills running and prevent the rapid removal of the industry to the South will prolong the life of the industry in England. There is too much money invested in the industry to let it die, and consequently the mills will be kept running as long as possible, even at much reduced profits. If there were any other promising industry that might be substituted the end might come sooner, but there is not. English thinkers who look from the past into the future realize that England's supremacy as a manufacturing nation, which means also as a commercial nation, is passing away, and no doubt some of her manufacturers also realize it, and hence the efforts which some of them have made for intervention by the Government to check competition in her colonial markets, where English manufacturers have found sale for so much of their output. In those colonies and other territory over which she has direct or indirect control English cotton manufacturers found a market for more than one half of their exports last year, and in not one of these did discovered that cotton seed meal, they have serious competition. They hulls, &c., an excellent feed for fatwill probably retain supremacy in ting cattle. But the fact that there India for many years to come, but is so much pasture range in the they must lose their grip on China, South, which is unsuitable for culfor although England has Hong tivation, with the mild winters in Kong as a base of operations, her which the cattle do not suffer from manufacturers will there be met by exposure as they do further North, the Russians, Japanese and Ameri- gives the South exceptional advancans, every one of whom will become more formidable as the contest progresses. "It is not only, however, that a great deal of the grass has been de stroyed by overstocking, but also that the ranges have been much curtailed by the advance of farmers and miners. Thus western Kansas, Ne braska and the Dakotas aud large districts in Montana and Wyoming, which were once free ranges, have ecome less and less available. The growing sheep industry, also, has led o contention between sheep and cat le for the same field. There is no longer room for all, as in the days when the wild West was virgin land and open pasture." The best beef that goes to the markets goes from the corn growing States, as stated by the Sun, even many of the Texas cattle and cattle from other ranges being driven into these States and fed until they are sufficiently fat to come up to the grade of first class beef. Cattle raising for shipment is an industry which has attracted but little attention in the South, and that but recently, since it' has been tages for the profitable pursuit of this industry, in which it can successfully compete with the great corn growing States of the West where the winters are severe, and the expense greater. With the natural advantages she has the South ought to become the great cattle-raising sec-

-Lexington Dispatch : Mr. Harvey L. Beck, of Cid, this county, has recently invented a machine that may revolutionize the chair bottoming industry. Mr. Beck says his machine will entirely do away with the present mode of making white oak splits. At present these splits are made wholly by hand and is very slow and tedious business. Mr. Beck claims his machine will split the wood, dress it up and prepare it ready for bottoming not a railroad in the State in the bands | chairs and will do the work of ten

> - Tarboro Southerner: A tleman who has recently been in the southeast corner of Martin county expresses the opinion that more illicit distilling is going on in that section than in any other portion of the State of like size. He does not preise the product of these moonshine factories. The corn whiskey which they make, he says, is execrable, and the rum, made from the commonest molasses is meaner than even the corn.
