SUNDAY SELECTIONS.

- Faith is the hand wherewith we take everlasting life-Latimer. - Christ is not valued at all unless He be valued above all .- St. Auquatine.

- We live to learn, and all the learning that amounts to anything is learning to live-aright.

- Many things are new in manner that are not new in kind; and, if men wish to do so, they will find much that is worth to observe.

- The world lives by work. The idler, therefore, must live as a sponge or a thief. Some idlers sponge on their ancestors and intercept the inheritance of their posterity.

- "No soul can preserve the bloom and delicacy of its existence without lonely musing and silent prayer, and the greatness of this necessity is in proportion to the great-ness of the soul."-Farrar.

- Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindnesses, and small obligations, given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart and secure comfort, -Sir Humphrey Davy.

- Progress seems to me indispensable as an evidence of being led by the Spirit of God. I need no assurance of the certainty of the promises. I know that a good work begun shall be carried on, but that is no con-solation till I feel it is begun.—Ann Taylor.

- Doing a little good is better than doing no good. But doing good as we have opportunity is even better than doing a little good, for every one of us has opportunity of doing good in more than one way, and usually to more than one person, every day of our lives. Therefore let us do good as we have opportunity, and let us watch for opportunities. Our power to find opportunities, and to meet them, will grow with its exercise. All of us can do a great deal of good.-S.S. Times.

Steinitz and Chess. Wilhelm Steinitz, the famous chess master, acquired his first knowledge of the game in a peculiar manner. As a boy he attended a Jewish school at Prague, and as a reward for his cleverness the masters permitted him to watch the chief rabbi and his assessor play chess. Only once a month was the game played, but it lasted several days, and young Steinitz astonished the players by remembering the position of each piece. Naturally he was soon far ahead of his venerable instructors.

Gems Have Organic Life. Scientists frequently remind us that gems possess life-organic life. Ev erybody knows that opals and pearls grow dull when worn by invalids, and it has been lately proved that rubies and the turquoise show the same sensibility. Pearls are most delicate and some money she had saved and go to another town several miles away to try to egain her health by resting. Her health improved but little, and she crushed her pride and wrote a letter to her wealthy father in the south, whose the sales have dropped off as rapidly wishes she had disregarded in marrying, begging him for the sake of her little girl to forgive her and take her and her child as they begun, and the obscure com-pany behind it finds it no longer possible, even by the most sensational Her letter was returned with "You have chosen your own course" written across the top. Several years passed by, and Millie drifted from one place to another, earning a little here and there, until she found home in a country town in northern Vermont, where she could do the village sewing and support in ease herself and Madeline, now 12 years old. Throughout the town the "widow and little Lena" were loved and respected. One afternoon as the child was playing in a field near the railroad track she heard a rumbling and, looking up, saw to her horror that a huge rock had slid down the opposite hillside directly on the move the rock and told the passengers they would not be able to resume their journey that night at least.

The passengers, thankful for being saved, asked the child where they could find lodging for the night, and she di-nected them to the village inn.

But one kind looking gentleman whom Madeline had noticed stepped up to her and, taking her hand, said: "I want first to tell this little girl's parents that they should be proud of her. Will you show me where you live, my dear?"

The child's home was very near, and as she opened the door she said, "Mam-ma, this is a" — But mamma fainted in the stranger's arms. After she was restored to consciousness is story was soon told. It was another

How many bones in the human face? Fourteen, when they are all in place. How many bones in the human head? Eight, my child, as I've often said. How many bones in the human spine? Twenty-four, like a clustering vine. How many bones in the human schest? Twenty-four ribs and two of the rest. How many bones in the shoulder bind? Two in each; one before, one behind. How many bones in the human arm? How many bones in the human arm? In each arm, one; two in each forearm How many bones in the human wrist? Eight in each, if none is missed. How many bones in the palm of the hand. Five in each of every one's hand. Now many bones in the fingers ten? Twenty-eight, and by joints they bend. How many bones in the human hip? One in each; like a dish they dip. How many bones in the human thigh? One in each, and deep they lie. How many bones in the human knee? Two in each war addates are
