NOT FOR RECIPROCITY.

FRIDAY. - NOVEMBER 22 1901

Senator Hale, of Maine, is one of the leading Republican Senators and wields considerable influence among his Republican colleagues. The utterances of such men are worthy of notice as indicative to a greater or less extent of the policies which his colleagues in Congress may favor. There has been much talk of reciprocity, and much talk of tariff revision, for there can be no substantial reciprocity without tariff revision, and whatever will be no material action on either.

Several days ago Congressman

Payne, of New York, in an interview with the President, took strong grounds against any tariff revision whatever. He was followed by Senator Quay, a friend of the Steel Trust, who advised against any interference with the trust of any revision of the tariff on trust controlled articles. Conventions of manufacturers have been held and they have sent committees to call upon the President to say that they were in favor of reciprocity, but opposed to any revision of the tariff that would open our markets to European competition. They all sing the song that the Dingley tariff is the perfection of tariff legislation, and that to it we are indebted for the grand strides our manufacturers have made and the remarkable expansion of our export business within the past few years. They all seem to have forgotten Mr. McKinley's last speech, delivered at Buffalo, when he said he thought the time had arrived when the protective duties could and should be removed from articles which it had been shown could be manufactured as cheaply in this as in any other country. The only Republicans in Congress who seem disposed to follow the advice of the President, whom they all professed to hold in such high esteem, are Mr. Babcock and the small number who agree with him, but they are characterized as "free traders" by Hon. Chas. H. Grosvenor, Mr. Mc-Kinley's friend, when Mr. McKinley was alive. We do not know of a single leading, representative Republican in active politics, with the exception of Mr. Babcock, who has unequivocally declared for tariff revision, and he goes only so far as to a lower price in foreign markets than they are in the home market. But we started to call attention to the views of Senator Hale as significant and indicative of the probable outcome of reciprocity and tariff revision. He is in Washington now, where he was interviewed on these and other questions, the substance of which is thus given by the Washington Post:

advocate revision on articles controlled by trusts which are sold for

"'I do not believe in commissioning vagrant negotiators to hunt up reci-procity treaties, and I do not believe Congress will be much troubled by

"In these few terse words Senator Hale, now back in Washington for the session of Congress, after the Summer spent at his home in Maine, expressed his conviction yesterday regarding the much-discussed instruments drawn by Special Commissioner Kasson, and now vigorously pressed from certain quarters for ratification this Winter by the Senate and House "Does that statement mean that you are opposed to all reciprocity?" the Senator was asked as he sat by a window of his Sixteenth street residence, talking of current politics 'I am not for the kind of reciproci ty which is sought for to-day by the free traders and by our foreign rivals who are affected unfavorably by the Dingley tariff bill,' he replied with de liberation. 'I believe in the kind of reciprocity which Mr. Blaine introduced and which encourages the interchange of our products that other countries do not produce for their products which we do not produce. "In demonstrating further his op position to the pending trade treaties, Senator Hale added: 'I do not believe in the reciprocity which cuts down the duty upon French and British West India and Canadian manufactures and products that compete directly with ours and that are grown and manufactured by labor half paid, as compared with our labor. I recognize fully the immense benefit to American labor and American iodustries conferred by the Dingley tariff bill, which has, by its encouragement to our own labor, enabled us to furnish the products of the farm, the mine and the mill to foreign countries at such rates as have already gained for us nearly all the trade of the civilized world that is worth having." Then you do not altogether sympathize with the propaganda for searching out new opportunities for trade!"

was remarked "I am not in favor of imperilling this condition," the Senator answered, "by a 'wild hunt for new markets," which have never had and never will have any trade of commerce at all comparable to the vast trade and the immense exports from the country to our great rivals. I am not a dreamer over what is called 'the trade of the Orient, which, aside from the trade with Japan, in which we are already fully established, cuts no figure compared with the trade of the civilized world, except in the imagination." This, as far as Senator Hale is concerned, or as his influence may go, is throwing a pretty wet blanket on the advocates of reciprocity, and the hunters for new markets. The kind of reciprocity he believes in that "encourages interchange of our own products that other countries do not produce for their products, which we do not produce," would be reciprocity not worth the time devoted to patching it np. We produce nearly everything worth talking about which any other country produces, save some articles that are produced in tropical countries and we produce some of these. That kind of reciprocity isn't worth talkng about. It would be simply a farce. But that is the only kind of reciprocity Senator Hale will favor, and that is the only kind that a good many of the Republican statesmen will favor. They will oppose any kind that will materially interfere with they Dingley tariff and the protection it gives to the manufacturers, or lessen the grip they have on the home market.

Here is an illustration of how their opposition to substantial reciprocity works. In the Eastern States to-day the people pay from twenty to thirty cents a pound for beef and other fresh meats, with some of the Republicans in Conother kinds of meat in proportion gress may do as to both of these There is opposition to reciprocity the indications are accumulating with Canada. If we had reciprocity and becoming stronger that there with that country the people of the East would get good beef, mutton. etc., for one-half the price they have to pay for it now, and the Western cattle raisers wouldn't be hurt a particle by it, for it isn't they who reap the benefit of these high prices, but the butcher kings who control the meat business and make their own prices. And so would the people of the East get numerous things consumed in the household from Canada, saving them millions of dollars annually paid to the trusts which control the food supplies. But that kind of reciprocity the Hale school of states-

A FAMILY COMBINE

Hon. Jeter C. Pritchard, who for seven years has been warming a seaf in the United States Senate, and had charge of the distribution of federal jobs in this State, does not seem to have done that to the entire satisfaction of all of his party associates. Some of seem - not only not entirely satisfied but are in high dudgeon about it. One of these, Mr. J. M. Patterson, secretary of the Republican Executive Committee, Western district, N. As you are an aspirant for re-election to the U. S. Senate I ask you in behalf of the Republicans of North Carolina to answer these questions and give to them a satisfactory reason for the course you have taken in the distribution of the patronage placed in your hands.

"Very truly,
"J. M. PATTERSON."

J. M. Patterson appears in the list of Hon. Jeter C.'s bounty beneficiaries, but perhaps the propounder of these interrogatories is some other J. M., or may be he didn't get a chunk in proportion to his size and appetite. However that may be, the exhibit he makes shows that the job-providing Senator looked well after his kinfolk.

But why find fault with him for for taking care of his own and "building up an office-holding ring?" Isn't he simply following the precedent of all the Republican statesmen who have bobbed up in this part of the public domain? They may not all have proved such generous family providers, but then perhaps they all didn't have so many kinfolk to look after. THE S. C. EXPOSITION.

Atlantic Coast Line Will Have Fine Service for Charleston's Big Show.

OFFICERS VISITED GROUNDS.

New Schedules Being Arranged for Holding the Crowds-Additional Southern Train for Wilmington Beginnins Next Monday.

Mr. T. M Emerson, traffic manager of the Atlantic Coast Line, who was in the city yesterday, gave a good account of what his company would do for Charleston in the way of fine trains for the Exposition Mr. Emerson has been at work on a special schedule, which will be in shape very shortly. On account of the heavy business which is sure to follow the opening of the Exposition the pas senger department will be prepared to ive a first class service in every particular, and with fast and fine schedules the Atlantic Coast Line will be able to get a big share of the travel. Mr. Emerson said yesterday that he was sending out great batches of advertising matter, and he believed that there would be splendid attendance at the Exposition. "Great interest is being taken in the enterprise," he said, "and the railroad people are doing their best to help out When our new service is arranged i will show marked improvements and Onarleston will get all the benefit possible." The new train between Cnarleston and Wilmington will be put on next Sunday, and beginning December 1st, dining cars will be operated by the Coast Line between Charleston and New York. Slight changes will be made in the schedules. The Florida special will make the first trip out from New York early in January and this train will probably do the heaviest business ever known. While in the city yesterday the visiting officials of the Atlantic Coast Line, and the Directors of the Charleston and Western Carolina Railway Company made a trip to the Exposition grounds and were charmed with the big show. It was rather disagreeable weather to be out, but the visitors were anxious to see the work. Col. C. S. Gadsden took charge of the party and pointed out the various buildings from the window of his carriage.

CASTORIA For Infants and Childre The Kind You Have Always Pought Signature of Chart Hillither CORN FODDER ROOF.

SHEAP AND COMFORTABLE SHELTER FOR LAMBS.

When Properly Built, Will Not Leak. Affords Good Protection From Driving Winds-Fodder Can Be Fed When Shelter Is No Longer Needed.

For three winters I have been feeding lambs bought in the fall for winter market, writes an Ohio farmer to Rural New Yorker. To succeed well with them they must be kept dry and protected from driving winds As I have built a number of sheds covered with straw, I can judge from experience as to the value of this shed I find it much more easily built and much cheaper and, as straw sheds are commonly built on the farm, much superior as proof against rain and cold winter storms.

Last year I had a shed covered with fodder 65 feet long and 16 feet wide, covering 1,000 feet of space, using 500 bundles of fodder, tied with strings, 4 feet long, or 65 shocks of fodder 14 hills square. This roof never leaked. By April 1 last year the lambs fed at the barn had gone to market, and the lambs sheltered by the temporary shed moved to the barn. During April the fodder roof was fed off to the stock in the adjoining lots, leaving the skeleton frame for use again this year. Last fall I extended the shed in length to 100 feet, using 135 shocks of fodder cut 14 hills square, making 1,000 bundles, covering 1,600 feet of floor space This shed stands north and south, the north end coming within ten feet of low down barn. A post and rail and post and plank fence is used for the west side of the framework of the shed. The cracks between the rails and planks were covered with cheap plank to keep the lambs from eating the fodder through the cracks after it is set against the fence. The framework is constructed for a comb roof. The center row of posts is seven feet high. It should be nine or ten feet, made from white oak poles about eight inches in diameter at the butt. They are set 21/2 feet in the ground in a hole bored with a seven inch post auger, the posts being dressed to fit the hole. The soil is hard clay, so the posts stand firm.

The sides are about four feet high, the rafters on the west side resting on the top rail or plank of the fence. They should rest on top of posts about one foot higher. The center posts are set the same distance apart as fence posts and a rafter for each post, making them nine feet apart for the post and rail and six feet apart for the post and plank fence.

For the fodder to rest on rails are put across the rafters. The east side of the shed is open, the west made

CORN FODDER SHELTER. tight by laying fodder two or three bundles deep horizontal with the fence and then standing a row of bundles against these, leaving them over against the fence, bending the tops over the fence. The first course of bundles for the roof extends over this course set against the fence to shed the water off it. In covering this shed the courses of bundles were started at the north end and laid to the south The first course is only one bundle thick. The butt of the bundles are

After putting on the first course I found that to top the next course directly on to this would make the roof too flat. To prevent this I laid a course on the rails above the first course. This gave a pitch for the second course the same as the first. Before putting on the next course I raised the pitch of the roof again with fodder. As nearly all the winds here blow from the west and southwest I put the fodder on the east side first, making the course at the top as near perpendicular as possible. To do this it was necessary to lay bundles lengthwise at the comb of the roof. Then the west side was covered, the top course standing up against the course on the east side, but a little higher. This keeps the wind from blowing the bundles off the east side. As all the bundles are laid from the north end toward the south each bundle as it goes down binds the preceding one, so if the wind takes them off it must commence with the last ones laid down. But to make sure of their staying on the top course has a strand of wire running the whole length of the shed, drawn tight with a wire stretcher. The roof so far has remained intact. For a shed of this kind the steeper the roof frame can be made the less fodder it will take to cover it. It is useless to try to put on such a roof without bundling the fodder. For this shed the fodder bundles were taken from the farm wagon, but if required to be built much higher I would use my hay stacking derrick and hay slings to lift the bundled fodder on to the rick. As I have the shed, after the frame is made three men should take the bundled fodder from the shock and put on the roof in two days. I would not try to put it on when dry, but would work in the morning, when the fodder is damp, or when the weather is cloudy and damp. It is a cheap shed that is within the reach of every

TRAIN WRECK ON SANTA FE ROAD.

Collision of East and West Bound Trains Near Franconia, Arizona.

THREE ENGINES EXPLODED.

Cars Took Fire and Burned Up ... Seven Trainmen Were Killed - Three Passengers and Fourteen Trainmen Injured-An Awful Scene.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star Los Angeles, Cal., November 20. -A fatal wreck occurred on the Santa Fe railroad, one mile west of Franconia, Arizona, a switch station twenty miles east of Needles, Cal., early this morning. Seven trainmen were killed, three passengers and fourteen trainmen injured. Limited trains, east and west bound, crashed together while running at full speed. The east bound train was drawn by two engines, while the west bound train had but one loco-

The three engines were crushed and slown to pieces by an explosion which followed the collision. Both trains were made up of vestibule cars of the heaviest kind, and while they stood the terrific shock well and protected the passengers to a great extent, several of he cars took fire at once and burned ip The dining car, one of each train, one Pullman and two composite cars were destroyed.

The collision is said to have been due to a disregard of orders by the crew of the west bound train, though full particulars on this point are as yet lacking. From all however, it is gathered that the east bound train had orders to take the siding at Franconia and await the passing of the west bound flyer, which was running two hours late and try ing to make up the time. The east bound train failed to reach the siding, and as the west bound train did not wait for it the two trains came to gether without warning and with an awful crash. The boiler of the west bound engine is said to have exploded immediately after the crash, scalding to death those of the engine crews who had not been killed outright. A scene of awful confusion followed the crash. The massive engines piled up in an indescribable mass of proken and twisted steel, while the scalding steam hung in a dense, suf focating cloud over the debris, from which the agonizing cries of the injured and dying enginemen could be heard. The heavy Pullman and com posite cars jammed the baggage cars upon the heated pile of debris, carrying death to the dining still at large but bloodhounds are on car crews and setting the cars afire. From the meagre details of the scene gathered from the passengers, t is learned that the sleeping cars, with one or two exceptions, suffered slightly, and as a result the passengers were afforded comparative immunity from injury. So far as learned only three passengers, all from California, suffered injuries of a serious character, the terrible results of the wreck being confined almost entirely to the train crews and the employes of the dining car service. The west bound limited carried a ull passenger list from Eastern cities. but it appears none was injured.

THIRTY LIVES WERE LOST.

Fire in a Colorado Mine - Seventeen Bodies Have Been Recovered-Fire Accidental and Soon Extinguished.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. TELLURIDE, Colo., Nov. 20.-By a ire in the bullion tunnel belonging to the Smuggler-Union Mining Company probably thirty lives were lost to day. Seventeen bodies have been recovered. The fire, which is known to have been accidental, started early this morning in the buildings at the mouth of, the unnel. At this point is located the pper terminal of the tramway to the company's new mill at Pandora, and it was in the bunk house attached that the fire started. From this it spread to the terminal station, which, with its ore bins, machinery and supplies, s a mass of ruins. The day shift of 200 men had enered the mine and reached their stations when the fire broke out. The tunnel acted as a flue, and a great volume of smoke poured in, filled the slopes. About 170 of the men succeeded in reaching safety by a near exit. The fire rapidly burned itself out, but the mine was so filled with smoke that it was six hours before rescuing parties could penetrate the slopes where the less fortunate were. Seventeen dead have been removed from the mine to-night. The engineer, Hugh J. O'Neill, was found alive, but is not expected to recover.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY REPUSES.

Will Not Consent to a Public Subscription

No list of the dead is obtainable at this to Pay His Expenses. By Telegraph to the Morning Star KNOXVILLE, TENN., Nov. 20.-Folowing the report that the court of nquiry would cost Admiral Schley $20,000, the Knoxville Sentinel or November 18th sent the admiral dispatch asking if he would consento a public subscription to pay the amount. To-day the Sentinel seived a personal letter from Admiral Schley, the purport of which was that he cannot accept the offer. He says the report as to the cost is a mis take, as the amount is not so great. He suggests that the matter is too delicate to discuss, and trusts that his friends will appreciate his position

ALLEGED MURDERER GAVE HIMSELF UP.

Will Mathis, Charged With Killing Two Deputy Marshals Near Oxford, Miss. Mob Violence Peared.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. Oxford, Miss., Nov. 20.-Will Mathis, who is charged with the murder of two deputy marshals, Montgon. ery by name, walked into the little town of Dallas, twelve miles south of here to-day and surrendered to a justice of the peace and two citizens Mathis had been closely pursued by a large posse with bloodhounds, and realizing that his capture was certain the fugitive voluntarily gave himself up and asked for protection. He was turned over to the posse and started for Oxford, but it is understood at a late hour to-night that he will not be brought to this city until to-morrow the officers fearing mob violence. When the news of the surrender reached Oxford the streets were immediately filled with people and it tense excitement existed for a time. Bonfires were built and many threats of summary vengeance against the alleged murderer were heard on all sides. Addresses were made by the local officers and cool headed business men, and at 11 o'clock to-night the excitement has subsided, and it is believed that the threatened lynching has been averted. The local officers announce that they will protect the prisoner at all hazards. OXFORD, MISS., Nov. 20.-A posse of citizens from this place brought Geo. Jackson to Oxford late this evening and placed him in the county jail. He is the brother of Bill Jackson who is also in jail for being an accessory to the killing of the two Montgomerys George Jackson, it is said, was will Mathis until this morning. Mathis is his track and a posse of twenty-five men armed with Winchesters is pursuing him. He is thought to be Yocana bottom. The negro Olando Laster, placed under arrest Sunday, has confessed before the coroner's jury the details of the horrible crime The negro states that Mathis induced the officers to spend the night at his house and shot them after they bal gone to bed, the negro holding the lamp. The negro procured the gun for Mathis from Mat. Owens, Mathis father in-law. Toe latter loaded the gun with buckshot before sending at

to Mathis. Mrs. Mathis has confessed to being in the house when her husband die the killing. She left for her father's soon afterwards and Mathis robbed the bodies of watches, money and pistols, pulled them on the floor, placed a straw mattress over them and set it on fire. Mrs. Mathis and the negro both admit that Bill Jackson, who left before the shooting occurred, tried to prevail on Mathis not to commit the A guard was placed around the county jail last night, as there were threats of lynching the prisoners

Allowances Made for Her Proper Care and Maintenance in Dr. C. F. Mc-Donald's Sanitarium

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. NEW YORK, November 20.-Dr. Charles F. . CDonald was to day awarded $25,000 a year by Justice Clarke, in the Supreme Court, for the proper maintenance and care of Mrs. Ida M. Flagler, who has for a con siderable period been a patient in the doctor's sanitarium. He was also allowed $5,000 for his services as com mittee of Mrs. Flagler's person. This was done upon the recommendation of Dr. McDonald that Mrs. Flagler should be placed in a position which, in accordance with her income and the manner in which she was accustomed to live, she could maintain her own establishment. Mrs. Flagler was until recently the wife of Henry M. Flagler. Justice Clarke, upon the application of Charles F. Shourdes, Stephen C. Shourdes and Mrs. Mattie A. Johnson, the two brothers and sister of Mrs.

Flagler, allowed them $4,000 a year each to be paid them out of her income. The reason given for making the allowance is that Mrs. Flagler was in the habit of making valuable presents to her brothers and sister, who are not in affluent circumstances, and that they, to whom the estate will revert upon Mrs. Flagler's death, are in need of an allowance from her estate. - Greensboro Record: Mrs. Victor C. Barringer, of North Carolina, died at her home in Washington, D.C., on Sunday evening last. She was of a distinguished North Carolina family and the wife of the late Judge Victor C. Barringer. She was 76 years of age and was reared in Morganton, N. C., but had lived in Washington since her husband's death. A Deep Mystery.
