PANAMA ROUTE.

Senator Mitchell Denounced the Methods of the Panama Canal Company.

MOST CORRUPT IN THE WORLD

The National Forest Reserve-Senator Depew's Speech in Advocacy of the Bill--Proceedings in the House. The Anti-Anarchy Bill.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star WASHINGTON, June 7. - After transacting some routine business and discussing for a time the bill to relieve shippers from the London dock charges the Senate resumed consideration toculties of the route, which he regarded as very serious, he entered upon denunciation of the methods of the clared, were the most corrupt in the history of the world. He warned Congress hat no better way could be found to defeat the construction of any canal than to United States could have no connection with the Panama route without becoming involved in the intricacies of the French courts from which it would find it impossible to extricate itself. He declared that any connection this country might have with the Panama proposition would result in the defilement of the government.

is stated by the committee reporting the measure that "it may fairly be urged that the estab-lishment of this forest reserve in the region of the Southern appalachian mountains is a matter of great national importance, and that owing to the peculiar conditions existing in this region the establishment of this reserve need not necessarily be accepted as a precedent for the establishment of similar reserves elsewherein the East."

At the conclusion of Senator Depew's remarks, Senator Hale said that the Senate could not fail to be impressed by the great importance of the subject. He had not been aware of the extent of the land to be purchased, but he thought that some notice ought to be taken upon the matter at this session.

London Docks Charges Bill.

The Senate then began the consideration of the measure commonly known as the London dock charges bill. In response to an inquiry from Sentor McCumber as to what guaranty the shippers of this country would have, in the event of the elimination of the London dock charge, that the Atlantic freight rates would not be increased, Senator Nelson replied that there was no guaranty and could be none. LOOSE MARRIAGE TIES.

The Mohammedan Husband May

Break His at Will. The Koran says the husband may divorce his wife without assigning any reason or giving any notice. He may rebuke, imprison and scourge her. He may twice divorce and twice take back the same woman, but if he a third time divorce her she cannot again become his wife until she has married and been divorced from some other man. (Sura, II, 230.)

Yet Ibrahim Halebi says: "In the absence of serious reasons no Musselman can justify divorce in the eyes of either religion or the law. If he abandon his wife, or put her away from simple caprice, he draws down upon himself the divine anger, for 'the curse of God,' said the prophet, 'rests upon him who re-pudiates his wife capriciously.'" Practically, however, a Mohammedan may whenever he pleases, without assigning any reason, say to his wife, "Thou art divorced," and she must then return to her-parents. (Amir' Ali, Personal Law of Mohammedans, 332; Lane, Modern Egyptians, I, 150, 247.)

Among most of the Mohammedan peoples divorces are very frequent. According to Dr. Van der Berg, an even more fatal influence is exercised on family life in the east by this laxity of the marriage tie than by polygamy. In Cairo, according to Lane, there are not many men who have not divorced one wife if they have been married for a long time, and many men in Egypt have in the course of two years married as many as twenty, thirty or more wives, while there are women advanced in age who have been wives to a dozen or more men successively. In Morocco a man repudiates his wife on the slightest provocation and marries again. Among the Moors of the Sahara it is considered "low" for a couple to live very long together. (Westermarch, 519, 520.) On the other hand, in India, among the Mohammedans, divorce is seldom heard of .- Green Bag.

The consulting room of a Carlsbad physician seems about the last place in the world for humorous incidents. Yet this is what happened in one of these haunts of the sick the other day. A new patient, after having been thoroughly cross examined by the doctor, had received minute instructions as to diet, etc., and was dismissed with this injunction, "As for smoking, you must limit yourself to three cigars daily; three light cigars and no more." After a few days the patient appears again in the consulting room. "Well, and how are you?" asks the physician.

"I should be all right," replies the patient, "but your orders about smoking are difficult to follow." "I am sorry," the doctor says categorically, "but no more than three cigars a day. You must just put up with it."

"But, doctor, it really is an awful business. Wouldn't two a day do? I feel ill every time I smoke.' "Why, man, what in the world do you smoke for at all if that is the case?" the doctor roared. "But, doctor, wasn't it you yourself who said 'three cigars a day and no more?' Of course I thought they were part of the cure and began upon them, though I've never in my life taken to smoking." Tableau!-Westminster Gazette.

Stilization of a Phonograph During the Period of Courtship. "No, I never have a bit of trouble with my husband," remarked the frail little woman with the intelligent face. "In fact. "Would you mind telling me how"-"Not a bit! Always glad to help any one steer clear of the rocks. First of all, you must know that a man in love is the biggest sort of a fool and says things that makes him almost wild when he hears 'em in after life. Why He Kept Silence. At an evening party a gentleman related an adventure in which he had been the principal actor, and, seeing unmistakable shadows of doubt on the faces of his hearers, he appealed to a friend who was present and who had witnessed the circumstances to corroborate his statement. To his utter confusion his friend denied all knowledge of the affair. Meeting some time afterward the suspected Ananias said:

"Is it possible that you can have forgotten the circumstance to which I referred at Mrs. A.'s party the other night?" "Certainly not, my dear fellow," replied his friend, "but I could see that every one present looked upon you as an incorrigible liar, and I had too much regard for my character to risk being taken for an-

Becomes Ignited.

Quick, intelligent work is imperative when a person's clothing becomes ignited. Your first move should be to get the person at length upon the floor. The easiest and safest way to accomplish this is by tripping. Then roll him over and over. This alone will go a long way toward smothering the flames, but at the same time lay hold of a rug, coat or anything thick with which the operation can be more speedily and effectually completed. A pailful of water will answer the purpose, perhaps, but do not take even ten seconds to obtain it. It is of vital importance that you make use of the nearest means. Strive to keep the flames away from the upper half of the body, for that is the most vulnerable portion of the human anatomy. Should your own clothing catch fire it will require all of your courage and training to enable you to act rationally. The natural and almost overpowering impulse is to run. Don't; it only makes a bad matter rapidly worse. Lie down at once and roll yourself up in anything which will assist in smothering the flames. Fire has a strong upward tendency, and it will soon envelop your whole body if you remain on your feet. The danger of your inhaling the flames is also greatly increased and internal burns are pretty uniformly fatal.

So far I have used the masculine pronoun, but all of my directions apply with even more force to the women. It is a sad fact that threefourths of those who suffer from burns belong to the fair sex. This is attributable, in a large measure, to the inflammable nature of their dress.—Good Housekeeping.

Cocoa, Cacao and Coca.

"Speaking of confusion in the use of words," said a visitor to the city from Nicaragua, "I read a story some time ago which was credited to a physician, and I was impressed with the belief that he was either misquoted or that he had got slightly mixed in his botany. He was talking about coca, cocaine, coco cola and things of that sort, and he attempted to straighten out some of the popular errors, but instead of doing so he made matters worse.

"Now, I am engaged in the business of a cacao planter near San Carlos, and I believe I ought to know something about the business. Cacao is one thing, cocoa is another and coca is still another. Cocoa is the ordinary cocoanut. Cocoa is not made from the seed of the chocolate tree, but chocolate is made from the seed of the cacao, the broma cacao. It is a rather curious fact that this word cacao is invariably spelled incorrectly in nearly all advertisements. Any good botanical dictionary will show you the difference between cocoa, the cocoanut palm; cacao, the broma cacao, and coca, the cocaine shrub. Yet these words are commonly confused and misspelled in newspapers and other advertising mediums, and the members of the medical profession, it seems, are not exempt from the same mistakes. They are separate things, with separate properties, and have separate uses."-New Orleans Times-Demo-

ROADS OF AMERICA.

Progress In the Building of Highways In the Country.

The influence of the mechanical steed on our civilization is best exemplified in the growth and improvement of the country highways, which, in a country that stretches between two oceans and includes within its boundary nearly all the climates and physical characteristics of a mighty continent, have been slowly evolved from the almost indistinguishable trail of the pioneer settlers into roads of high engineering skill and achievement, says Gunton's Magazine. The American country roads have lagged in the development of the nation's material growth and expansion until within the past few years. With the exception of the few old postroads, established in colonial days, when the stagecoach was the only vehicle for comfortable travel, there were not more than two or three country highways of passable physical condition, summer and winter, score of years ago in the United States. Military roads were the earliest in ex stence in all countries, and the protective necessity of having different parts of the empire joined together by highways over which an army could be quickly moved inspired most of the great engineering feats in roadbuilding of the past. This factor had little or no influence in American industrial life. Our boundaries did not abut those of powerful nations with whom we might at any time wage war; consequently no thought of establishing lines of fortifications, connected by military highways, ever entered the heads of our most warlike legislators or presidents. Military roads were not features of our national development. and, though potent factors in the growth of many European states, they were almost nil in American history. The modern roadbuilding movement is attributed to the bicycle and automobile, but it must be said that it was rather the committions of the times, which were ripe for the change, that made the popularity of these mechanical steeds. Railroad construction had almost reached its limit, important trunk lines were already, paralleling each other so that they cut disastrously into each other's profits, and the most important parts of the country were joined together by the ribbons of steel. Railroad stocks were declining in value, profits were becoming reduced, and capital was chary of investing in new ises of this character. What the country needed was more feeders-country roads leading from farms, mines and producing lands. For months in the year the great agricultural sections were shut off from the railroads by almost impassable country roads. Mills and manufacturing plants located on streams or water that furnish excellent motive power could not market their products in winter. The logging camps and the mining companies were likewise helpless in winter. Thus for a good portion of the year the country commerce was paralyzed and the producing centers were cut off from the world.

Wright, the commissioner of labor, to get his views on the situation, and also as to what might properly be done by the government looking to a settlement of the controversy. It is probable that other conferences will be held and the President kept advised of the situation. He will be

The house was "handy to the street car line" and in good repair. There was the proper number of closets and the rental was reasonable, but before coming to terms the house hunting matron said to the agent:

at all!" she exclaimed. "I want to find a neighborhood where there won't be any boys but mine!"

1,566,220 Pairs. What does this mean? It means that the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co.'s methods must be up-to-date in every sense

In this era of sharp competition among manufacturers, when each one is trying to make their best, this firm, over 25 years old, has in the past four years more than doubled their already large business. This is phenomenal. With this Shoe for Men and Boys, and Duthenhofer's, (the counterpart of Douglas) for Ladies, with many lower grades proportionately good, is it any wonder that our business is increasing?

It does not take the public long to find where They can get the Best Shoes for the least money.
