On May 2, of this year, I went with Mr. Latimer to Tuthill's residence in Vanderbilt avenue and there I was told by Mr. Latimer that it was Tuthill's house, and I was to keep a watch on it, and report Tuthill's movement to him. On May 4, I saw Tuthill go to Latimer's house at about 5:30 or 6 o'clock. Latimer was accustomed to reach home as late as 6:30 or 7 o'clock. Parker testified that on one occasion Tuthill went to see Mrs. Latimer at her home and remained there until the middle of the afternoon. Before Parker left the stand District

DISTURBANCES IN FRANCE

Every Prospect of Presh Outbreaks in Paris Against the Government's Enforcement of the Law.

By Cable to the Morning Star

Paris, July 23.-There is every prospect of fresh disturbances to-day, as a sequel to yesterday's clerical outbreaks as protests against the governmen's enforcement of the law against unauthorized congregations. It now appears that three hundred persons were arrested and numerous prosecutions are pending, though the majority of the prisoners were released. Fresh meetings to protest in favor of the religious orders are expected to be held to-day, while the radical and socialist papers are urging the republicans to meet at the Pantheon for a counter demonstration.

Several hundred persons, chiefly women and children, created a demonstration to-day in front of a church in the Ternes quarter, while some expelled sisters were departing. The police interfered and saveral of the crowd struck them with sticks Among those arrested were Deputies Pagliessi, Conti and Archdeacon They were subsequently released. Paris, July 23.-A serious disturbance occurred at half-past 10 o'clock this evening on the terrace at the Cafe de Muree de Cluny. The police cleared the cafe. Several persons were injured and twenty-five arrests were made. Some disorderly meetings of Catholics were held during the course of the evening, resulting in soffiues and the making of arrests.

Anti-clerical meetings in the Latin quarter this evening led to some effervescence, out no noteworthy disturbances. A few students, followed by a crowd composed of the rougher element, marched up and down the boulevard St Michael till a late hour, chanting anti-clerical refrains and shouting, "Down with the priests and the Pops." But these fled at the sight of the mounted guards and patrols. The greatest excitement in the provinces is in the clerical stronghold of Brittany, where the peasants have gathered in front of the nuns' schools in several places and declare they will not allow the nuns to be expelled.

A member of the Cockrill faction arrived here to-day from Jackson, and after asking that his name be withheld, because its publication would mean his assassination, said that the assassins of James Cockrill, who was shot there on Monday, are known. He claims that four men were in the court room when the shots were fired, and that two fired from different windows simultaneously. These men were aided to escape during the night and their whereabouts are now known. He claims the Cockrill faction will not undertake any assassinations, but will be inclined to wait until the law is able to bring the murderers to justice.

Interesting Statistics Compiled at the Adjutant General's Office, Washington.

TOTAL NUMBER OF TROOPS

Ten Officers and Seventy-two Enlister Men Committed Snicide--Ninety-two Murdered-Total Deaths 139 Officers and 4,016 Men.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. WASHINGTON, July 28. - Major James Parker, of the Adjutant Genreal's office has compiled some interesting statistics regarding the insurrection in the Philippines. It appears that there were 2,561 engagements with the nemy, more or less serious, between February 4, 1899, which is the date of the battle of Manila, and April 80, 1901, fixed as the virtual downfall of the insurrection. The larger proportion of these fights were attacks from ambush on the American troops or skirmishes in which only small detachments took

"In almost no case in these engage-ments" says Major Parker "did Amer-ican troops surrender, or have to re-treat, or have to leave their dead and wounded in the possession of the enemy, notwithstanding that in many cases the percentage of loss was high."

The number of troops that have Attorney Clarke made the following been transported to the Philippines and have arrived there up to July 16th last, was 4,135 officers and 123,803 men. The average strength, taken from monthly returns, for the period of the insurrection was approximately Woman Stabbed to Death by an Unknown Man in Hotel at Pittsburg, Pa. Murderer Escaped.

Hy Telegraph to the Morning Star PITTSBURG, July 23.—One of the most mysterious murders in the city's history was committed to-night in a drinking room in the rear of the Traction hotel. The victim is Agnes King, of 139 Crawford street. The murderer who escaped is unknown. The story is that the woman and man had been drinking together since Monday at the different saloons in the neighborhood, and the carousal ended in a quarrel this afternoon which was relewed to-night when the couple met on High street. The woman went into the hotel bar and took a seat in the rear room. The man followed her and asked her if she would "Keep up the bluff." This question was repeated three times and each time answered in the negative. Quick as a flash the man pulled a dirk and made a lunge at the woman, cutting her under the ear. A second slash severed the jugular. Then the murderer stepped out a side-door and escaped. At midnight he was still at large. The victim died while in the patrol wagon on the way to a hos-

The only witness of the murder was woman, who happened to be in the room when the couple entered. She says the whole affair was enacted so quickly she can give no description of the murderer.

DEPUTY SHERIFF KILLED.

Shot Down by a Desperado Named Johnson, Alias Jeffcoat, in Alken County, S. C.—Posse in Pursuit.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

SAVANNAH, GA., July 23.-News reached here to-night from Aiken, S. C., that Deputy Sheriff Ahl, of Aiken county, S. C., was killed last night by the desperado Johnson, alias Jeffcoat, who four months ago killed a man named Wilson at Herndon, Ga., and on July 16th killed Deputy Sheriff Joe Flanders who tried to arrest him near Midville, Ga. After the murder of Deputy Flanders, Jeffcoat escaped into the Ogeechee river swamp. He was next heard of in Aiken county, 3. C., a few days ago. Deputy Sheriff Chester Ahl located him, and with a posse went to arrest him. As the party rode up to the house where Jeffcoat was stopping, he opened fire and ran. The posse, headed by Ahl, pursued. Ahl was mounted. He gained on the fugitive and was about to run him down when Jeffcoat dodged to one side. As Ahl went by, the desperado shot him in the back. Ahl fell and died in a few minutes, and Jeffcoat escaped in the woods. Sheriff Alderman with a large posse and hounds is in pursuit. Ahl's body has been taken back to Aiken. Macon, Ga., July 28.—A Swains-boro dispatch to the Telegraph says that Ben Turner, alleged accomplice of Jeffcoat, attempted suicide by cutting his wrist arteries in jail to-day. He declared he was fearful of being lynched.

Sloop With Pleasure Party on Board Capsized -- Two Persons Lost Their Lives. Two Others Scriously Injured.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. SAVANNAH, July 23.—The sloop "Lovell Dell," owned and sailed by Captain Allen N. Calder, of Thunderbolt, and having on board a pleasure party, was capsized in the Oconeeche river near Hell Gate, during a squall yesterday afternoon, and Captain Calder's aged mother and an infant daughter were drowned. Captain Calder's father and wife were seriously injured and his father may die. On the sloop were Dr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Calder, of Sunbury, Cap-tain and Mrs. Allen N. Calder, of this city; their five children, Vernon, 12 years old, Frank, 9 years old, Law-rence, 7 years old, DeLacey, 5 years old, Olga, 18 months old, (who was drowned) and Mrs. Sandiford, who is sixty years old. All, except CaptainiCalder and his son Vernon, were in the cabin at dinner. Vernon was holding the jib-sheet. When the storm struck the craft Captain Oalder ordered his son to slacken the sheet The boy was frightened and became excited. Instead of doing so he pull ed tight on the jib-halyards and the sloop refused to answer her helm. Without warning the craft was capsized and those in the cabin were instantly submerged in water. They were penned in like rats in a trap, as the entrance to the cabin was under

With desperate courage Captain Calder dived into the cabin and succeeded in dragging out all except the baby, Olga, whom he could not find. Mrs. Calder, the captain's mother, died soon after being brought out.

phants, black panthers, tigers, cheetahs, leopards, hyenas, apes, serpents, orang outangs and rare birds of all kinds. He valued the lot at £7,000. The Agra-that was the name of the ship he was coming home on—was swinging at her anchor off Point de Galle, Ceylon. Suddenly there was heard a fearful crash that gave pause to everything. The chattering, the screaming, the growling and the roaring of the animals stopped dead. The startled men looked for just a moment straight in the face of each other. There the exclamation, "Great heavens, she's sinking!" was followed by a clamor that just blotted out the stillness. At one and the same moment both man and beast seemed to realize the situation, and at one and the same moment they all began to exhibit symptoms of the alarm they felt. In the case of the men they were free to devise means of escape, and they immediately busied themselves accordingly. In the case of the animals they were confined and had to undergo the horror of facing a death they were powerless to avert. It is natural for an animal to die in combat with an enemy, and while the combat lasts there is hope of escape. There is no facing of death here. Th animal is otherwise engaged-engaged, too, in a natural way. But with the animals cooped up on the Agra, with never an enemy to fight, it was far different and they gave vent to cries of unbounded lespair. The elephants made a noise, too but there was not one touch of despaid there. It was the businesslike sound of crushing timber, and before the Agradad reached bottom a herd of elegiants were swimming to Ceylon!—Cassell's Maga-

A Hong Kong dispatch of yesterday says: A native steamer was capsized in the West river and two hundred persons were drowned.

"So she does," said Pierre, "but she and my sister don't seem to agree." "Oh!" said I, thinking how disagreeable she must be to quarrel with her own mother. My mother-in-law arrived the next day-a fat old lady, with a purple complexion, a sharp, black eye and a fringe of false curls on either side of her face. "What," said my mother-in-law, "a black silk dress at home?" And she scrutinized my simple toilet with a penetrating gaze. "Does Pierre's income admit of that?"

"Pierre's income has nothing to do with it," returned I gayly. "I bought the dress myself. It was one I had before we were married." "I should advise a gingham or alpaca for a home dress," said my mother-in-law.

protested. "Men know nothing about such things," said my mother-in-law. That was the beginning of it-the beginning of a course of meddling and criticising and interference that nearly drove me frantic. She disapproved of everything on principle. "My dear Ella," said she, "that great tall sister of yours ought to be earning her own living." "But she must get an education first," pleaded I.

"Education! Fiddle! What does girl like her need except to read and write and cast up accounts? I should think she might get a place as cash girl in a store instead of living on Pierre's charity." I colored hotly.

"If Pierre does not object," said I. "no one else reed." "I don't like to see him imposed upon," said my mother-in-law. She grew more and more disagreeable with me every day. It wasn't a week before she got the housekeeping money away from me.

"I shall spend it so much more economically than a young thing like you, Ella," said she. But at the month's end she had to ask Pierre for another $10 to balance the bills. "Things are so much higher here than in Milwaukee," said she.

But I noticed that very evening that my mother-in-law came home with a new bombazine dress. And I put two and two together. How could

I help it? She told Pierre that I was lazy and extravagant. She asked him if Corawas to stay forever, "sponging" her living out of him. She shook her false curls and groaned out that she didn't see where all the money went to. And through it all she pretended that she was very fond of us all. "Of course," said she, "it would be a deal pleasanter for me to stay with my dear daughter in Milwaukee, but I always prefer duty to mere personal gratification." "You are very kind, mother," said dear, stupid Pierre, who put implicit faith in everything the old lady said. I went into the other room, when Pierre and his mother had gone outwithout thinking of consulting meto get a new china tea set! "Cora," said I, "I can't stand this. Pierre has got to choose between his mother and me."

"Oh, Nelly!" said innocent little Cora. "I mean it!" said I. But how I was to carry out my programme I had not the least idea.

Fortune, however, favored me. Cora came home from school the next day with a high fever and in a day or two she broke out with a scarlet rash. "There is a great deal of smallpox around," said Pierre, with a troubled face. "I fear it is that. At all events, we had better all be vaccinated. How lucky that my mother is here to help nurse her!" But Mrs. Wallace, Sr., presently came down stairs in the bombazine dress, with Pierre's best leather traveling bag in her hand. "Why, mother," said Pierre in astonishment, "where are you going?"

"Home," said Mrs. Wallace grimly; "to Milwaukee." "And leave Ella?" "Ella will do very well," said Mrs. Wallace. "I don't mean to stay and expose myself to the smallpox. My own health is the first consideration." And away went my mother-in-law without even stopping for the formality of a goodby." Pierre set his teeth together. "I would not have believed," said he,

"that any human creature could be so selfish or so cold hearted." "Pierre," said I, creeping up to him, "don't be afraid. It's only the measles that Cora has. And I wouldn't mind the smallpox itself if it only helped to rid me of that old lady. Oh, Pierre, she has made me so wretched!" "My darling Ella! And why did you not tell me so?" he asked. "She was your mother, Pierre, and all that I could say would not have opened your eyes as this last exhibition of her true character has done."

And that was the way in which I was relieved from my mother-in-law. She never came again, and if she had done so I doubt whether Pierre would have let her in.

For he has come to think exactly as l do about mothers-in-law. - Cleveland
