A TENEMENT HOUSE FIRE.

Three Persons Burned to Death and Two Others Severely Injared-Oll Stove Caused the Fire.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8. - Three persons met death in a Monroe street tenement house fire to-day and two others were severely but not fatally burned. The dead: Yetta Brownstein, 30 years old; Rosa Brownstein, four years old; C. Ella Brownstein, four years old. Injured: Annie Brownstein, aged 49 years; Lazarus Brownstein, aged 66 years.

The fire was caused by the overturning of an oil stove in one of the rooms on the second floor occupied by the family of Morris Goldberg. The Brownsteins' rooms were on the third. Escape by way of the stairs was cut off by the flames which spread so rapidly that the young woman and the two children who were in a rear room were burned to death despite the heroic efforts of the firemen to rescue them. Annie and Lazarus Brownstein, who occupied the front room, were corried down ladders to safety, but when the firemen returned for the others they found the room in which they were imprisoned a mass of flames. The three victims had made their way to one of the windows where death overtook them.
