By Telegraph to the Morning Star. NEW YORK, Sept. 2. - The fourth attempt to sail what was expected to be the concluding race between the Reliance and Shamrock III failed miserably to-day. They were not even sent across the line. Both boats were towed out to Sandy Hook lightship in a dense fog and flat calm at 10:30 A. M. and then waited two hours in the hope of a wind from some other direction than the east to blow away the fog and give them speed in which to clear thirty miles within five and a half hours. The dwindling fleet was reduced to just twenty-three. Besides the New York Yacht Club's tugs, the revenue cutters and the newspaper fleet, there was only one excursion steamer and a few

The two racing yachts held to their tows and circled about the fleet during the wait. The calm was varied only by a wind never exceeding three knots. At 12:30 o'clock the attempt was abandoned and announcement made that another attempt would be made to-morrow.

Soon after the start homeward the wind for the first time since the middle of last week shifted from easterly to south and began to breeze up, an indication that the long easterly fog "muil" was breaking and that to-morrow might give the yachts the long de ferred opportunity of going through the formality of sailing the third and probably conclusive race.

Statement From Sir Thomas Lipton. Persistent rumors were abroad last night and this morning that Sir Thom-as Lipton had made two important as-

First, that if there was any chance for Shamrock III to win he would depose Captain Wringe and put the yacht under control of Mate Bevis; and second, that Shamrock was found too long after her speed trials and that in bringing her up to the proper measurements she had been stripped so much as to lose her speed.
Sir Thomas was told of these ru mors to-day and he said with unmistakable emphasis:

"I am going to reiterate mos strongly what I have said repeatedly I have no criticism to make of Cap-tain Wringe. He has done his best for me. If I should build another boat and come over here again the captain of it would be Mr. Wringe, and let that be his commendation. These stories came from people who visit me on the Erin and make their own criticism. If I don't dissent, they go away and say that I practically assent to the view they themselves will not deny it. It is not worth denying. Shamrock was built for me in good faith, fully as much so as was the Reliance for Mr. Islen. Up to the time of the first race I thought, and others thought with me, including many experts, that I have a fine boat. Reliance is better. I could not know that before the race, or else why race. I have perfect faith in my designer, my captain and my crew. We have all done and are still doing our best.

ST. PETERSBURG, Saturday, Aug. 22. -John Oliver Keene, of Lexingto: , Ky., trainer for the racing stable of M. I. Lazerew, who has been suspended for a year, dating from August 20th, for alleged use of some unknown drug, has won seventy-nine races with his stable and over $100,000 during the last four or five months. Keene and his friends say that it is the only reason for the ruling against Keene was trainer last year for Henry De Bloch, the millionaire of Warsaw, and won $54,000 with a single horse named Sirdar. He has already exceeded this, though the season is not yet over, with M. Lazarew's Irish Lad, a horse which has won $56,-500 and now holds all the three-year old records for Russia. The success of the stables handled by Keene has been the sensation of Russian sporting circles for the year or more and he has been accused of ruining horse racing in this country, since everybody bet on his entries. When the present season opened Keene selected Irish Lad, a three-year old sired by Galtimore, an English horse procured at great expense by the imperial stud, for the great events, and Irish Lad won the Moscow and the Warsaw derbys besides other valuable prizes. Keene's success was attributed by the leading sporting journal of St. Petersburg to wise training and good riding. The rival stables, however, were unwilling to acknowledge that Keene had won by superior training alone and had for months been trying to prove a case of "doping" against him and eventually procured Keene's suspension for a year.

CRAZY MAN CALLS ON THE PRESIDENT

Arrested at Sagamore Hill Late at Night Armed With a Revolver Fully Loaded.

NAMED FRANK WEILBRENNER

Was Well Dressed and Talked Rationally to Secret Service Officers-Of German Descent and Resides Near Oyster Bay, N. Y.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. OYSTER BAY, Sept. 3.-A man giving his name as Frank Weilbrenner was arrested at Sagamore Hill late last night while making a persistent demand to see President Roosevelt. | cer. The man was armed with a revolver, fully loaded. He was taken to the village and placed in the town prison. Shortly after 10 o'clock last night Weilbrenner drove to Sagamore Hill in a buggy. He was stopped by the secret service officer on duty. Weilbrenner said he had a personal engagement with the President and wished to see him. As it was long after the hours when visitors are received, the officer declined to permit him to go to the house. The man insisted, but the officer turned him on after Weilbrenner returned and again insisted that he be allowed to see the President for a minute. This time he was ordered away and warned not to return. Just before 11 o'clock the man returned a third time and made demand of the officer that he should be permitted to see the Presi-dent at once. The officer's response was to take the man from his buggy and put him in the stables, where he was placed under the guard of two stable men. A revolver was found in the buggy. Later, Weilbrenner was brought to the village and locked up. He is five feet eight inches high, 2 years old, has a medium-sized dark mustache, dark eyes, and evidently is of German descent. He resides at Syosset, about five miles inland from Oyster Bay. He was well dressed in a suit of dark material and wore an old fashioned derby hat. While Wellbrenner talked rationally to the officers last night, it seems evident from his conversation to-day that he is demented. He said that he had received a telegraphic communi cation from the President, directing him to call at Sagamore Hill. Weilbrenner's buggy was taken to a local livery barn. When asked what became of the rig, Weilbrenner replied: "Oh, the President has care

Weilbrenner, several years ago, had a nervous attack which rendered him mentally helpless for a day or two, but his family supposed that he had been quite restored by the medical treat-ment he received at the time. Since then he had manifested no symptoms of mental aberration. He had no socialistic or anarchistic tendencies so far as known, never having been interested in any questions of that kind. He was employed daily on his father's Weilbrenner was arraigned to-day before Justice Franklin on complaint of the secret service operatives who placed him under arrest. Weilbrenner's brother William was present at the examination. Justicel Franklin questioned prisoner about his movements last night. His replies were made in a quiet tone of voice, but they indicated, apparently beyond doubt, that the man is crazy.

Asked why he went to Sagamore Hill, he replied: "I went to see the President about his daughter, Alice. "Had you an engagement with the President?" "Yes." "How was the engagement made?"

'I talked with the President last night, replied Weilbrenner.
"How did you talk with him?" "Oh, just talked."

"A sort of wireless talk was it? 'Yes, that is it; a wireless talk." "Why did you want to see the President about Miss Alice?" "I wanted to marry her.' "Did you ever see Miss Roosevelt? "Yes, I saw her night before last." "Where did you see her?" "At my

"Did she go over there?" "Yes, she same in a red automobile." "Who accompanied her?" "Her brother. Theodore.

Justice Franklin after the examinaion concluded said he would hold Weilbrenner until an inquiry of junacylcould be held upon his case. The examination of Weilbrenner was continued this afternoon. Dr. George A. Stewart and Dr. Irving S. Barnes conducted the examination. Weilbrenner was declared by them to be nsane. He was placed in the custody of Sheriff Johnson, of Nassau county.

Weilbrenner was taken to Mineola, Long Island, on an evening train and placed in the custody of the county authorities. It appears that President Roosevelt was aware of the trouble the secret service officer had with Weilbrenner last night. After the man had been turned back the second time, despite his insistence that he had an engagement with the President, the officer, to make assurance doubly sure, inquired of the President about the fellow. Mr. Roosevelt was in his library, only a short distance from the spot where the officer had stopped Weilbrenner's horse. He told the officer he had no engagement with anybody.

When Weilbrenner returned a third time with a demand that he be permitted to see the President, the officer seized him and threw him out of the vehicle over the front wheel. The noise of the scuffle attracted the President's attention. He appeared at the door overlooking the driveway from the verands, as Weilbrenner was being taken into the stables, but returned to the library almost immediately. Weilbrenner has been practicing with his revolver, but he would give no reason for his interest in marksmanship and to day said he could not shoot

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY

IN NEW YORK CITY.

Henry Townsend Edson, Son of Ex-Mayor Edsor, Murdered Mrs, Pannie Pullen and Then Killed Himself.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Henry Town send Edson, son of the former mayor of New York, Franklin Edson, in his apartment at 292 West 92d street, today shot and instantly killed Mrs. Fannie Pullen, of 673 West End avenue, and then shot and killed himself. The murder and suicide appear to have been premeditated, and fol-lowed a dramatic scene in which Edson called upon Mrs. Pullen, a close and honored friend of his wife and family, to desert her husband and children and fly with him to another State. Mrs. Pullen, a very handsome woman, is said to have been the daughter of a United States naval offi-

The double tragedy brought to the surface the fact that Edson, who was "comptroller" of St. Michael's Protestant Episcopal church, had been suspected of misappropriating funds be-longing to the parish, and expert accountants are at work on his accounts. It was declared by those related to the family that Edson was financially dis-tressed because of Wall street specu-

Whatever may have been the precise cause of the tragedy, members of the Edson family insist that the man was insane. There are many indica-tions that Edson was madly in love with Mrs. Pullen. On the body of the man was found the following letter: "Mrs. Pullen: Darling-Trust John implicitly. He will always be a go-between and faithful. I know him thoroughly. He will tell you where I am waiting for you, to see your sweet face once more before go. I am far, far away, but will die true to you, no matter how long I live. I shall lead a new life, and an honest one, and if I can ever come back to you with my past cleaned up, I will dearest. Oh, my God, let me see and speak to you once more. cannot go until you do. I hope and pray that you put in to-day's (September) personal. Anyway, I answered it in to-morrow's. I hope you see it. I cannot sleep. I can only pray and pray that you will come to me once

"Surely you will after all you have been to me in the past years. You do love me, darling; I know you do. Come to me once more, darling, if only to say good bye. I shall wait here until you see me no matter how long. John will tell you my hotel name. Ask clerk for me.' The following "Personal" was published in a morning newspaper yester-"B. Loyal-Nothing in answer to message, be good to me; worried about you; send word to-day; just as true to you as always, with love." following evidently is a rep to the foregoing as it appeared this morning: "Fanny-I am loyal and true; can not go till I see you; trust John; he will tell you where I am; with love." These are believed to be the two personals referred to. Dr. Peters, of St. Michael's church, who knew the dead man well, is emphatic in his declaration that none but the most honorable relations existed between Mr. Edson and Mrs. Pullen. She was, he said. Ed-son's "friend adviser." Mrs. Pullen lived with her husband, John F. Pullen, an auditor at the Grand Central station, and her two children, Trafton, 16 years old, and Mary, 14 years old.

The Edsons were to break up their home this morning, as a result of an agreement to sign articles of separaion, signed the night before. The life of the couple had not been happy. Edson had been acting in a peculiar manner. For that reason furniture movers were in the house packing up bric-a-brac. Mrs. Edson spent last night with her friend, Mrs. Pullen. She was about to go out this morning when a note came from Edson asking that Mrs. Pullen

accompany his wife to where he was. Edson, his wife, Mrs. Pullen and Dr. David O. Edson, a brother of Edson, met in Edson's home. During the conversation in the dining room Edson is said to have turned around Mrs. Pullen and suggested that she leave her home with him and go to some other State where they could be happy. Mrs. Edson was hor-rified. Mrs. Pullen turned away in disgust. Dr. Edson, after sharply rebuking his brother, left the room with Mrs. Edson, but both returned in a few minutes when Edson again turned to Mrs. Pullen and began to entreat her to elope with him. Mrs. Pullen was horrified at the suggestion, and possessed with fear of the man ran out of the room. Edson, however, seemed to recover his self possession and all went into the dining room again. A very few moments after. Mrs. Edson who was weak and trembling, from the ordeal, was asstated to another room by Dr. Edson. A moment later, according to Woods, a furniture man working near by the hall-way, Edson pulled a revolver from his pocket, and pointing it at Mrs. Pullen shouted "You must go with me. If you don't elope with me I'll see that you go with me anyway." In terror, Mrs. Pullen started to run from the room. She had gone out a few steps when four pistol shots rang out in quick succession. The first bullet tore Mrs. Pullen's left cheek and the second entered the right side of her head.

According to Wood, Edson looked at the woman for a moment and then turned the muzzle of the revolver on his head, firing two shots almost sim-ultaneously. Both entered about the middle of the forehead and he fell. his head striking and resting on the feet of Mrs. Pulien's body. At the first shot Dr. and Mrs. Edson rushed to the door of the room, reaching there just as Edson fired the shots which ended his own life. Mrs. Edson fell to the soor in a faint. Coroner Jackson, after making a thorough examination of the house, said that the evidence showed that the murder and suicide were premeditated; that he had found letters and other papers in Edson's possession which showed that he had a love affair. Mr. Pullen, the husband of the murdered woman, who is a vestryman of St. Michael's church, made a statement to-night in which he branded Edson as a defaulter and forger and said that had stolen from the funds of St. Edson, but missed and killed Mrs.

coroner's physician O'Hanlon, who found powder marks on the dead woman's fac, showing that the pistol must have been held very close.

THRASHING A KING

alienist.

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.] We were trading to the Loyalty islands in the brig Louise of San Francisco and on this particular trip had anchored in a bay in the king's own island and opposite his village. The king was called Tom John, and he professed the greatest friendship for traders. We had been there for ten days and nothing whatever had occurred to make us suspect treachery. The captain and I had been ashore several times, been treated with the greatest deference, and the natives who had boarded us did not need watching.

We soon received a royal visit. The king was accompanied by three of his escort, and we afterward remembered that they appeared to be more interested in the windlass, cable and the spare anchor on the rail than in all else about the craft. A pressing invitation was given us to attend a royal feast on shore that evening, a sort of "blowout" to prove the friendship of the islanders, but as the captain was not feeling well he declined to accept. Tom John and his friends appeared to be very much disappointed and upset that we were not to go, but when they left the brig it was with the understanding that the feast should come off a day or two later. The night came down very dark, with the promise of a change of weather. Every night we had had two armed men on watch, while the cannon was loaded with canister and the muskets were ready at hand in case of an alarm. There were thirty canoes drawn up on the beach, and the adult male population of the town counted up at least 350. For arms they had a few old muskets, but depended mostly on blowguns, lances and bows and arrows. Aside from these every man had a knife. We had an anchor watch set, with orders to be extra vigilant, and this man had not been on duty an hour when he felt, as he afterward explained it, that something was wrong with the anchor or cable. He aroused the man who had left the deck, but was ridiculed for his fears and ordered to later, having heard suspicious noises over the bows, he ventured to wake me up and relate his fears. I went on deck with him, and after listening for a few minutes became satisfied that something queer was going on and called the captain, who at once ordered the sleepers to be turned out.

The black rascals were trying a trick worthy of a Yankee. The tide would begin to flow at 2 o'clock. Four of their largest canoes had paddled quietly out to the anchor, divers had gone down with the rope, and they were lifting it off the ground to let the brig be drifted ashore with the tide. We couldn't see ten feet into the night, but we came to this conclusion from the feel of things, and we didn't reach that conclusion a minute too soon. I went lown into the cable tier and softly knocked out the shackle pin, while the captain saw that the end of the cable went overboard without noise, being lowered by a rope. At the same time men were sent aloft to loosen the sails, and we got steerage way on the brig just in time to save her. Some of the fellows must have been nearer than we imagined, for as we headed across the basin they raised an alarm, a score of torches were lighted simultaneously and three canoes full of men came dashing at our port bow. The captain and a sailor slewed the gun around and poured its contents into the approaching crafts, and the discharge was followed by such shricks and yells as I never want to hear again. We dared not risk the attempt to leave the harbor with the darkness so thick around us and the breeze shifting about so unsteadily, and for the next two hours we were boxing about the basin and expecting an attack any moment.

When daylight came the wind set tled into the north and was fair for a run out. The captain wanted to teach the heathen a lesson first, however. There was a fleet of a dozen canoes coming out for us, and the fellows were no doubt pleased and surprised that we had not escaped to sea. Every man was told what to do, and we put the brig directly for the fleet. When within musket shot, the captain opened with canister, and later on we used-our muskets to good advantage. In passing through the fleet the brig ran down a canoe with nine men in it, and I believe we killed a dozen outright. None waited for a second dose, but made for the shore as fast as possible. In one of the canoes was the king himself, and one of our crew brought a musket to bear on him and put a bullet into his shoulder. We had won a victory, but the captain was not yet satisfied. We had about thirty solid shot in the magazine, and standing back and forth across the basins, as near the town as we dared approach, they were sent whizzing from the big gun to knock things into fragments. Every inhabitant fled to the woods as we opened fire, and, though we were not using hot shot, three or four fires were kindled and the biggest part of the town was laid in ashes. There was no fear of the natives attacking us if we landed, as the roar of the big gun and the havoc wrought by the cannon balls had given them a fright they would not get over in a whole day. We put off in boats, landed on the beach, and what buildings had been spared we applied the torch to, and before the brig sailed away everything was in flames. The plot to massacre us originated with the king, The fact that it did fail so incensed the people against Tom John that he lost his head before the brig was

The note says the Ottoman government has taken precautions, and re-quests the heads of the foreign mis-

According to government advices, Col. Jankoff, the insurgent leader, who with a strong following is operating southwards of Demotyks, has been entrusted with the task of destroying the larger bridges of the ratiroad running from Dedeagatch on the south coast to Kuleli Burgas, over the Maritza and Arda rivers, so as to cut off communication with Adrianople from the south and delay the troops who are on their way to the threatened city. The goverament believes it has taken measures which will bring about a speedy and it is hoped decisive battle with the insurgent forces commanded by Colonel Jankoff. The palace officials were in constant communication with the authorities at Adrianople throughout Monday, formulating plans to master the situation in the vilayet.
