By Cable to the Morning Star. ST. PETERSBURG, April 13, 6:38 P.

M.—The following official dispatch has been received here from Rear Admiral Grigorovitch, the commandant at Port Arthur, addressed to the Em-"PORT ARTHUR, April 13 .- The Petropavlovsk struck a mine, which blew her up and she turned turtle. Our squadron was under Golden Hill. The Japanese squadron was approaching. Vice Admiral Makaroff evidently was lost. Grand Duke Cyril was saved. He is slightly injured. Captain Jakovleff was saved, though severely injured, as were five officers and 32 men, all more or less injured "The enemy's fleet has disappeared Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky has

"MUKDEN, April 13.-A telegram has just been received from Lieut. Gen. Stoessel, commander of the military forces at Port Arthur. I regre to report to your majesty that the Pacific fleet has suffered irreparable loss by the death of its brave and capable commander, who was lost, together with the Petropavlovsk." Another dispatch from Vicercy Alxieff to the Czar says: "According to reports from the ommandant at Port Arthur, the batleships and cruisers went out to meet the enemy, but in consequence of the enemy receiving additional reinforcements, making his total strength thirty vessels, our squadron returned to the roadstead, whereupon the Petropavlovsk touched a mine, resulting in her destruction. Grand Duke Cyril who was on board, was sayed. He was slightly injured. The whole squadron then re-entered the port The Japanese are now off Cape Lio Shan. She was 3671 it long, had 69 feet beam and her armored belt was of about 16 inches of steel, with ten inches of steel armor on her turrets. Consternation in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 13.-The awful dieaster to the battleship Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur with the loss of almost her entire crew of over 600 men and the death of Vice Admiral Mikaroff, has been a terrible blow. It would have fallen less heavy if the ship and the commander-in-chief of the fleet had been lost in battle, but to be the result of another accident following upon the heels of a succession of tragedies, of which the Port Arthur fleet has been the victim, has created something like consternation. "Reverses we can endure," said a prominent Russian, "but to have this battleship meet the fate of the Yenesei and the Boyarin is heart-breaking." Besides, it has just become known that the battleship Poltava several weeks ago had a hole rammed in her by the battleship Sevastopol, while the latter was mance avring in the harbor of Port Arthur. The day has been one of intense excitement in St. Petersburg. The first inkling of the catastrophe leaked out on the receipt of a telegram by Grand Duke Vladimir from his son, Grand Duke Boris, announcing the loss of the vessel and the wounding of Grand Duke Cyril, who was first officer. The Grand Duchess Vladimir was almost frantic on the receipt of the telegram, being convinced that the message was only a precursor of worse as it was signed by Grand Duke Boris, instead of by Grand Duke Cyril,

The Associated Press learns that the location of six of the mines planted by the Yenesei was unknown, the charts having been lost when the vessel went down. Probably it was one of those mines that the Petropavlovsk struck. A Very Great Loss.

'Vice Admiral Makaroff's death is really a greater loss than would be that of several battleships. He was the pride of the navy and enjoyed the implicit confidence of his sovereign, as well as of the officers and men of the service. Speaking of his death officers here all remarked upon the strange fatality that the admiral should lose his life on a heavily armored battleship to which he had a particular aversion. This morning for the first time he raised his flag on a out on board the cruiser Novik or the cruiser Askold. It was at the urgent request of his friends that he did not risk his life in this fashion and transferred his flag to the Petropavlovsk. It is now an open secret that Vice Admiral Makaroff was not anxious to resign his command of Cronstadt to go to the Far East, thus necessitating his leaving his wife and family, but the Emperor held such a high opinion of him that he declined to consider other candidates, although it was pointed out that Rear Admiral Rojestvensky, chief of the general staff of the navy, who had just been appointed to command the Baltic squadron, and who is now destined to succeed Maka-roff, as well as others, were anxious to distinguish themselves. The Emperor in his summons to Vice Admiral Makaroff said "My son, and by it I not only provided for surprise in that State, where for choice has fallen on you and it will twenty years he had been regarded not take a refusal." And so the Adwith suspicion. If Mr. White states | miral went to the Far East. The Emperor's sorrow is doubly keen on this account.

AN UNINTENDED ....MARRIAGE

[Original.]

"Do you think, father, that hasty marriages always turn out badly?" "Well, no, not always. I know a case where a marriage that was not intended turned out very well." "Not intended? How could that have

"There was a young fellow (he was just nineteen years old and I'll call him Bob) who had made up his mind that his lot would be bachelorhood. You see, his father and mother had married young, his father had died young, and, the mother being only nineteen years older than Bob, they were more like brother and sister than mother and son. For this reason Bob scouted marriage-for him. "Bob was reading law. One day he went to court, as was his custom, to familiarize himself with the methods of procedure. It was a court of chancery. The case being tried before the judge was a claim of a young girl to the estate of an uncle who had recently died. The girl was in court, and a prettier little piece of the Lord's handiwork never was turned out. At least Bob thought so, and he couldn't keep his eyes off her. It wasn't long before the girl (we'll call her Lucy) noticed that Bob was looking at her in a way that said as plainly as words, 'I admire you profoundly.' She blushed a little, looked away, then glanced sidewise at him again to see the same expression of admiration. She blushed again, which indicated that she reciprocated. At any rate Bob so interpreted

"The maker of the will had left the bulk of his property to his only brother's son (we'll call him John Doe) and a small sum to Lucy, but as the brother had married beneath him the testator provided for a possible passing of all the property to the oldest son of his sister's child, Lucy. As it would be unsafe to leave the matter long open, Lucy not being married, the will provided that if Lucy were married when she came of age the estate was to be left in the hands of trustees for three years. If within that limit she the rooms and when volunteers had a son, the estate was to go to that

"'How old is the claimant?' asked the judge. "'She will be eighteen,' replied her counsel despondently, 'at noon today.' "'Is she married?' " 'No, your honor.'

"'Then,' said the judge deliberately, 'I see no reason why after the hour of noon I should not set aside her claim and give judgment for John Doe. In case there is no objection I will ad journ the court till 2 o'clock.'

"To see a fortune pass away from this lovely girl was too much for Bob. He was an impulsive fellow, prone to decide and act quickly. With scarcely a moment for reflection he grasped wildly for some method of delay. If the girl could appear to be married, she might at least effect a compromise by requiring her opponents to prove that she was not married. It was half past 10 o'clock, and her counsel would have three and a half hours to devise some plan. Bob as a lawyer knew this, and, though the chance was slender, he staked all on a single desperate move. "'Your honor,' he said, rising, 'the claimant is my wife.'

"Judge, attorney, spectators, turned to Bob in wonder. "'Have you proofs of your marriage?" asked the judge. "'Not at hand.'

"'Is that man your husband?' asked the judge of Lucy.

"If ever there was irresistible appeal in a man's eyes, it was in Bob's when he turned them on Lucy. He could not say to her, 'This is merely to gain time,' so he gave her a look which meant, 'I beg of you not to deny what I have stated.' Lucy's eyes remained riveted to his. What was passing in her mind no one knew. She had a decision to make, and all waited breathlessly to hear it. "'Yes,' she said.

"'And you,' said the judge, turning to Bob-'do you acknowledge this woman to be your wife?

" 'I do.' "Then if you were not married be fore you are married now. I give judgment in favor of the claimant.' "Then, and only then, Bob saw that his intent to stave off a decision had resulted in his marriage to a girl be had never seen before and had never spoken to. "When the court was adjourned, the claimant, her mother and Bob went into a private room for consultation. All looked at Bob for an explanation. He made a confession of the whole matter. There was nothing to be done but accept the situation. Bob's credentials were presented and found to be excellent, and the marriage was consummated."

"And turned out happily?" "The couple have been and are devoted to each other."

"But what right had the judge to marry them?" "The secret of that is this: Bob was perfectly well known to him as a student of law (for the judge was a professor in the law school Bob attended) and had a very good opinion of the young man. More than that, the judge saw that a nice little girl was about to be deprived of a fortune for the want of a husband. He knew I was lying"-The narrator stopped and coughed.

"You, father! You don't mean"-"That I am Bob? Yes, I am. You should forgive your father for the lie, my boy, because you are Lucy's oldest your being, but gained you a fortun at the same time."

"Father, I forgive you. There are times when a lie is invaluable." EVERETT PAYNE POTTER.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT ON A BATTLESHIP.

Explosion of 2:000 Pounds of Powder on Missouri While at Target Practices.

TWENTY-NINE MEN KILLED

Five Others Injured ... Two of Whom Wil Die-But for Prompt Work by Commander Cowles the Ship Would Have Been Destroyed.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. PENSACOLA, FLA., April 18 .- By the explosion of two thousand pounds of powder in the after twelve-inch turret and the handling room of the battleship Missouri, Captain William S. Cowles commanding, twenty-nine men were instantly killed and five injured, two of whom will die. The Missouri was on the target range with the Texas and Brooklyn at practice about noon, when a charge of powder in the twelve-inch left-hand gun exploded, ignited from gases, and drop-ping below ignited four charges of powder in the handling room and all exploded. Only one man of the entire turret and handling crew survives. But for the prompt and efficient work Captain Cowles in flooding the handling room and magazine with water one of the magazines would have exploded and the ship would have exploded and she said Cowles, have been destroyed. Captain Cowles, completely overcome by the disaster, referred all newspaper men to Lieutenant Hammer, the ordnance officer. The latter gave out a statement of the explosion and its probable cause. According to his statement, about noon, after the first pointer of the after twelve-inch piece had fired his string and the second pointer had fired the third shot of his string, the charge ignited. The fourth shot was being loaded and from all indications the first half of the charge had been rammed home and the second section was being rammed home, when gases from the shot previously fired or por-tions of the cloth cover ignited the powder. The breech was open and a dull thud gave notice of something unusual. No loud report was made, but flames were seen to leap from every portion of the turret. A few seconds later another explosion, somewhat more fierce, occurred. This was in the handling room below, where sixteen hundred pounds of powder, or four charges ready to be holsted above, had ignited. Fire quarters were sounded and every man of the ship responded and the magazine and handling rooms were flooded with water. In less than five seconds after the first explosion, two streams of water were being played in
