Against the Selzure of Steamer Malacca in the Red Sea by a Russian Cruiser. Amicable Adjustment Probable.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 20, 6:35 P. M .- Sir Charles Harding, the British ambassador to Russia, this afternoon, in behalf of his government, presented a strong protest to Russia against the seizure in the Red Ses, and detention of the Peninsular and Orienial stramer Malacca, which was carrying three hundred tons of British government stores for the naval establishment at Hong Kong, each case of which was marked with the broad arrow, which is the government slamp. The ambassador also presented a general protest against the action of the Russian volunteer fleet steamers in the Red Sea. the protest was in the form of v rbai note made in conformity with telegraphic instructions from the British government. It does not raise the question of the passage of the Darda. lles by vessels of the volunteer fle i, it being understood that Great Britain is reluctant to re-open the question of the Dardanelles and that she will not do so unless as a last re-

ST. PETERSBURG, July 21.-The As sociated Press has just been informed that Emperor Nicholas, in an interview with Count Lamsdorff, expressed his displeasure at the turn events had taken and the possibility of complicallous with Great Britain arising out of the detention of British ships by the lussian volunteer fleet steamers in the Red Ses. - This pacific attitude, if the report be correct, will doubtless lead to an immediate and amicable adjustment of the difficulties.

THREATENED STRIKE.

Fall River Cotton Mill Operatives Will Resist the New Wage Scale.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

FALL RIVER, MASS, July 21.-Unless the cotton mill managers of this cit, who operate what is known as union plants, abandon their announced intention of inaugurating on Monday next a new scale of wages which would reduce the earning of their employes 121 per cent., 31,000 Operatives will stop work, following strike vote cast to-night by the Tex in Workers' Union.

Bra vote of 1,510 to 396 the union m-n decided to strike Monday, disrogarding the suggestion of the textile courcii that a strike was inadvisable at this time.

It is the general belief in the city tonight that the mill owners will reconsider their decision to reduce wages and so avoid a strike. This belief is based on the argument of the union leaders that the cotton and cloth markets are in such condition that a shutdown at this time would be ruinous to the manufacturers.

CLYDE STEAMER APAGHE

Lost Her Propeller and Was Towed Back to New York by the Comanche. By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, July 20.-The Clyde Line steamer Apsche, which sailed July 19th for Jacksonville and Charleston, returned to port this afternoon in tow of the steamer Comanche, having lost her propeller. The Apache was proceeding down the coast during the night and was off Absecum when the accident occurred. Officers of the steamer could account for the accident in no other way than that the propeller may have struck a sunken or sub-merged wreck. The steamer was obliged to lay to and early to-day the Olyde Liner Comanche from Jacksonville and Charleston hove in sight and took the disabled steamer in tow and brought her back to this port.

covering to a culvert, broke through, ence between himself and a tiger,

As soon as I could think of anything except the pain I raised my head and saw Irvin crawling on his stomach toward my weapon. He had moved only a few feet, and his progress was so slow that it would take him some time to reach it. Evidently he had either parted with his own weapon or had discharged all the cartridges. I saw at once that it was a question of life or death with me to secure the revolver myself and began a crawling which was no more rapid than that of my enemy. Every now and again I would hear a groan from Irvin, which was usually echoed by one from me. Irvin made ten feet while I was making six, then he stopped, took out a handkerchief and, binding it around his leg, twisted it with his knife as a tourniquet. While he was doing this he was watching me who made ten feet while he was at work with his surgical apparatus. Starting again, he was handicapped by having to hold the tourniquet, which he had no means of fixing permanently. Nevertheless desperation gave him strength, and he made better headway than I. It was singular, this tortoise race between two fellow beings with life for the prize, death for the forfeit. Several times I thought I should faint, but knew if I did I would probably never return to consciousness. I therefore nerved myself to keep my senses and continue on my way. But in five minutes I did not make five feet, nor did Irvin do much better. Presently Irvin stopped and calculat

"There's no rest for the wicked." replied without ceasing my efforts.

"Very well. You'll get one pretty soon. Since I stopped the flow of blood I've ceased to lose strength. I can see you're giving out pretty fast. I only proposed the truce because I didn't like to see you suffer." There was now about ten feet for both of us, and I felt sure that despite his plucky words Irvin was bleeding from an artery, and, though I was expecting to lose consciousness every moment, I pushed on. I reached the weapon while he was yet three feet away and put out my hand for it. The effort was too much for me-I fainted. When I came to myself Irvin was where I had last seen him, stone dead, His ashen face was toward me, his glassy eye staring at mine, his right hand extended toward the pistol, which I was grasping. I looked at the chambers and found, to my surprise, that they had all been discharged. There was not a bullet in any of them.
