THOMAS M. COOK & CO. EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

Office 86 Market Street, up Stairs:

THE HERALD has the largest circulation of THE HERALD has the largest circulation of newspaper in North Carolina.

Tur Herald is the official organ in North Carolina of the United States government for the publication of the laws of congress.

THE HERALD prints the list of unvalled for letters in the postaffice at Wilmington, under the laws of the United States requiring such list to be printed in the newspaper having the largest circulation.

WILMINGTON, N. C., NOVEMBER 15 LABOR AND ITS COST—THE CAUSE OF A DISPARITY.

THE HERALD is the best advertising medium

North or South Carolina.

The disparity existing in this latitude between the demand for labor and its cost is a most remarkable phenomenon. Usually the cost of an article, no matter what its nature, is determined by the demand for it or the supply available. If there is an abundance in the market, prices rule low; but if the supply is limited higher prices are demanded. Not so with labor, and especially with skilled labor, in this region. Here the dedemand is limited, the supply abundant, and yet the price exorbitant. Why is this so?

The price demanded for labor, as for any commodity, should be determined by its value; but it is not always determined by its value. For instance THE HERALD establishment is now employing a large number of workmen at prices ranging from twenty-five to thirty-three and a third per cent. above the rates at which it is possible for us to replace this labor. In other words. we are daily receiving applications from workmen for situations at prices ranging from one quarter to one third less than we are actually paying. Then why do we pay the greater price? is the natural inquiry. And here is the solution of the whole subject. The country is flooded with laborers, artizans and mechanics seeking employment. While out of employ they will undertake to work at any price; but on securing situations they find it impossible to maintain themselves and their families at the rates agreed upon. We do not discharge our workmen and employ others whom we could get cheaper, simply because it would be but a temporary expepedient. The cheaper workmen would soon be compelled to strike for an increase of wages or throw up their situations and go elsewhere. And yet our scale of prices is above that paid in neighboring towns and in the north.

It is manifest, therefore, that the trouble lies in the cest of living in this town. And there is no question that this cost of living is exorbitant. House rents are beyond all reason, and board is extravagantly high. The high prices of board are attributable first, to the high rents, and secondly, to the unnecessarily enormous prices of provisions in the market. We contend, in the first instance, that there is no excuse for these exorbitant house rents; and next that the prices demanded by hucksters in the market for all manner of domestic food is beyond all reason. But the commons. - Standard, Nov. 13. because of these exorbitant and unreasonable demands employers as well as employes suffer.

The men who own and rent houses and tenaments themselves are called upon to contribute to the increased cost of everything in the market, labor included; and yet they are the prime cause of the increase. Their daily newspapers could be placed on their breakfast tables daily for two dollars a year less if they were more reasonable themselves. This is one item. The cost of all their purchases would be proportionately reduced. But at present a mechanic with a family cannot maintain himself in this town for less than twelve or fifteen hundred dollars per year. This is more than the labor of an ordinary mechanic is worth. It is more than it can be procured for most any. wheres else. Thus we see that our own system of high rents is coming home to ourselves to our own injury. It is quite time that a reform was inaugurated.

MARTYR SCHOOL MARMS.

Some days ago we quoted and made some comments on what purported to be an extract from a private letter written to the north from this place by a female teacher engaged in educating the freed people of this city. We then said that we would "leave it out" to any military officer or any civil agent of the government on duty here, and competent to judge, if the statements reputed to be made by this woman were not false. We did not then look for an authoritative denial of the woman's story so quickly, but were nevertheless glad to have our attention called a day or two since to the report of Rev. S. S. Ashley, superintendent of education for the freedman's bureau in the southern district of North Carolina. In this report, just forwarded to headquarters, this passage occurs:

"On the part of many influential white people in this district there has been manifested, not only a cheerful acquiescence in the efforts for the education of the freedmen, but a readiness to sympathise with and encourage such efforts. Some perhaps may despise them and treat teachers and schools with contempt. Such are not the thinking reliable men of the south. The free labor of this age and country must and will be educated. The sagacious statesmen of the south accept the decree. I firmly believe that there will be no serious interference with the freedmen's schools except by the ignorant and vicious."

In the same connection we are happy to have to state, as we have previously stated, that Major Wickersham, the superintendent of the bureau in ihis district, has repeatedly instructed his subordinates to avoid offending the prejudices of the people as far as possible, and in all cases, while refraining from noticing any slights they may possibly receive, to encourage all expressions of friendship and sympathy, and seek to im- and will be sold by subscription only. With fine press upon the people generally the benevolent character of the mission undertaken by the freedmen's bureau. That but one of all the numerous attaches of the bureau in this district has found occasion to complain is sufficient evidence of the general good treatment by our people of those attaches.

ing those who were wounded in the service, or otherwise disabled. SOMETHING BREWING.

For some time past indications of activity in the navy have been apparent. The telegraph today informs us that orders have been received at the Portsmouth navy yard to fit out with all possible dispatch several first class naval vessels, including a new iron clad not yet off the stocks. The heavy iron clads adapted to ocean service are all in commission and are rapidly being attached to different squadrons. The very recent sailing of a powerful fleet to the Pacific; the considerable reinforcement of the squadrons at the east, together with the activity in the dock yards at home altogether means something.

A couple of weeks ago orders were prepared nustering out of service a formidable list of general officers of volunteers. The order was sent to the public printer, where it need have been detained not to exceed three days. It has not yet been brought to light, and rumors abound about Washington that it has been suppressed.

The sale of quartermasters stores and ordnance supplies recently so common, have been suddenly stopped, and activity is manifested in getting this necessary appendage of an army in readiness for use

What does all this signify? Is it a game of bluff between the United States and England? Or is it intended to expedite the withdrawal of SUGAR, the French from Mexico, and the abdication of his unsettled throne by Maximillan? Who can

In the same connection another noticable incident has just occurred. A few days ago Major General Dan. E. Sickles, the diplomatic warrior, was telegraphed for at Boston to proceed with PICKLES. all haste to Washington. On arriving there he was closeted for a few hours with the president and secretaries of state and war, and then started off post haste southward. He passed through this city on Monday morning. Yesterday morning some members of his suite passed through in pursuit of him, his movements having been so rapid as to leave his attaches in the rear.

Evidently there is something important brewing, but when, where, and of what import, time will doubtless determine.
