A GOOD STOCK on hand: and I shall re-ceive regularly, from Messrs. J. Jones & doctors caviling about the course he has thought proper to pursue in compounding and vending medicines for family use. Most generally it has happened where they were popular, or had been given with a marked degree of success in a case that had been previously treated. Now, this sort of petty opposition is too groveling to need much refutation; and certainly emanates part of the State, on proper application, description of the Property, &c.

The design of Dr. Little's Pharmaceutical Medicines is to cure such maladics as they are recommended for, by which families and all perfect these invorite compounds. Not until they proved to be far in advance of the usual preparations of the day, did he venture to offer them to the public. This has been done in ac-cordance with the light of scientific medicine, and if not, let any physician of character point it out wherein he has failed.
