THE GREAT CONVERSATIONISTS. LESSER LIGHTS OF SOUTH CAROLINA.

To the Editor of the New York Daily Times: Led into the circle of the South Carolinians, by the subject of my last sketch, I may as well proceed with other lights there which clustered, in the public view, like more attendant stars, about Mr. Calhoun, and were, whether deservedly or not, yet in no small degree hid from the popular attention in the blaze of that erratic luminary; as orderly planets, though shining to a much better purpose, cease to attract anybody's gaze, when a comet or a meteor, quite as dangerous as it is bright, flames out near them. Cooper, Preston, Legare, Turnbull, Hayne, McDuffie, Hamilton, were all, though remarkable men, thus thrown into eclipse by the conflagration which Calhoun had always about him for an atmosphere. My metaphor is good, because a descriptive one; I may be pardoned, therefore, for drawing it out a little further, by saying that aithough other comets seem to be without satellites, yet no less than three waited upon this orb of Agitation, this skyrocket of the Southern sphere of politics. They were the three last above-named. The others belonged to orbits of their own. And now, for the sake of order, I will despatch these secondaries.

since their primary has been already described. Robert Y. Hayne, though quite a clever, quick, adroit man, (take the last epithet in its good sense only; for he was highly the gentleman and the man of honor.) was rather ready and facile than able. He was not strong; he was not great; but he rose to the top of whatever could be done without high powers. Perhaps the justest idea that I can give you of him is to say that he was a sort of splendid mediocrist. He never rese above a certain mark; he soldom fell short of it; and that mark was high for anything but a manof genius. That, he was not at all; yet had just these happy, lucky qualities which win that reputation with the crowd. He came so near being eloquent that few would refuse him that praise; he was so nigh to being able, that, in order to be rightly judged so, he only needed more original and commanding views. In speech his manner was animated, earnest, agreeable, clear, fluent, and engaged not only your attention but respect and good will; it strongly betokened the gentleman bred; and almost as much the sharp, active practical barrister, though not the great and arned jurist. As to matter, he was copious of all the facts and arguments which previous discussions could supply; and these he reproduced stowed upon subsequent discussion a new idea. not (to be sure) the bright and solid meed of lasting fame, by a merit beyond the times and the topics of one's day, but a temporary success, all the surer for a man's having only the thoughts ways clever, neither his cause nor his reputation. He was born of parents in the humblest con. vent its hurting anybody, the second apostle was ever like to lose, as long as it was his linek or his discretion not to be matched with an adversary of that hereulean kind, which (fortunately for the glory of your government). The was bounded apostle should bring a still better melioration, and show has discretion not to be matched with an adversary of that hereulean kind, which (fortunately for the glory of your government). The was countered apostle should bring a still better melioration, and show how a nation may kill off all foes without ever gentleman of property, Mr. John getting a scratch. Mr. Jefferson, over-auxious of that hereulean kind, which (fortunately for the glary of your common-place champion) is not met in every field of fight. Had not his stars—for they, I am sure, were to blame for it, not hefaced him to try conclusions with Mr. Webster, in that debate of 1830 which the latter's cloquence rendered so celebrated, Mr. Hayne might have only and a much larger and have D. H. Columbia, in order that he might fit one of the latter's eloquence rendered so celebrated, Mr. Hayne might have only and a much larger and have D. H. Columbia, in order that he might fit one of the latter's eloquence rendered as much larger and have D. H. Columbia, in order that he might fit one of the latter's eloquence rendered as much larger and have D. H. Columbia, in order that he might fit one of the latter's eloquence rendered as much larger and have D. H. Columbia, in order that he might fit one of the latter's eloquence rendered as much larger and have D. H. Columbia, in order that he might fit one of the latter's eloquence rendered as much larger and have D. H. Columbia, in order that he might fit one of the latter's eloquence rendered as much larger and have the same time, to manage that your enemy should not be safe. Mr. Calhenn's sublime conception of the latter should not be safe.

ONE OF FANNY FERN'S BEST.

cupiary reward of an easy fortune which attends benefactions.

proceed with my proper theme: Gov. Hayne talked they make a super-human din. as he spoke, diffusely, though well. His disas he spoke, unusery, though took course was gay, but never witty; sensible, but not his vigor, and before yet the ball lodged against epigrammatic; bright enough, though never shi- his spine, in his somewhat too famous duel with into our Southern leaders, is the only serious tion of Texas-that McDuffic (when from som South Carolina "Ordinance of Nullification."

of meanness which usually clings, through no as if his were totally gone. matter what condition of fortune, to the upstart. This was a severe penalty for a gentleman and swelling; both which vices are usually found by turns in your promoted beggar; who, when he "Peaceful Nullification" forced his State, somehas gotten up in the world, is the greatest of aristeerats, except in that single mark of gentle blood poor McDuffie, to turn tactician-in-chief, grandleaving upon him some visible and edious sign—chiefly that of insoleuce—in order that people may see he was her work. Upon McDuffie sie had set no such certificate of this sort: he was no fostering of hers, no foundling of success; but the bayonets six inches longer than those of other genuine child of self-begetting Talent. In this people; by means of which infallible device, the eussions could supply; and these he reproduced with skill and effect; but I denot if he ever belikeness, which I always hailed with pleasure, to harmed, to pick up on their musket points the In short, as a legislator, a politician, or a lawyer, he had just the cast of telents which is fit to win, ferior one. For, besides that his qualities, moral discovery had awakened in him a sort of genius and intellectual, rose not to the supreme manliness which adorned the latter and made him, under every external disadvantage, the foremost I am inclined to the latter hypothesis. The child of the day. The last of these his mind was capa-cious enough to embrace and skilful enough to set enous enough to embrace and skilful enough to set in view, not very strongly, but agreeably and well. You will perceive, therefore, that he was the sort of person from whose effort, because al.

enjoyed a much longer and larger Parliamentary himself, by a complete course of study, for a lib-

Such was he, in point of partie abilities. As to the partie abilities are the partie abilities. As to the partie abilities are the partie abilities are the partie abilities. As to the partie abilities are the partie abilities are the partie abilities. As to the partie abilities are the partie abilities are the partie abilities. As to the partie abilities are the partie abilities. As to the partie abilities are the partie abilities are the partie abilities. As to the partie abilities are the parties are the and fair, his ambition was in just proportion to sued, he is said to have enjoyed the countenance and fair, his ambition was in just proportion to sued, he is said to have enjoyed the countenance macking if you tried it.

She passes into the warm kitchen, savory with should have to transact business if we all were to tatterdemalions contending for the Presidency, and that is by and men as inferior to himself as Poik and Pierce yer, his professional pilotage could have been no There seems to be happiness enough in the making precisely such speeches as the gentleman arriving at it, in might have renounced a virtue which was then comparatively easy.

In private life, he was very amiable and attractive product of the window. There is a lovely combe."

There seems to be nappiness chough in the habit of making this which was then comparatively easy.

In private life, he was very amiable and attractive production.

There is a lovely combe. The lovel combe in the product of the lovel combe. The lovel combe in the lovel combe. The lovel combe in the lovel combe tive, from the pleasantness of his temper and the have been of any very enormous value to the lady, who has passed in. She is buying cakes question has never been regularly before this amendy of his manners. Well born and well ed-other studies of our young Telemachus. Thus the and bon bens for her little girl as if she had the House? Who does not know that no proposition uented, he had strengthened his social position by airy gift of his political fancies must have formed purse of Fortunatus. How nice it must be to be to remodel or to amend our rules has been sub-

McDulie's career. He soon came to the Bar, and formed for it that basis of character, competency, and therefore independence, which wise men should always secure, before embarking in public life, lest they should there find themselves formed in sink for so make a speech to inform his constituents that by and by to fortune. And as, in the South, public life, lest they should there find themselves formed in sink for so make a speech to inform his constituents that by and by to fortune. And as, in the South, public life, lest they should there find themselves formed in sink for so make a speech to inform his constituents that by and by to fortune. That lady has it is difficult to be kept out of Politics, when one has become the successful lawyer, he formed for it that basis of character, competing the world—but none for Meta!

Not so fast little one! Warm hearts beat sometiments that he is "right side up with care." [Laughter.]—But, sir, as I have accidentally mentioned Cuba, and to state that by and by to fortune. It is difficult to be kept out of Politics, witnessing the brilliant ascent of the values of the witnessing the brilliant ascent of the witness and pients.

McDulie's career. He soon came to the Bar, the witness and pients witness. Well, str. it is well enough to make a speech to inform his constituents that by and to state that the world—but none for Meta!

Not so fast little one! Warm hearts beat sometimes. Well as the world—but none for Meta!

Not so fast little one! Warm hearts beat sometimes.

Not so fast little one! Warm hearts beat sometimes. Well as the world—but none for Meta!

Not so fast little one! Warm heart forced to sink, (as so many do) into needy advenwas soon drawn into that other public arena, and shivering form. Oh! what if it were her child?— a speech upon that subject if I had the opportuniall the vulnerable points which I observed in the us, or near to us. turers and headlong intriguers, the slaves of circumstance and party. Exempted by his lack of greater field of contest. His history there needs out of the door, takes those little benumbed finger and party. The slaves of circumstance and party. Exempted by his lack of greater field of contest. His history there needs out of the door, takes those little benumbed finger and party. The slaves of circumstance and party. Exempted by his lack of greater field of contest. His history there needs out of the door, takes those little benumbed finger and party. The slaves of circumstance and party. Exempted by his lack of greater field of contest. His history there needs out of the door, takes those little benumbed finger and party. ardent subition from personal passions, he had no repetition. It was exceedingly honorable to gers in her dainty gloved hands, and leads the man from North Carolina on that subject. He compliment. Among the other subjects of comincurred little of even partisan resentment, and was met everywhere by the respect of all, the was met everywhere by the respect of all, the Preston and Calhoun himself, no man from his land. kindness of most of his fellow citizens. He was State, and few from his section have, since the A delightful and novel sensation of warmth gard to what are called the compromise measures. In my humble judgment, it is the most sensible good and prudent enough to leave behind him, time of William Lowndes, made so great a figure creeps over those frozen limbs—a faint color tinges. Sir, I recollect very distinctly that the gentleman rule this House ever adopted. I do not know, if ed every one by its petulance are the intellectual character which I have drawn, not only powerfully, kut passionately. For ar- blessed are the merciful.' more copious, clever, and lively, than original or dent as he was strong of mind, his logic and his striking. It was easy flowing free but not striking the was strong of mind, his logic and his striking the was strong of mind, his logic and his striking. It was easy, flowing, free, but not feelings went together; and as that grew positive, and a light heart. Surely the street has grown would draw slaves away from his and other States. it is notorious to almost every individual who sparkling; of a gentlemanlike but not scholarly these grew excited. Hence, when his subject wider and the sky brighter! Meta's form is creek. Will the gentleman allow me hears me to day, that the most unmeaning elegance; of much general but not recondite in- was important, he was a very fiery speaker. I now! her step is as light as a child's should be. a word by way of correction? formation, that bore the marks of being derived have often seen him carried away by such a vio. The sunshine of human love has brightened her from the particular practical occasion, not the lence of conviction, that all his features quivered; pathway! Ah, Metal earth is not all darkness— rolina made so heavy a speech against these— Louise and long research of independent study; and his limbs were convulsed with emotion; while bright angels yet walk on the earth. Sweetso that his knowledge, though various and abun- his hands, little called in aid but for one main voiced Pity and heaven-eyed Charity sometimes dant, had little of luxury about it, and though jesture, were unconsciously dashed with such stoop to bless. God's image is only marred, not ly know whether I ought to allow the gentleman. lina can do it. [Renewed laughter.] Well, sir, borrowing a liberality from his sense and his refury upon the table before him, that, when he destroyed. He who feeds the ravens, bends to I am rather unwilling to submit to the infliction. finement of the heart and manners (which always ceased, they were battered into a general and listen. Look upward little Metal carry a grace and a good taste with them,) was severe bruise. Of course able and thus strongly yet utilitarian, as if he had learnt not because it affected himself, he affected others strongly; and was delightful to learn, but because it was advan- wielding a heavy mass of argument in a comtageous. It was the man of the world and the man of practice, not the crudite or the wit. Of debate, and was apt to make it stagger before letters proper, or what used aptly to be called him. Nor must you imagine that far as he carpolite learning, he had little beyond that early ried this excited manner, he ever spoke over-heattinge of the college, which, not striking through cally, went beyond the warmth which his view of to the woof, usually serves but to spoil the native the subject justified, or fell into rant. His very color of the mind with a foreign dye. A man is violence seemed but the fit expression of his none the better for them, unless he be plunged reason. In short, he was a very vehement, not headlong into them and held there by the heels, a turbulent, noisy, bellowing speaker, such as one like that hero of old whom a soaking made invulis not soldom compelled to stop his ears at, in nerable. Now-a-days, however, our youths are Washington-fellows of the Ohio Allen order, dipped at the other end, and barely wet their whose logic is a convulsion-fit, whose rhetoric is a neels, instead of steeping their heads. But to roar, and who think they are eloquent, because ning; and always good, though never surprising. | Col. Cummings of Georgia had so affected his I have placed bim, at the outset, among the whole bodily system, as gradually to enfeeble his satellites of Calhoun. I meant not, however, to mind. With that cause conspired an outward intimate that he was a spiritless or servile follower, that wheeled along in the track of a greater and the first consequence of him to the rules which govern this body. Now a lidely speeches of the gentleman from North Carolina to the rules which govern this body. Now a lidely wertiser says that Mr. Recker less than a year upon the various subjects to which I have alluded, great many people, who are unsophisticated, you that you sent a bishop and many people, who are unsophisticated, you that you sent a bishop and many people, who are unsophisticated.

ingly devoted to Mr. Calhoun; but there was tion and of future consistency: that consistency nothing abject in their attachment. Whatever which, like other great rules of life, must occatheir political errors, they were men of clevated sionally be set aside; but yet makes in the main, personal character, and could never have served if not the absolute morals, yet the point of honor any man, except on what they mistook, in this to the public man. Into many capital violations instance, for terms of honor and of public duty. of that, Mr. Calhoun drew him; and they told It may be worth while for me here to correct still more heavily upon the good name of the unin error into which the public generally fell in evasive partisan than that of the chief, subtle in regard to Gov. Hayne. He was falsely taken for the lineal representative of that Col. Isaac Hayne. apologies, and who had, besides, not only many more defenders, but a greater fame from which to of our Revolution, whose cruel execution, by spare. It was for one of the inconsistencies thus Lord Cornwallis, for the purpose of striking terror incurred—that enormous one about the annexastain upon the character of that elsewise gallant years of retirement he came back to public life in and good commander. Gov. Hayne was the the Senate,) fell under that terrible exposure, nephew, not the son of Col. Isaac Hayne; whose made more humiliating by whatever of ignomini direct representatives were Isaac Edward Hayne, ous personal malignity could venture to add to sometime Treasurer as well as Secretary of his the occasion, which Benton so mercilessly inflicted State, and his son, Isaac W. Hayne, who was the upon him. It was a cruel scene, that by its feroouthful Secretary of the somewhat famous Conceity of punishment enlisted at last the sympathics vention, that enacted the notable farce of the of nearly all who witnessed it. The contradiction, the confutation, the contemptuous ridicule Of the humblest origin, but extricating himolf from all the disadvantages which poverty and Senator by his old Message as Governor-of his obscurity entail far more in the South than in the reasons then and his reasons now-of his present North, from the less leveled condition of men love for Annexation and the contumely with there and especially from the want of that most which he had formerly treated it and the Texaus Democratic institution, the Free School, George -were so flagrant and so pitilessly displayed, that McDuffie rose to merit and to eminence, by the not even the proud and fiery man himself could mere vigor of his own mind and character. Nor hold up his head under it, that never quailed bewas this his most remarkable desert; I have sel- fore. He sat under that long and furious inflicdom known another in whom a native elevation tion, overwhelmed, helpless and aghast, like one and ingenuousness had so much effaced the stain suddenly stricken out of all spirit and even honor,

You could never have guessed the penury, an honest man, who loved and had earned reputhrough which his youth was condemned to strug- tation, to pay for his personal devotion to Mr. gle, from any want of either nobleness or simplici- Calhoun. It was but one of many such. The ty in his demeaner, anything either cringing or folly of the "Forty Bale theory" was a second overbearing, under or over-refined in his manners. remarkable one. But worst of all-Calhoun not There was nothing creeping about him, nothing being by any means the man to wield the sword and breeding which cannot be counterfeited-a generalissimo, the Mars of the musterfield, a sort true courtesy. When fortune picks out from of militia god-of-war. Ardent in all he set about, among the base a favorite and advances him to be incontinently got a book of strategy and a mus-wealth or power, she seems to take pleasure in ket; learned drill and maneuver; called his brigman of his times, McDuffie was earlier taken by looks marvellously as if it were of Calhoun's get-

of the standard of inches, Coi. Hayne could not tion of his State as one of its destined ornaments. rags. You see nothing of childhood's round sym-vote, or transact any business during the session. That augury he made haste to verify by fling- metry in those sunken limbs and pinched features. You could not pass your deficiency bill, or any longer, even in the South, pass for a giant.

That augury he made haste to verify by fling metry in those sunken limbs and pinched features. You could not pass your deficiency bill, or any Such was he, in point of public abilities. As to ing himself upon the study of the law. To sup Push her aside, she's used to it; she won't comsort of bill. The House will recollect that we are his paris; it seems to have asways been enecked by good sound practical sense, (of which he had studies. He does not seem to have derived from odorous dainties, and is ordered out with a threat occupy as much time in speaking as the gentlemuch.) at just the point where it was well for him any further assistance. Indeed, that sage by the portly cook. In the shop windows she man from North Carolina has done. him and well for others that his aspirations should was fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sees nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sees nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and sold four secs nice fresh loaves of bread and tempting little with a fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and the fittle profuse of anything but his counsels and stop. It may be that he deserves not, however, his theories. His notice, however, was flattering; cakes. Rosy little children pass her, on their yesterday, the useless consumption of time in this the credit for moderation which I am assigning and McDuffie was ever after grateful to him. Had he lived to see all sorts of political Perhaps he was so beyond the occasion.

a quite successful professional career, and the pe- the true, as it was the customary, extent of his warm, and have enough to eat. Poor Meta! She mitted to the House? Yet two hours have been it for prudent men. On all sides, then, his personal eminence was on a level with his political, McDuffie's career. He soon came to the Bar, when he somewhat prematurely died, the praises in the National Councils.

The leading characteristic of his oratory was lovely, as Meta raises them thankfully to her benchiefly for the reason then assigned by him, that half hour, but it would be better than the hour rule which we now have.

The leading characteristic of his oratory was lovely, as Meta raises them thankfully to her benchiefly for the reason then assigned by him, that half hour, but it would be better than the hour rule which we now have.

But am I authorized the pale checks, and the eyes grow liquid and from North Carolina opposed these measures, and we would adopt a rule to limit speeches to one after mile the passengers bere the The leading characteristic of his oratory was an argumentative vehicle or his oratory was argumentative vehicle or his oratory was argumentative vehicle or his oratory was argumentative vehicle or h

We have not had a quarrel, says the Boston Transcript, these many years, that did not grow In an emnibus, not long out of tobacco juice. since, a well dressed "stranger" of rather formidable proportions, in dispensing his salivary favors, sent a brown colored rivulet over our glazed boot. We called his attention to it. He turned away with a careless remark that it was an accident. We requested him to wipe the boot. He looked at us with an incredulous stare, and shook his head; whereupon we quietly lifted our foot, and very carefully wiped the boot upon his new broadcloth indispensables. The tobacco-chewer began to roll up his sleeves as if preparing to take hold of us, but a burst of applause from three or four gentlemen passengers, who were witnesses of the provocation and the punishment, checked him, and he settled back in his seat with the remark;

"Well stranger, I don't know but you have done just what I should have done under the done under the Mr. Nabers. Mr. Chairman, it is no part of have given him a seat upon this floor for six better than before the different have given him a seat upon this floor for six where God is worship.

A GENTEEL SKINNING.

We have not often met with a better thing than the following good natured rebuke administered to that everlasting talker, the Hon. Abraham Mississippi:-

Mr. NABERS. Mr. Chairman, I had hoped that this short session of Congress would be apprepriated entirely to business, and that members, far as lay in their power, would avoid speaking altogether. I have observed that rule, so far as an concerned. The published proceedings of the House will show, I think, that I have not occupied five minutes time in debate, from the comencement of the session up to the present hour. I have not refrained from speaking because I did not desire to speak; for I am free to confess that I am exceedingly fond of speaking. But I have never yet satisfied myself that it would be oper to speak, if in doing so, the legitimate and oper business of the country would be retarded. The particular kind of debate, however, which sprung up on yesterday, and which was introluced by the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. Venable, has led me to a wish to occupy me twenty or thirty minutes of the time of the immittee it was allowed to go on nearly to the the passage of every private and public bill be not prepared to say; but it is the close of his hour, in utter violation of the rules of fore Congress. rienced as I am, [laughter,] to perpetual embar-rassment by points of order. Well, sir, some Several Members. What is that? gentleman from the Old Dominion was kind nigh to take me at my word, and call me to orand perhaps saved me from inconvenience in not ng allowed to go on and occupy my hour. But, sir, do not understand me as taking any particular exception to the remarks of the gentl man from North Carolina on vesterday. But I submit to the gentleman himself, and to the committee, whether a lecture from him with regard the rules of the House, and with regard to the lecorum of members, comes with a good grace? Now, sir, a gentleman should not lecture his fel--members upon matters of decorum, unless he [Laughter.] The calculation is easily made.gether. Now, the gentleman from North Caroli- understand. na, some time ago, occupied one hour in making a speech against stealing Cuba, or against filibusturing. Yesterday he occupied another hour in speaking against the rules of this House. There are two hours, aside from his innumerable little incidental speeches every day or two. [Laughter.] All this time has been occupied by the gen-It is only a little pauper! Never mind her .- tleman from North Carolina during the present enjoyed a much longer and larger Parliamentary renown. As long as a man has not been publicly measured, people who have never seen him may imagine him very tall; but after that application the left as a graduate, fixed upon him the attention. The cold wind is unking merry with those thin. It is only a fittle pauper. Never mind ner.—

teman from North Caronna during the present you see she knows her place, and keeps close to session of Congress. Now, appropriate as much distinguished himself as to have already, before the wall, as if she expects an eath or a blow—the left as a graduate, fixed upon him the attention. The cold wind is unking merry with those thin. I say you would not have time to take a single mother's parting kiss yet warm upon their sweet one very prolific source by which the valuable

A MEMBER. "Injections."

[Laughter.]

Mr. VENABLE. I only wished to correct the gentleman in point of fact.

. I will allow him time to correct. Mr. Gippings. I desire to know whether, un-

The Chairman. The question is not a legiti- I was astonished that the gentleman from North man, and a pupil of the Miss mate one for the Chair to decide.

courtesy of my friend from Mississippi, which I especially the rules of this House. He has been dress was simple and affecting assure him I asked with great reluctance. I ob- here six years. Could not a hundred and forty the great difference between the jected to the compromise measures because they or a hundred and fifty rules be understood in that Chinese and English languages limited the area of slavery upon our own territory. time? It is certainly a very strange position. I distinctly, and with great But I object to filibustering, and the acquisition will venture the assertion that in his school-boy other things, he said, that, we contribute the assertion that in his school-boy other things, he said, that, we contribute the assertion that in his school-boy other things, he said, that, we contribute the assertion that in his school-boy other things, he said, that, we can also the said that the school boy other things, he said, that it is certainly a very strange position. of Cuba, because we have no right to extend the days, his teacher compelled him to learn double New York, he was astonished my purpose to speak upon that subject. The years, and yet he is totally uninformed in regard countries, where God is worship to the second countries, where God is worship to the second countries. er, that wheeled along in the track of a greater sphere, drawing all motion and the nearest light sphere, drawing all motion and the ne sphere, drawing all motion and the nearest light from it. This was not true of either him, or feels who feels from it. This was not true of either him, or feels who feels have not true of either him, or feels have not true of either him, or feels himself with any degree of industry for six years. But you have not yet sent enough to the sufficient interest in the subject to ascertain his himself with any degree of industry for six years.

strange one coming from him-very strange. A great many would come to the There may be, and doubtless are, good reasons if a hundred and fifty rules could no There may be, and doubtiess are, got I ask the in six years, it is rather a failur yearson level and any rules could not be annexed; but I ask the gentleman himself whether this particular reason laughter. That would be only does not sound strangely as compared with his a year. Now what an effect Venable, by his democratic friend, Mr. Nabers of uniform arguments touching the interests of the uniform Nabers of the Union? slaveholding States of the Union?

points with regard to our rules. The gentleman as to say: "Give it up at once, from North Carolina seems solicitous to make the master these rules. We are impression that if every member of the House had standing of them as a hopeless to impression that if every member of the business of the bowever, willing to give them had House as he was himself, these bills for the re- [Laughter.] I believe myself. House as he was himself, these only silver and of this body who sincerely desire lief of injured orpnans and same some beautiful ed with the rules, can do so, at posed of; but your entire calendar of private bills to be enabled to keep himself. would have been cleared. Every claimant upon me to say that when each member 11 to 12 to 13 to 14 to 15 to 1 the justice of the Government would be satisfied. well acquainted with the rules to But I have already shown you that according to order, there will be no danger of his mode of advancing the public business, it those disorganizing scenes which would be totally and utterly impossible to trans- most every day on the floor of act any business at all. It will be remembered, promise to keep myself in order that a short time since a resolution passed providitill the adjournment. It is only ing for holding night sessions; and would any and during that time, I think member who heard the speech of the distinguish- self. I presume that every mem member who heard the specel in the specel good behaviour during that time for a single moment that he fought those night days be excepted. [Laughter, sessions to the death? But he did oppose them. Yet if his speech of yesterday remains unanswer-question will be submitted to a go I was deeply impressed on yesterday with the ed, the impression will be created throughout the constituents before we again redea that the very first speech I ever heard made country that these night sessions were opposed capability of understanding the by the gentleman from North Carolina was noted by every member in the House, except the gengerate many other gentled the riously out of order; but by the courtesy of the tleman from North Carolina, who desires so much What will be the result of close of his hour, in after violation of the rules of order; and allow me to say that the first speech I There is another incident which occurred durespecially, as we have the house ever had the desire to make was in reply to that ing the gentleman's speech, to which I ask the developed, to believe that every made by the distinguished gentleman from North attention of the House for a moment. He made propitious. [Laughter.] We Carolina, though, as a matter of course, if made a labored argument against the rules of this next Congress to be thrown into at all it must have been made out of order. It House; but at the conclusion of that speech, he tained fact that we are not to be will be recollected, therefore, that in rising to reply to the gentleman from North Carolina, on a nothing about them. In the progress of his re-sort, [Laughter.] And I have rmer occasion, knowing as I did that I must remarks, the gentleman ought to have said that one doubt that we will go home and ply to him out of order, if at all, I notified the great reason why the business of the country is that we are, to the best of our known nmittee that if they intended to call me to or- so much retarded, is because we speak so much lief, among the eleverest of man der, I desired they would do it at the beginning, upon questions about which we know nothing, or, I will now follow the example, and not subject me, young, modest, and inexpe- in other words, we speak so much upon the "third guished friend from North Carolin

Mr. NABERS. I will tell you. Upon a certain No matter how severly be may! occasion, a speaker got up and said to his audi- antagonist, he generally closes by der, and thereby saved the time of the House, ence, "Gentlemen, in the first place, I will tell and tells him that no harm we you what I know and you do not know; in the mean no harm to the gendeman fi second place, I will tell you what you know and lina. The first speech I desired I do not know; and, in the third place, I will tell tended to be in reply to one of that you what neither you nor I know anything about." but I did not get an opportunity [Great laughter.] Now, the speech of my distrust there never will be any occatinguished friend from North Carolina against the ture for the slightest conflict between rules, in this House, was, by his own confession, member and myself. I think how a "third head" speech, [renewed laughter;] for it commits some very serious mistale was a speech in relation to a subject of which, by further, that the entire weight of his own acknowledgment, he knew nothing.

Now, it is a rule of universal application, that well satisfied that he comes here with clean we should never condemn that about which we seems to be greatly impressed with hands. Sir, I undertake to say now, that if ever are not informed; for if you act upon this print the well being and success of this H ry member of this House had occupied as much ciple, what cannot you condemn? You may continue in debate during this short session as the demn the best system of government the world und exertions. If he does not say that gentleman from North Carolina has, there never has ever seen. You may condemn, if you choose, [Laughter.] would have been time to have taken one vote .- the very light which comes from God out of heaven. I repeat, there is nothing you may not We have but three months in the session alto-condemn, if you condemn everything you do not

That is the error my friend labeledge.

There was another fancy touch in the speech of the gentleman from North Carolina, and that is the foul monster—a majority; I do not know that to be told, we quote: the gentleman meant to leave the impression upon the public mind that our Government or our New Yorkers are now in advance of list of rules, which can be controlled by a majority, is the fearful tyrant of which he spoke. But for private dwellings, far exceeds do not hesitate to say, if he means to create the impression that our Government, where the will of a majority rules, is oppressive and tyrannical, styles of parlor ornament will be sta that he knows as little about the Government as the latest patterns of parlor tables of he does about our rules. [Laughter.] Every is made of the richest decorated Front is made of the richest decorated front is made of the richest decorated front in the richest decorated front is made of the richest decorated front in the richest dec man in our Government is conscious that such is set in a gilt frame and stand. The not the fact. We know that our limbs are unbeautiful; the price ranges from 200 fettered, our minds are free, and that we never have, and never will call any man master. The gentleman refers to the one-man power, and to the will of the majority. But is it not a notori- A pair of bronzed mantel can ous fact that the very rules upon which this as- for a centre piece, are for sale at $800. rights of the minority? And has not that gentle- house, at $3000. A novel and make man himself resorted to the privilege given by clock valued at $500-would be a the rules to stave off what are believed to be unwholesome measures-to a call for the yeas and nays, motions to adjourn, and to the various like a modern, whist counter. Of other stratagems known to the rules by which have a small mantel clock for whi have no doubt that gentleman himself has often clock each hour. Bronzed vases will resorted to those means that are called revolutionare plenty at $300. Porceion icas ary, for the purpose of defeating measures to six pieces are held at $180 a set. which he is opposed, and when the gentleman could go through the list of househ succeeds, he puts on as complacent an air as any elegance and utility, and name has tasted nothing since she was sent forth with a occupied by one single member during the present gentleman I ever had the pleasure of meeting.— would not do except in an "age of [Laughter.] All right. All perfectly in accorlance with law, the rules, and the Constitution- tion suggested by the uppish tell speeches are generally the most voluminous .-Mr. NABERS. The gentleman from North Ca- Why, a man who is in the habit of talking any how about little or nothing, can talk a day or two about nothing at all. [Laughter.] I believe was in the arms of a woman who was Mr. NABERS. Yes, "injections," that I hard- either myself, or the gentleman from North Caroif we are to have such members, in this or the other branch of Congress, what will be the result? Why, sir, they will kill off any measure by speak- would have found a warm welling against time. But sir, in a body, embracing Mr. Nabers. If the gentleman is under the so large a number of members as ours, if the rule with a blow. - Springfield (Mass. impression that I have misstated what he has as to the time to be occupied in debate is unlimited, it is notorious that among talking members novel incident of the times, yet so like myself, and a few others I could name, we we notice, in which in the ser der the Baltimore platform, these gentlemen have never should reach the legitimate and proper Church, Savannah, on the ever the right to agitate? I raise that question of or- business for which we are assembled here under in aid of the cause of the Epis the Constitution and laws of the country.

Carolina should have acknowledged that there Shanghai, making a touching at Mr. VENABLE. I am doubly indebted to the was anything which he did not understand, and on behalf of his benighted con area of slavery upon the territory belonging to that quantity in less than twelve months. It lings he saw on every side, such from it. This was not true of either him, or McDuffie, or Hamilton. They were all exceed.

McDuffie, or Hamilton. They were all exceed.

McDuffie, or Hamilton and the subject to ascertain his phimself with any degree of industry for six years ambition all that was left him of former reputation.

McDuffie, or Hamilton and the subject to ascertain his phimself with any degree of industry for six years are to the study of our rules, and could not underly an experience of industry for six years are to the study of our rules, and could not underly an experience of industry for six years are to the study of our rules, and could not underly an experience of industry for six years are to the study of our rules, and could not underly an experience of industry for six years are to the study of our rules, and could not underly an experience of industry for six years are to the study of our rules, and could not underly an experience of industry for six years are to the study of our rules, and could not underly an experience of industry for six years. son against the acquisition of Cuba was a very stand them, it would be time to quit. [Laughter] ignorance of the true God.

culated to have upon young asy But I desire to confine myself mainly to some like myself? [Laughter.] It w

The session must soon termin the gentleman from North Care

he gives what are called down i "seissors," never fails to wind un l

[Here the hammer fell.]

Extraragance of the Temes -A Se correspondent of the Boston Trans home what he calls some plain tradextravagance of our people here, which is true in the main; and as the much which exists between the rival later and minutes are denoted by figures whi cannot fail to call to mind the con

A Touch of Nature. - A car full recently passed over the Western which occurred a simple but tot worthy of record. One of the pass woman, carrying in her arms a child noise, which rather increased the and made the simple statement t the child had died recently away! the mother had been on a visit and had died while on the visit body was on board the train; at to it. It was enough. There was ly every eye, and all were mel patience. All selfishness was b the desolation of the poor little a moment before, would almost port c the fi Dong agains herea) Badge from 1 our es practic other sional Mr. purpo resolu word extren the Se

A Chinese preacher in a Chi

Sir, I no par on the tice; I the as see inj to an some 1 The genuit, gard to excepti undisp time ! sir, the and fre believe that th virtue.

the this be re-at forth" aw wh Mr. exactly forth. alvocat mire of Mr. 1 Mr. 1 to interi He only evend tor fron. proach, ubject np from he inter mulgatic is, as to to the ti loctrine by-gones nation n Now

mirably

Chencefo

Bay Isla

this strat

we do no

terfere w

that is pa

Laught

matter

e how a All of ot intene ment of t to affect f operation Then do . problem c make cole this conti notice her she has de anything ion sign. rect and spect to Do you Illinois cor and I will o protest tion of | on? Is ssible I

orth" in; We law that was hich and t exactl