E refer our readers to the annual statement of the Etna Insurance Company, of Hartford, which will be found in another column. This successinstitution was incorporated by the Legislature of Connecticut in 1819, with a perpetual charter. Its espital is $500,000, and its accumulations exceed $60,000 more, making its entire assets over $300,000, invested as detailed in the statement referred to ese results indicate that during the period of nearly forty years since its organization, (without a single change of its chief officer,) its business has been conjusted with judgment and prudence. It has been thus far successful in an eminent degree, discharging, s we are informed, all its obligations by the payment possible in such a business as insurance, it has been the practice of the Company, for several years, at great labor, carefully to classify and arrange their risks into about fifty distinct classes, so as to ascertain the amount insured on each class, the amount of premiums received thereon, and the amount of losses upneced. This classification, extending over a long neach. This classification, extending over a long and the amount of losses upneced. March 30, 1858. This classification, extending over a l period, and covering property to a very large amount, furnishes reliable data, and presents a sound, substantial basis of actual experience, upon which to conduct its business. Insurance is not a matter of luck or chance, as many suppose; its hazards are ascertainable, and its principles capable of being reduced to a system, the practical working and results of which are as certain as that of any other business. The Ætna Company, adhering rigidly to its system, and placing its busiess upon a healthy basis, has obtained the confidence the community to an extent surpassed by no other Company in the U. States, and has increased its business and its income from year to year with a steady growth. One great source of its security is the wide stribution of its risks-a pelicy which it pursues with great strictness—limiting the amount to be covered in each locality. By this course it has passed, with comparative impunity, through some of the most sweeping and destructive fires, which have swallowed up other companies less cautious in their business. It is a system like this, based upon experience, which gives stability and soundness to a company, and to the assured confidence and security.—Baltimore Patriot.
