BY JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL. Wonderful to him who has eyes to see it right ly is the newspaper. Looked at from a point of criticism tiny puppets they seem all, as the editor sets his booth upon my desk and offi-ciates as showman. Now I can truly see how little and transitory is life. The earth appears almost as a drop of vinegar, on which the solar microscope of the imagination must be brought to bear in order to make out any thing distinctly. The animalcule there, in the pea-jacket, is Louis Philippe, just landed on the coast of England. That other, in the grey surtout and cocked hat, is Napoleon Bonaparte Smith, assuring France that she need apprehend no interference from him in the present alarming juncture. At that spot, where you seem to see a speck of something in THE undersigned intending to remove to the West, will offer for sale, in the town of Carthage, on the 22d day of September, his large and commodious Hotel building, standing on a lot of 4 acres in a high state of building, standing on a lot of 4 acres in a high state of the undersigned for the undersigned in the undersigned intending to remove to the West, which is the undersigned intending to remove to the West, will offer for sale, in the town of Carthage, on the sharper, and you will see a man brandishing his mandibles in an excited manner. This is the great Soandso, defending his position amid tumotion, is an immense mass meeting. Look multuous and irrepressible cheers. That infinitessimal creature, upon whom some score of others, Railroad will be put under contract at an early period, thus adding another incentive to the healthfulness and other advantages of the village. A bargain may be had by application before the day of sale.

That scarce discernible rufflet of smoke and dust That scarce discernible pufflet of smoke and dust is a revolution. That speck there is a reformer just arranging a lever with which he is to move the world. And lo! there creeps forward the shadow of a skeleton that blows one breath between its grinning teeth, and all our distinguished actors are whisked off the slippery stage into the dark beyond. Yes, the little show-box has its solemn suggestions. Now and then we eatch a glimpse of a grim old man, who lays down a scythe and hourglass in the corner while he shifts the scenes. There, too, in the dim back-ground, a wierd shape is ever delving. Sometimes he leans upon his mattock, and gazes, as a coach whirls by, bearing the newly married on their wedding jaunt, or glances carelessly at a babe brought home from christening. Suddenly (for the scene grows larger and larger as we look) a bony hand snatch es back a performer in the midst of his part and him whom yesterday two infinites (past and future) would not suffice a handful of dust is enough to cover and silence forever. Nay, we see the same fleshless fingers opening to clutch the showman himself, and guess, not without a shudder, that they are lying in wait for specta-

Think of it! for two dollars a year I buy a season ticket to this great Globe Theatre, whose scene-shifter is Time, and whose curtain is rung down by Death. Such thoughts will occur to me sometimes as I am tearing off the wrapper of my newspaper. Then suddenly that otherwise too often vacant sheet becomes invested for me with a strange kind of awe. Look! Deaths and marriages, notices of inventions, discoveries, and books, lists of promotions, of killed, wounded, and missing, news of fires, accidents, of sudden wealth, and as sudden poverty. I hold in my hand the end of myriad invisible electric conductors, along which tremble the joys, sorrows, wrongs, triumphs, hopes, and despairs of as many men and women every where-So that upon that mood of mind which seems to isolate me from mankind as a spectator of their "Dew Drop" (5 years old,) Family, Magnolia, Reserve, Excelsion:
