Extracts from Testimonials.

From Prof. WILLARD PARKER, College of Physicians and Surgeons, N. Y.

"W. S. Wells, M. D., has submitted to my inspection his Epitome of Braithwaite's Retrospect. I am very, very much pleased with the result of his labors. He has conferred a great favor upon the Profession. Braithwaite's Retrospect has become voluminous, and of itself makes quite a library. Dr. Wells' Book not only furnishes us with a summary of the whole, bu enables us to refer, without loss of time, to any special subject in the forty volumes."

From John W. Francis, M. D., LL D., New York. "Few Journals devoted to Medical Science have been so eminently distinguished, for a series of years, as Braithwaite's Retrospect of Pratical Medicine and Sur-gery. It may well be deemed quite a library of the great modern improvements in the noble art of healing. I cannot hesitate to say that your undertaking will be an acceptable service to all readers, and widely diffuse the most wholesome knowledge for the benefit of Prac titioners in general, and the cultivators of profitable and saving wisdom. Your labor deserves the patronage of the Profession."

From Prof. Valentine Mott, University Medical Col-lege, New York. "You have rendered an essential service to the Pro-ession by your Epitome of the extensive Retrospect of Braithwaite. The alphabetical arrangement of the sub-jects, makes it more easily available to Practitioners of the City and Country who have but little leisure for reading. I welcome it as a valuable present to the Physician and Surgeon."

From Prof. R. Ogden Doremus, New York Medical "It affords me great pleasure to offer my cordial com-mendation of your laborious undertaking, to present to the Profession an Epitome of Braithwaite's Retrospect.
"You may feel assured that your Condensation and Tabulation of this voluminous work will be appreciated. From Surgeon B. F. Bache, United States Navy, and Director of the Naval Laboratory.

"I have read with great interest the volume of your Epitome of Braithwaite's Retrospect. "The value of the Retrospect to the Profession has Norter's Frinciples of Chemistry. $1 00.

G. Wright, Esq., piduring her recent cruise on the coast of Japan. On over the one now occupied by him in Dr. Robinson's the 7th of October, 1858, the frigate arrived off the entrance of the harbor of Nagasaki. Before leaving Hakodadi, intelligence had been received of the difficulties between this country and England, growing out of the course of the English cruisers in boarding American ships in the Gulf, and so strongly convinced were the officers of WILL attend the County and Superior Courts of Cumberland, Harnett, Moore and Robeson Counnations, every preparation was made to meet the ships of the enemy, supposing any might be lurking about the harbor of Nagasaki, awaiting

His office The strange sail was at once conjectured to be an will be at his residence, on Green Street, opposite the English frigate standing out to give battle, and in a moment all was commotion on board the His correspondents will please address him hereafter Mississippi. The crew were called to quarters, the guns were east loose, loaded with round shot and shell, and trained upon the supposed enemy; the boarders were armed with pistols and cutlasses; the decks were covered with sand, to drink up the blood of the dying; cots were brought up to receive the wounded, and the surgeons were in readiness to operate, in case their services were required. Powder boys ran hither and thither, and everything on board wore a warlike appear-

> The strange sail—a much larger ship than the Mississippi—approached rapidly. Every man stood by his gun. The lock-strings were drawn taut, and the men awaited in breathless silence the approach of the stranger; determined, if she was a belligerent, to give her one broadside at least. The flag of the approaching vessel being concealed behind her topsails, it could not be made out, but as she neared the port bow of the Mississippi, it was found to be the stars and stripes! Every man drew a long breath. But just then the flag was hauled down, which induced the fear that the stranger had played a ruse de guerre upon the Mississippi, in order to take her. Every man sprang to his gun, obedient to the order—"Train the guns upon her!" But the American flag was again run up, and it was soon discovered that the vessel was the U. S. steamship Minnesota, bound for home. From her they learned that the expected war had all ended in smoke. The retreat was beat, the magazines were closed, and after interchanging greetings, the frigate stood on for her anchorage at Nagasaki.

MERCHANT MILLS.

THE subscriber, proprietor of these newly erected Mills, takes pleasure in announcing to the public, that one pair of Burrs is now in successful operation He is aware that public confidence as pertaining to the Milling business in some places, is a very sickly subject, which requires skillful Doctors, proper treatment and good nursing to restore to desired health and strength. He hopes his connection with the business, however, may by no means in the least contribute to the present enfeebled state in which he finds it. Hoping this, he deems it not inexpedient in putting forth his Card to the Public to inscribe upon it the following MOTTOES, which, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, are to be preserved inviolable and unchanged. First—That only out of Corn which never comes into is possession, will more than an honest toll be taken. Second—That a just toll having been imposed on Corn coming into his possession, the remainder will be made into the best meal and hominy the quality of the corn will justify, subject to the order of the owner. The Flouring Mill is expected to be in operation by the first of June next, when he hopes to see farmers from all quarters bringing their loads of Wheat, either to dispose of at liberal prices, or to be converted into flour, designed not to be surpassed.
