At the request of many friends, I again announce myself a candidate for the Office of Sheriff of Cumberland County. Thankful to my fellow-citizens at the London office during the half hour before at the London office during the half hour before for the very liberal support heretofore given me, should they again elect me to the office, I can only promise as the London office during the half hour before six P. M., when the northern mail closes. A before, to discharge its duties with what ability I may letter in the Harverhill Publisher describes it:

"All London is astir to get ready for this mail, and if standing in the passage way you will observe that the hurry and bustle commences a full half hour before six o'clock. At this time a squad of policemen quietly take their places in the long hall to preserve order. Mail matter is received at a large window, in the side of the passage, and upon its sill one of the employes of the office is mounted. The long procession of merchants, porters, boys, women, with huge bundles of newspapers, letters, packages of all sorts and sizes, pass along the hall and thrust their burdens in at the window. There must be no stopping, no delay, no turning back; onward, onward the human current is urged with an irresistible impulse. A perfect storm of missives are hurled past the fellow in the window, upon which he gazes silently and complacently. As the minute hand of the clock nears the figure 6 the hurry and excitement increase, and when but three or four minutes remain they become almost insupportable to the spectater. The rapid walk et the depositors is changed into a run, and in they come pell-mell. Casting an anxious look at the clock, they throw in their letters with a ner-vous thrust, and stumble into the street to wipe the perspiration from their foreheads. But a single minute remains-but half a minute-and still the throng does not diminish. A cloud of missives fly in at the window-a great many, not well aimed, strike the cesement, and tall on the wrong side, to be taken care of by the policemen. The clock strikes six, down comes the window, pat, pat, pat, go the letters against the glass; a second too late they all fall in the passage, and must wait another day."

The Manufacture of Mosaics .- A letter from Rome, in the Rochester Democrat, gives the following account of the manufacture of mosaics at the Vatican factory:- "The mosaic copies of celebrated pictures, which are now almost the LARGE quantity of COTTON and LINEN RAGS, only ones which adorn the interior of St. Peter's, are the product of this manufacture, and are far superior to the ancient mosaics. The ancients, besides their inferiority in painting, show no such delicacy of shading, or such variety of coloring as has been obtained in modern times. The material used for these mosiacs is artificial stone, of which 20,000 different shades are used. No one but a real artist, however, one might at first imagine, can excel in such work. It was interray: Downing's Fruits and Fruit Trees of America—Revised Edition: Memoir of Susan Allibone: The History and Progress of Education: The Normal Methods of Teaching, by Alfred Holbrook: The Magician's Own in the selection and fitting of one little piece of stone into the mosaic which is to be its copy. The large mosaics, eighteen feet in height, which adorn St. Peter's, have some of them cost twenty-five years of the labor of several artists. It seems to me that, rather than undertake so endless and unproductive a task, I would be the slave of a silver mine-and yet the perfection of the work is wonderful. At a little distance it is impossible to tell it from an oil painting, and it is next to indestructible. The mosaics of the Roman churches still last, while the churches themselves have been changed in almost every thing else except the solid walls." THE undersigned have caused to be published from the Congressional plates, an edition of the Report of Capt. Wilkes, U. S. Navy, and his Associates on the Board appointed by the Secretary of the Navy to examine the Deep River Region of North Carolina. This tion was attracted by the barking of a bull terrier is the most important and scientific statement of the great wealth of that section of the State, and the Maps the most perfect and valuable, of any yet published.
