BLANKS for sale at this Office.

Democratic Kentucky for Protection .- The A CCORDING to a resolution of the stockholders of the Fayetteville Gas Light Co., I will sell at public Democracy of this section, is remarkable. We now hear frequent, and apparently earnest Democratic appeals for Southern manufactures, and the protection of Southern manufacturing interests. It is becoming quite fashionable among Administration men to talk in favor of "the protective standard;" of indirect or direct, incidental or positive protection, as the case may require; of specific protective duties levied by Congress; of countervailing duties for the protection of Kentucky tobacco, Kentucky hemp, Kentucky and Tennessee iron, and the products of Missouri; and of the interests not only of the American planter, but also the American cotton spinner. You know our late Democratic Legislature resolved unanimously, by way of appeal to Congress, that it is the duty of the United States to take care of "American tobacco." Our Democratic organs generally have indorsed this protective move and are to-day rolling on the tariff ball and urging the expediency of raising the tariff on ron, silks, wine, brandy, silver and gold ware, &c., to the exorbitant rate which other Governments are charging on tobacco. Also here, and in Tennessee, I learn, they are urging a tariff of something like ten dollars a ton on pig iron, and twenty on bar iron, as necessary to revive the decayed and abandoned iron furnaces. Out of fifty furnaces in blast four years ago on the Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers, only seven are said to be in operation now, for want of Federal protection.

They claim that "adequate protection" ought to be extended to our manufacturers, "to enable them to compete with the cheap labor and capital Home manufactures in every department and on a large scale would be found profitable. They say many kinds of goods can be manufactured cheaper South than North. The merchant can lay in his goods the cheaper, the nearer the manufacturer is to him. "The true policy of the South and West is to manufacture their own cotton and wool, and to consume their own corn and beef at home."

To hear Democrats below Mason and Dixon's line talk like protective tariff men, use some of the same arguments in behalf of American labor and the development of American resources that Mr. Clay and Mr. Webster used, is a little wonderful. Recent events seem to be opening their eyes to their actual condition.

Louisville, Ky. cor. N. Y. Times.

The Official Cuts of Paris .- "In the Budget of the Imperial Printing office, which is now before the legislative body," says the Pays, "is an item which has excited considerable curiosity, -it is for cats. It appears that, in order to preserve the stores of paper, printed and unprinted, from the ravages of mice and rats, a considerable number of cats have to be kept in the establishment; and the expense of giving food twice a day, and of paying a man to watch over them, is sufficiently great to form a special item. These cats were once nearly the cause of war between the director THE undersigned have caused to be published from of the Imperial Printing Office and the director last he discovered that they were killed by cats,

"The keeper of the cats in the printing office perceived his feline stock diminishing, and he suspected the workmen of the establishment of killing them. But one day a cat arrived with a fragment of a snare round his neck, and led to the discovery of the whole truth. The director of the printing-office thereupon complained that his cats were killed, while the director of the archives said that he would not allow his birds to be devoured, but at last an arrangement was made to WILL be happy to see his Southern friends at the above establishment, where either personally or by order, they may be supplied from an extensive and well assorted Stock of Goods in that line, gotten up extensive and on the other that in the event of chives, and, on the other, that in the event of one by chance escaping it should not be put to

Slave Worship.—In an interesting letter from Raleigh, N. C., a late Northern writer says, after speaking of the churches of that city: "The afternoon is devoted by each of the Protestant churches to teaching the slaves. These meetings are held in the basements or conference rooms of the churches; also in a mission chapel established for the slave population in the suburbs. I attended the meeting held in the basement of the Baptist Church. About five hundred slaves were assembled, all dressed neatly; some of the women wearing dresses of rather dashaway style. The meeting was led by two white members of the church. The exercises consisted of singing, reading the Scriptures, with explanations (by the leaders) and prayer, in which the negroes participated. Their petitions were very touching, and in language so chaste that the ear would be offended very rarely by any language peculiar to the negro. Their expressions were those of the truly child-like Christian. They thanked God that "He gave them the Darling of His bosom to come down into this low ground of sorrow; that in Him whosoever believeth may have full joy here and glory everlasting on high." They prayed that "God would then, that very time, pity the weeping Marys, lift up the sinking Peters, and confirm the faith of doubting Thomases;" all their expressions indicating an intelligent and genuine faith. Their singing was very interesting. The songs were generally started by the leading singer, (a slave,) and were familiar to all. As they sang some of the lines, they would take each other by the hand to rejoice together in the future joys of BOOKS AND STATIONERY. which they sang as if already possessing. They seemed to enjoy to the full, without any of that boisterous demonstration so common in all parts of the country. This Baptist Church numbers 600 members, 250 of whom are slaves. The pastor told us that the slaves were as consistent members as the whites, if not even more so. They contributed about four hundred dollars toward the new church now nearly completed "

> Didn't Like the Country .- An officer of the United States Army, who has travelled thus expresses his opinion of Arizona:

"We have just travelled over the much-talkedof Territory of Arizona. Such another God-forsaken, untimbered, unwatered, and unfinished country never before fell under my vision, and my optics have run over a good deal of what is called bad country."
