Condition of the Great Eastern .- Our naval reporter, who went to Europe some time since with the intention of returning in the Great Eastern, arrived yesterday in the steamship City of Rev. FREDERICK FITZGERALD, A. M., Ass't. Washington. He visited the huge vessel on the 2d inst., at Southampton, where she is lying at anchor. She was drawing 221 feet of water forward, and 24 feet aft, nearly all her coal and provisions being on board. Although the rates at tised, only a few tons were sent down to Southampton up to the 2d. The distance covered by the vessel, from her jibboom to the flag-staff could THE duties of the Summer Session of our School will be resumed on the 2d Monday in July.

This School is beautifully situated among the mountains of North Carolina and will soon be accessible by repaired; the cabins have undergone a thorough upholstering within the last few weeks; the strength and quality of all the anchors have been tested; and it is presumed that the Great Eastern is now as perfect as she can be made. Steam is applied periodically to the engines, but no extra-ordinary difference exists between their perform-ance and those of smaller craft. Indeed, it is beginning to be conceded by persons well acquainted with the matter, that sixteen miles an hour is as much as the "big ship" can make on an average. The brass-work about the engineeral fitting up of the chief cabin is not by any to take entire charge of the Boarding establishment, thus giving to the School more of the FAMILY element.

This arrangement, it is believed, will greatly advance the usefulness of the Institution.

April 23. and, as may be supposed, some mirthful denouements were the result. A large, well-worn trunk that looked as though it might have taken several continental tours and gone through the rough usages of one or two military campaigns, led off the lot. Commencing at 25 cents, the bidding went up spiritedly till it was knocked down at $1. 25, when on inspection of the contents, it revealed to the purchaser two pairs of old slippers and two glazed caps. A trunk of ponderous size and weight sold for $5 75, the contents of which proved to be a lot of patent medicines no decent paper would advertise, or decent man have occasion to use. The buyer threw his purchase into the street. A carpet-bag, containing a pair of pants with one leg—the former property of a min whom some mishap had deprived of one of his legs—brought $5 50. A valise sold for $3 50, the purchaser getting for his money nine cravats and nine dollars. Some of the trunks, however, were good investments, being filled with good wearing apparel. An old chest sold for $5, which contained over $200 worth of books. A trunk which sold for $3, had in it, besides a good suit of clothes, a pair of French carzel lamps worth $50. The total product of the sale was about $150, which is said to cover but a fractional part of the indebtedness of the former baggage owners.
