"WE refer our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. CHURCH & DUPONT, No. 409 Broadway, New York. The 'Blood Food', is one of the greatest medicines of the age, and is rapidly driving out of the market all the quack nostrums of modern times. Its efficacy is so great, and its superiority so justly acknowledged, that it is found difficult to supply the immense and increasing demand for the article. Dr. Eaton's celebrated 'Infantile Cordial', is a medicine prepared by a regular physician of eminence in his profession, and one who has devoted his life to the peculiar phases of Infantile diseases. It is no humbug, but a medicine which commends itself to those only who can appreciate it.—Apalachicola, Flor. Times.

HE DIED POOR.
"It was a sad funeral to me," said the speaker, "the saddest I have attended for years."
"That of Emundson?"
"Yes."
"How did he die?"
"Poor—poor as poverty; his life was one long struggle with the world, and at every disadvantage. Fortune marked him all the while with gilded promises, that were, alas, destined never to know fulfillment."
"Yet he was patient and enduring," remarked one of the company.
"Patient as a christian,—enduring as a martyr," was the answer. "Poor man, he was worthy of a better fate. He ought to have succeeded, for he deserved success."
"Did he not succeed?" questioned the one who had spoken of his perseverance and endurance.
"No, sir; he died poor as I have said. Nothing that he put his hands to ever succeeded. A strange fatality seemed to attend every enterprise."
"I was with him in his last moments," said another, "and thought he died very rich."
"No, he has left nothing behind," was replied.
"The heirs will have no concern as to the administration of the estate."
"He left a good name," said one, "and that is something."
"And a legacy of noble deeds that were done in the name of humanity," said another.
"Lessons of patience in suffering, of hope in adversity, of heavenly confidence when no sunbeams fell upon his bewildered path," was the testimony of another.
"And high trust, manly courage, heroic fortitude."
"Then he died rich," was the emphatic declaration; "richer than the millionaire who went to his long home the same day, a miserable pauper in all but gold. A sad funeral, did you say? No, my friend, it was rather a triumphal procession! Not the burial of a human clod, but the ceremonial attendant on the translation of an angel."
"Did not succeed? Why his whole life was a series of successes. In every conflict he came off the victor, and now the victor's crown is on his brow. Any grasping, soulless, selfish man, with a share of brains, may gather in money, and learn the art of keeping it, but not one in a hundred can bravely conquer in the battle of life as Emundson has conquered, and step forth from the ranks of men, a christian hero."

A Sensible Landlord.—An exchange says: A little incident transpired some weeks ago, at one of our Frankfort hotels, which is worthy of notice.
A little girl entered the bar-room, and in pitiful tones told the keeper that her mother had sent her there to get eight cents.
"Eight cents!" said the keeper.
"Yes, sir."
"What does your mother want with eight cents? I don't owe her anything."
"Well," said the child, "father spent all his money here for rum, and we have had nothing to eat to-day. Mother wants to buy a loaf of bread."
"A loafer remarked to the bar-keeper to 'kick the bread out.'"
"No," said the bar-keeper, "I'll give her the money, and if the father comes back again I'll kick him out."

Pins as Tooth-Picks.—There are in all latitudes, we believe, persons who daily and hourly pick their teeth with pins. The practice is exceedingly injurious, and should be wholly ignored. A Virginian exchange tells us there is now a lady in that city suffering terribly from this practice. She had the habit of picking her teeth with pins. A trifling humor was the consequence, which terminated in cancer. Pins are always pernicious to the teeth, and should never be used for tooth-picks.—Petersburg Intelligencer.

Objections to a large Salary.—Ministers in our day rarely object to an increase of salary, but we find in an exchange a capital story of an old Connecticut pastor, who declined it for very substantial reasons:
His country parish raised his salary from three hundred to four hundred dollars. The good man objected for three reasons.
"First," said he, "because you can't afford to give more than three hundred."
"Second, because my preaching isn't worth more than that."
"Third, because I have to collect my salary, which, heretofore, has been the hardest part of my labors among you. If I have to collect an additional hundred, it will kill me."

Another Element.—Another aspirant for romantic fame has sprung up in the person of Mr. C. C. Coe, of Rome, New York, who is making preparations for a balloon voyage to Europe. He has just completed a monster balloon in which to make the trip, and will start on an early day. It is called the United States, and is the largest balloon ever constructed, being nearly three times larger than Lowe's. It will hold 1,731,000 feet of gas, is 280 feet high, 118 feet diameter, and has a lifting power of 69,000 pounds.

At Jones's Wood, New York, on Monday, Blood walked a 1,500 foot rope, with bushel baskets fastened to his feet and a coil of chains dangling from his limbs.
"The ugliest of trades," said Jewell, "have their moments of pleasure. Now, if I were a grave digger, or even a hangman, there are some people I could work for with a great deal of enjoyment."
A young man advertises in a London paper for a wife—"pretty, and entirely ignorant of the fact! Does he want a blind woman?"
