Coercion. - A Kentuckian writes from Memphis to the Louisville Journal of the state of things there, and says Union men claim a majori-He closes his letter with the following significant incident: "It was but yesterday that I was questioned on the street in presence of several gentlemen, as to the position that Kentucky would occupy, by two of the members of the late Seceding Convention of Mississippi, returning by this point to their homes on the Mississippi River. I answered that "I thought Kentucky would adhere to the Union." The reply was "Then we will drag her out, and Maryland, and Virginia, and North Carolina, and

"How will you do so?" was the demand. "All of these States have declared that coercion should not be used towards the Seceding States. We will make a demonstration against Fort Sumter and Fort Pickens. At the first shot we will cry 'coercion,' and, at the first cry of coercion, we shall have all those States." This will be the game, mark the prediction."

Clear the Track.-Every day we are more gravely and fully impressed that it is the people alone who can save this Union. Those whom we have sent to represent us were generally elected to represent some particular little faction or interest, and now, when a crisis has arrived, not contemplated at the time of their election, they are confessedly unequal to the task imposed upon them. While Douglas and Crittenden are capable of rising above party considerations and empty abstractions, above particular theories, which they may have held, and act for the best in this alarming emergency—the others are bound down to the petty little schemes and opinions, which from passion or prejudice, raised them to their present position. It is not that they do not know what is right, but they fear to do it. They fear on account of a mere self-love, lest some one should charge such petty nonentities with inconsistency .- Richmond Whig. One of the most noticeable results of the Virginia election is the entire disregard of party ties that has been shown by the people of the State. They have utterly refused to apply the test of party to a question that belonged to the preservation of the Union and its institutions. The Lynchburg Virginian says: "Halifax is the largest slaveholding county in the State, has always been Democratic, and gave Breckinridge over Bell a majority of 749 votes; and yet it has elected sound conservative men—Hon. Thos. S. Flournoy and James C. Bruce, Esq., old Whigs-to the Convention.

The Flag of the Union Still Flying in North Alabama.-The working men of the town of Athens, Alabama, as we learn from a letter written there on the 29th January, and published in the Nashville Democrat, met in the Public Square on Saturday night last, and "fired thirty-three guns for the Union and that flag that still waves at the Court House, our enemies at Montgomery and Disunionists everywhere notwithstanding. they then paid a visit to Gen. Houston, who had years represented the Athens (Ala.) District in the House. The Nashville Democrat's correspondent savs: The General received the Union men in his usual happy style. He hopes that this glorious Union may still be preserved by the working Union men, and that they may still work in the Union, and find plenty of brave hearts and willing hands to help in every time of need. On taking leave of the General, he was saluted with a volley of musketry and three cheers for the Union. Unhappy Mexico .- It does seem as if the Mexican people were wholly unable to profit by experience. A most disastrous civil war, lasting through three years, and attended with almost every disorder usually following in the wake of civil strife, has just been brought to a brilliant close by those who claim to be the champions of order and liberal ideas, and yet, almost in the very hour of victory, the victors stand arrayed against each other. Questions of minor policy distract their councils ere one single substantial measure of general welfare is even broached. "Puros" and "Moderados" centend with each other to the verge almost of actual hostilities, and this, too, while their enemy is still in the country. According to the latest advices, the course advocated by the "Moderados," which was banishment of Miramon and his adherents, was likely to prevail.

New Orleans Bulletin. The Supply of Cotton.—All accounts from England agree that the British manufacturers are greatly excited and alarmed lest the supply of cotton should fail them from America. "Cotton Supply Associations" have been formed for the purpose of encouraging the cultivation of that plant in India, Australia, Africa, and elsewhere. The London papers report that an immense meeting was held at Manchester, January 22d, with reference to the supply of cotton. Among the resolutions adopted, one called for the raising of a million pounds sterling for the purpose in view. The utmost determination was evinced by the assembled multitude, which comprised a large proportion of the capital of the county of Lancashire,

At Haverhill, Massachusetts, twenty-five perdone by sewing machines run by steam-a combination of the two greatest mechanical inventions. Every operation, except fitting the shoe to the last, even to the final polishing and cutting the that his knowledge of the country and its people will ing the foot, is performed by machinery. One of enable him to have it constructed as cheaply as is possible to have it done by any one else.

Means will be taken to preserve the names of those who contribute. The undersigned is determined that around the sole of a shoe in twenty seconds. Severe Winter in Europe. - The winter has been very severe in Europe. The papers report that the Scheldt has been frozen over at Antwerp for the first time in forty years. The valleys of the principal French rivers, inundated and frozen, present the appearance of vast ice-bound lakes. An immense number of rats that infested the river banks have been killed by the frost-a deliverance which, however welcome to the farmers, Almanacs for 1861-Second sup- will scarcely compensate for the enormous injury ply just received.
