The Horrors of Civil War .- Those who are berland County are requested to attend investing in epaulettes and swords, and, for the at the Court House in Fayetteville, on sport they expect from a civil war, are sparing no pains or effort to get one up, will find, should their unholy efforts be crowned with success, that civil war abounds more in horrors than in pastimes, and that blood and misery rather than pleasure and profit are its horrible fruits. Let them pause and calmly reflect upon the miseries in which they are endeavoring to plunge themselves and the thirty-one millions of their counfidence, continues to insure the lives of all healthy persons from 14 to 60 years of age, for one year, for seven ever read the histories of civil wars and note their horrors? > "As a warning to the American people at this time, they should read the history of the French revolution, and contemplate its horrible results. The extent to which blood was shed during its continuance will hardly be credited by the present age, but it is correctly stated that the number of victims reached one million, twenty-two thousand, and three hundred and fifty-one. Of this number, eighteen thousand six hundred and three were guillotined by the order of the Revolutionary Tribunals; thirty-two thousand were victims under Carrier at Nantes; thirty-two thou-. sand at Lyons; three thousand four hundred women died of premature child birth; three hundred and forty-eight in child-birth from grief; and there were slain during the war in La Vendee nine hundred thousand men, fifteen thousand women, and twenty-two thousand children. In this enumeration are not comprehended the massacre at Versailles, at the Abbey, the Carmes and other prisons, on the 2d of September; the victims shot at Toulon and Marseilles; or the persons slain in the little town of Bedoin, of which the whole population perished."

Let the people look on that picture, and reflect well before they lend themselves to the wild and rash schemes of precipitating demagogues.

Union Sentiment in Mississippi-President Jefferson Davis at Home. - The Natchez Courier denies that the announcement of the election of Jefferson Davis as President of the Southern Confederacy occasioned any rejoining in that city,

So far from the news of the appointment of Mr Davis as Provisional President being received with alacrity it was received with regret. Neither in character nor in politics has he any held upon the confidence of the people. He has at last attained what he has been struggling for for ten years past-a Presidency. We may admire the ingenuity with which he has attained his object, and yet despise the tricks by which he has crawled

There was no sound of rejoicing here at Natchez, Man CHARLES; he is full blooded negro, round ern Confederacy, or the appointment of such one of his ears caused by a cut, the sear has protruded people to have no choice? Can a Convention alzen had to confess that there was no reply to these questions. We live under an oligarchy that has not yet dared to trust the people with a say as to its consent. Right as the South is upon the great question at issue, its position has been compromitted by the events of the last two months. The consent of the governed is an essential element of government. The people of the Southwest might have voted for all that has been done, but their consent has not yet been either asked or

> The Difference.-The Louisville Journal calls attention to the significant fact that, in the Alabama Convention, some days ago, Mr. Yancey opposed a proposition to submit the Constitution, which may be adopted by the Southern Convention that assembled on the 4th of this month, to the several seceding States for ratification. He thought this unnecessary. Our forefathers, when their representatives framed the present Constitution, ratified it before it became the charter of their liberties. Until they did so, it was but so much blank paper. The secession leaders, having driven the people into disunion, wish to impose upon them a government, without permitting them to say whether they approve it or not. In

These are an apeal from the Territorial Court of Kansas on a decision as to the right of the people of a Territory to exclude slavery therefrom; the controversy between Gov. Magottin, of Kentucky, and Gov. Dennison, of Ohio; and the Lemmon case, from New York.

Tom Corwin's Wit .- While this capital joker was a member of the General Assembly of the Ohio State, he brought in a bill for the abolition of public punishment at the whipping post. He made a speech thereon, to which an elderly member replied somewhat as follows:

"The gentleman is not as old as I am, and has not seen so much of the practical operation of the system of punishment, which he desires to abolish. When I lived in Connecticut, it a tellow stole a horse, or cut up any rusties, we used to tie him right up and give him a real good thrashin'; and The Southern Harmony, School he always cleared right out, and we never saw him any more. It's the best way of getting rid of rogues that ever was tried, and without ex-

Corwin rose and replied:

"Mr. Speaker, I have often been puzzled to account for the vast emigration from Connecticut to the West; but the gentleman last up has explained it to my entire satisfaction." The bill was passed without further discussion

A Lincolnism .- At Utica, New York, Mr. Lincoln delivered the following speech: Ladies and Gentlemen: - I have no speech to make to you and no time to speak in. I appear before you that I may see you and that you may see me; and I am willing to admit that so far as the ladies are concerned, I have the best of the bargain, though I wish it to be understood that I do not make the same acknowledgment concern ing the men.
