A GOOD STORY.—IS IT TRUE? New Orleans was illuminated on the evening of the day when Louisiana passed the secession ordinance, and the following story connected therewith is going the rounds:-It so happened that on the day of the illumination the captain of a Mississippi steamboat and his lady were stopping at the St. Charles, and occupied a front room, on the third floor-the first floor of chambers-exactly in the centre of the hotel. The captain was a Union man, and-as the sequel will show-so was his wife. All the city was agitated during the afternoon in prospect of the grand gala night. The St. Charles was to be illuminated, of course. Accordingly, some time during the afternoon a servant knocked at the door of the captain's room, carrying all the necessary trappings for lighting up the chamber windows. Mrs. - opened the door, when the following dialogue ensued: Lady. What have you got there? Servant. Candles, Missis, to light your windows for de 'lumination. L. Well, you can return them to where you brought them from, as I shall not allow them in

S. (Not to be foiled so easily, resumed.) Oh! but massa told me to put up the lights, and so I's got to put 'em up. L. Can't help that; this is my room, and I shan't allow the windows to be illuminated tor what I am opposed to; so that ends it. This closed the first act. The servant reported to the proprietors, who immediately proceeded to the lady's room with a view to convincing her of the importance of permitting the servant to make ready for the grand evening light up. Said they, 'This room is the most central in the entire front, and not to illuminate it will be to mar seriously the effect of the whole:" to which the lady replied: "I am sorry, gentlemen, to cause you any inconvenience, but I believe this room for the time being is ours by right, and I must positively decline, in any way, to add eclat to a great outrage, as I conceive the whole disunion movement to be. My husband (who was out at the time) is a Union man, and I am a Union woman, and this room cannot be illuminated." A few more words were exchanged, which ended by the lady politely requesting the proprietors to leave her room. Determined not to be outdone in a matter of such grave importance, the captain was next found and appealed to. He heard their case; said his wife had reported him correctly on the Union question, nevertheless, he would go with them to the room and see if the matter could be amicably arranged. Scene third ensued. The captain's disposition to yield was not to be seconded by his better half. They next proposed to vacate the best chamber in her favor in some other part of the house, if that would be satisfactory, but the lady's "No!" was still as peremptory as ever. Her point was gained, and the St. Charles was doomed to have a dark front chamber. Pleased with this triumph, Mrs. - devised the following manœuvre to make the most of her victory: Summoning a servant, she sent him out to procure for her an American flag, which, at dusk, she suspended from her window. This made the fourth act in the play, and as the fifth is always indispensable, it had its place here. When evening came, the streets, animated by a merry throng, were illuminated, but, alas! the St. Charles was disfigured by its sombre chamber, when suddenly a succession of lamps, suspended Col. John A. Rowland on both sides of the flag, revealing the stars and stripes, were lit up, and the ensign of the Union waved from the centre of a hotel illuminated in honor of its overthrow! The effect was, to give the impression that the whole house was thus paying homage to the American flag, and what is most significant, is the fact that the latter was greeted by the passing crowd with vociferous applause.

Fredicted Twenty-four Years Ago .- It is a remarkable fact that the present secession movement was foreshadowed just as it has occurred, in a work, called the "Partisan Lealer," attributed to the pen of Judge Upshur, of Virginia, who was killed by the bursting of the "Peacemaker." In that work, under the guise of a novel, it was professed that coming events were described. The Gult States, it was described, had seceded in consequence of the election of a Northern President, and Virginia and other border States were about following suit. An attempt was made to form treaties with foreign nations, and free trade was established, which gave the South an unexampled prosperity. The current of events twenty-four years later has given these predictions the form of fulfilled facts. The author only foreshadowed, however, what was in the minds of the leading politicians at that early day, and to prepare the way for which was the object of publishing the work.

"Our Garners are Full."-The great size and the number of the grain warehouses in Chicago are the wonder of all visiters. And yet vast as they are-two of them affording room for 700,000 bushels—there is not room in the city for another week's receipts-vessels and propellers are in request for loading in order to receive and make room for what is arriving. As we are receiving from sixty to a hundred thousand bushels daily, it is plain that unless navigation opens within two or three weeks our railway managers will be obliged to send peremptory orders to the country to stop shipments. Our tables published a week ago show that we have now in the city at least 4,300,000 bushels of grain. The amount is probably greater by the receipts of last week. Of this we have 1,650,-000 bushels of wheat and 1,600,000 bushels of place in the Town Hall in Fayetteville, on Thursday the corn. Taking the amount in store, by "ciphering" a few moments some very curious results will be reached. Allowing sixty bushels to the load, nearly double what the farmer's team hauls, and it would take 71,666 teams to draw it; and if each team occupy twenty feet, it would A remedied by addressing me at the Fayetteville Post take 365 miles of road to give them standing room. This is exactly the distance between Chicago and Cairo. And, again, it will require 287 vessels and propellers to clear out our warehouses if each one take a load of 15,000 bushels. And yet all we have in store is not a tithe of what our farmers will send forward during the season, if satisfactory prices are realized.

Chicago Tribune. "Times are hard, wife, and I find it difficult to keep my nose above water." "You could easily keep your nose above water, husband, if you didn't keep it so often above brandy."
