I assure the travelling public that they will find everything they may desire at the Engle to make them comfortable. This Hotel has superior advantages over any other house in Asheville, as the Stage Office is kept here for all the Stages that arrive at and depart from this place. I would say to families that intend visiting our beau ful town, and expect to remain several weeks, it will well for them to write and engage rooms, as the agic is generally pretty much crowded by the middle fauly. As regards charges, I will make them suffiently moderate to suit the present times.

Eagle, I am yours respectfully, J. M. BLAIR, Proprietor.

May 10, 1858.

The Southern people will have more and more reason every day, as time progresses, for felicitating themselves on their escape from the Yankee Union. When Northern citizens begin to contemplate in carnest the debt which the Washington Government is now running up for them, and begin to realize the hopelessness of ever restoring the Union and obtaining the aid of the South in discharging it, they cannot fail to be filled with dismay. The expenditures of their Government at this time, on ordinary account, are $80,000,000 a year, by report of their Secretary to the Treasury. Their war expenditures are known to be at least at the rate of $300,000,-000 a year, which is raised on eight per cent. bonds sold at eighty cents in the dollar-that is to say, at the rate of ten per cent. interest, besides the loss of the twenty per cent. margin on the bonds, equal to one per cent. a year on twenty-year bonds. At this rate of eleven per cent. per annum, their war debt will cost the North $33,000,000 a year for interest and discount, besides the par redemption of the principal. The ordinary expenditure being $80,000,000 per annum, the people of the North are saddled with an annual charge of $113,000,000 which must be paid by taxation in some form; and this annual charge will be increased by the sum of thirty-three add tional mislions for each additional year that the war is protracted. At present they cannot eke out more than $50,-000,000 a year from their tariff and direct taxation; there is thus a deficit of $63,000,000 already in their annual accounts, which will be increased to ninety-six millions, one hundred and fifty-nine millions, and so on, should the war be continued one, two or more years longer. During the continuance of the war, this annual deficit will probably be supplied by sale of bonds; but when peace . recurs, it will have to be met by stern taxation; and the predicament of the people having to pay it will be in the last degree unenviable. The South will find out that they have escaped the most enormous taxation wnich a free people have ever yet had to endure; and that their secession, in a mere financial point of view, was the happiest deliverance ever vouchsafel to people since Israel crossed the Red Sea and Miriam sang her song of triumph.

The London Times has some very striking remarks upon the frightful rapidity with which the North is running up its public indebtedness, that are well worthy of Southern attention, and which we copy, substituting dollars for pounds sterling:

"We entreat the reader to observe for a moment what this implies. Such a course throws all our borrowing in-to the shade. In all the nine years of the American war. from 1775 to 1783, we only borrowed $520,000.000, In the twenty-two years of the great revolutionary war we averaged less than $200,000,000 a year, and in the tremendous year 1813-'14 the loan was but $180,000,-000. But this is only half the battle. The burthen, of a load depends not so much on the amount of princi-pal as on the rate of interest. We borrowed our money even in 1813 at a little above four and a half per cent., and in 1854 at a little above three per cent. The Americans, however, began by an offer of seven per cent., and are at this moment compelled to pay ten or twelve per ceat. We find, therefore, that while $5.00,000.000 numually would be added to their national debt. $30,000.000 annually would be added to the charge of that debt. $0 that four years and three quarters of their present expenditures would saddle them with a burthen equal to that which we have incurred in a century and a half. Mr. Gladstone has to provide some $115,000,000 to satisfy the public creditors of Great Britain. In the year 1866, if the American war should be protracted so long, Mr. Chase's successor will have to provide rather more than that sum for the creditors of the Union." The Times concludes with the declaration that, if the North should attempt to defray the cumulating charges of the debt and of the war with money borrowed at these exorbitant rates of interest, they will find themselves engaged in an expenditure "that no country in the world can sup-

The condition of the North will be a melancholy one indeed. Their export of breudstuffs and provisions is very small, and they will siness generally during their absence. They respect-fully ask all persons indebted to them to call as prompthas heretofore been engaged in carrying the immense trade which grew out of and depended upon our Southern staples. They will have created such a sentiment of hatred and antipathy among the Southern people, that European shipping, European manufactures, and European merchants, will be constantly preferred to their own. Their shipping will have to rot at their wharves and three-fourths of thei: lactories will have to stop short in their operations. The chan-A SI wish to change my business. I will sell off my entire stock AT COST. Merchanis and others wishing to repleuish their stocks will find a great many articles here that will be of service, and can be bought dried up; and whereas before, they would have been ab e to pay the most enormous taxes without DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, &c. | teeling them as a burden, they will now be un-P. S. All those indebted to me will please make pay able to pay even small taxes without difficulty and ment immediately, so that I will be enabled to pay my suffering, much less the prodigious taxes which

> A Gun fired by Electricity .- At Edinburg, a wire has been stretched between Edinburg Castle and the Calton Hill, 4000 feet long, which fires a gun at the Castle daily at 2 o'clock. The objection to firing a gun at the observatory at Calton Hill was, that it would derange the instruments there. Accordingly a wire was stretched clear across the city without a rest. The electric current passing on it carries a clock at the Castle, which, at I o'clock, drops a weight that discharges the gun.
