A Federal Deserter .- A deserter from the Federal army at Fernandina-a Jerseyman-came into our lines below a day or two since, and was forwarded to this city yesterday. He gives much interesting information concerning the enemy, and alleges slow pay and bad food as the cause of his desertion. - Savannah Republican.

"Room Enough up Stairs."-It is related that a young man, hesitating as to the choice of a pro-fession, applied to Daniel Webster for advice "The legal profession is quite full, I am told, said the querist, "do you think there is any chance for such a man as myself?" "There is room enough up stairs," was Mr. Webster's significant reply.

The remark is widely applicable. In every laudable and useful avocation, there is usually "room enough up stairs." The lower stories may be full; the moderate, mediocre grades of culture and ability may be crowded; the supply on this level may exceed the demand; and he who is content with a ground floor life, with no earnest diligent efforts to rise, no resolute strivings for excellence and superiority, may find large occasion for doing nothing, because there is nothing to do and nothing to be had for it. Rarely, however, this is the case with the man of large attainments and high ability. Seldom is such a one "out of a place." Society always "hath need of him." The upper apartments, in whatever profession or pursuit, are never over full. Times may be hard-business dull-throngs in the market-place "all the day idle;" and yet it is true as ever, "there is room enough up stairs."

A Stump Preacher, describing the latter days. says:-"Then, my hearers, the axle of the globe will have become so rusty that the earth will stop turning like the old weather-cock on yonder barn You will be obliged to grease the winds to make them glide over the earth, and the lightnings of heaven will not descend without the assistance of
