SPECIAL NOTICE.

From and after this date, no name of a new subscriber will be entered without payment in advance, nor will the paper be sent to such subscribers for a longer time

Such of our old subscribers as desire to take the paper on this system will please notify us when making Jan'y 1, 1858.

TO ADVERTISERS.

Persons out of town who desire advertisements inserted in the Observer, and persons in town with whom we have not regular accounts wir please send with the advertisement as much more hay wish to invest in it, according to our advertising time on the first page. We do not wish to open any more such accounts, -or indeed any accounts. The process of collection is too difficult, and we have to pay each for every thing we 12 Mansfield Lovell, Va, commanding Coast of use or sell in these times.

OBITUARY NOTICES .- We have heretofore given notice, repeatedly, that we charge for obituary notices of un- 14 George B Crittenden, Ken, commanding East reasonable length, and for resolutions of respect; because that kind of reading, we have much occasion to know, is not often more agreeable to readers than to editors of papers. As it generally happens, however, that after charging and paying postage on the account forwarded, we never get paid, we now give notice that we will insert nothing of the sort hereafter unless accompanied by the cash. (Always excepting in the case of deceased volunteers, when we require no pay.) Bear in mind, therefore, that we will insert obituary notices and resolutions, not exceeding 70 words, gratis. For all over 70 words, one cent a word, which must be paid before the notice will be put in type.

SUGGESTIONS FOR OUR VOLUNTEERS-THE

MARCH. We will begin our observations upon this subject, first, by attention to those things which concern the individual, and then come to those which may be considered as duties of the soldiers to each other, and to their officers; coming at last to the duties of an officer conducting the march. Shoes.-The shoes should have broad thick * soles and low heels, with soft upper leather. They should fit well on the instep, be roomy across the ball of the foot, and leave the ankie free. The upper leather should be kept pliable with grease, and a change always ready, in case the pair on begin to chafe the feet in any place; also that one may always have dry feet at night. Socks.—The socks should be heavy woolen ones, thick but soft, and great pains must be taken to have them clean and free from sand or .

Soap and Towel .- Soap and a towel should be carried conveniently ready for use, to wash and dry the feet as often as desirable. A little water from the canteen on the towel will be of great service when more cannot be got.

Blisters .- Stick them on two sides near their edges, so that, when pressed on, all the water will escape. Leave the dead skin, as a protection until new forms. If the skin is broken, protect . the part with grease, free from salt or soap. Have an eye to the nails.

Rest .- At a halt, recline, selecting a dry spot, . or throwing down a blanket or rubber cloth, if the rest be of many minutes' duration. Raise the feet alternately and the blood will flow back, relieving the legs and feet from all feeling of fulness and weariness. More rest can be obtained by the judicious use of a few moments than of hours, if seated say, on the damp ground, with the blood prevented from returning from the feet and legs, by the binding of clothes or a cramped position. In very wet days or places it is sometimes a help to lean against anything, and raise alternately the feet until the blood flows back.

Times for Rest .- Most military writers agree in making their first halt within the first half hour. It need be but for a few moments, as it were, but it enables all to arrange anything wrong about the dress or accoutrements. It takes away from beginners the fear of the fatigues of the day, as it shows a care for a saving of strength, which they would not perhaps practice for themselves. It causes the body to take on gradually the habit of exercise, and the system has ample time to gather its forces for the use of the parts to be employed. Once an hour may do afterwards with tolerably welltrained men. Arbitrary rules cannot, perhaps, be given that will suit every case.

The Rule should be, rest must precede fatigue, As sudden transitions are bad, the march should end as begun—carefully, gently. In training men, never overdo; always stop within the known ability of the man or men.

To walk with case .- Throw the chest forward; this the knapsack will have a tendency to induce. Pass the feet near the ground by the action chiefly of the thighs, and do not let the foot on the ground remain. In this way the Indian glides, as it were, with a light step and great powers of endurance. Contrast this with the rapidity of motion necessary to make the same progress, where the foot is planted heel first, as if never to be taken up again, the body at each step losing its impulse, the foot, the whole frame jarred; a great effort being required at each step to give the body its lost motion. If glide is the word for the first, jerk is that for the last.

the utmost promptitude by every one. An officer * should see to it that careless men do not keep others waiting; the men should be made to see that this is one of the bad effects of a want of ready obedience. Falling Out .- If a man has permission, and is compelled to fall out, his arms and pack should

The Order to fall In should be obeyed with be carried by his comrades to enable him more easily to overtake them; and they will see to it if one is habitually slow to come up. Slight Indisposition .-- It a man is slightly unwell it may be better for an officer to have him relieved of his pack, etc., for part of a day, rather than to have him in the hospital wagon, pack and all, the next. The officer commanding should thoughtfully select the ground, as to water, etc., as well as the
