Very Yankeelike.—An officer in Gen. Loring's army, writing to his brother in this city some account of the campaign in the Kanawha Valley, mentions that when the Yankees were driven from Fayette Court House, among other things left by them in their precipitate flight were the private effects of Col. J. T. Toland, a portion of which consisted of stationery, each separate sheet and envelope of which was embellished with a photograph of the modest Colonel, with his name and title. These, no doubt, were liberally furnished to the soldiers that they might spread abroad the features, name and fame of the warrior Yankee. A letter from the Colonel himself to a friend in Cincinnati was also found, "telling him," as the Confederate officer writes, "that he (Col. Toland,) was then in command of two regiments, and now was the time to push him forward. That his friends must present him with a horse and trappings, and if they could not afford to go the whole hog, he would assist them. In fact, he says, it must be done at all hazards, if he had to foot the entire bill. He also wished it mentioned editorially in the leading papers." He suggested that his chaplain, who was then in Cincinnati, should make the speech. He says the chaplain is a queer fellow, and might not be inclined to do so, unless he is paid for it, and he authorized his friend to offer him one hundred dollars, and to go as high as five hundred, if he would not do it for less."

Unluckily for this Yankee brave, Loring came and "pushed him forward" before his Cincinnati friend had a chance. Under these circumstances we feel called upon to do for him what he desired should be done in the newspapers of Hogopolis—mention his case editorially. We hope our service in this regard may become known to him and his friends.—Richmond Whig.

A. P. Hill's Light Division.—This Light Division embraces six brigades, to wit: Gregg's, Pender's, Archer's, Field's, Thomas' and Brauch's (now under command of Col. Lane.) The troops of the Light Division are reported to be from the States named, viz: Field's, Virginians, Branch and Pender's, North Carolinians; Thomas', Georgians; Archer's, Tennesseeans, except 19th Georgia, Gregg's, South Carolinians, 8 batteries artillery and some cavalry.

Tallow Candles Equal to Star.—Messrs. Editors Mobile Register & Advertiser:—It may be of interest to your numerous readers to know that, with not a cent of additional expense, tallow candles can be made fully equal in point of merit to the common star candle.

To two pounds of tallow add one teacupful of good strong 'ley' from wood ashes, and simmer over a slow fire—when a greasy scum will float on top; skim this off for making soap, (it is very near soap already) as long as it continues to rise. Then mould your candles as usual, making the wicks a little smaller—and you have a pure, hard tallow candle, worth knowing how to make—and one that burns as long and gives a light equal to sperm. The chemistry demonstrates itself. An ounce or two of beeswax will make the candle some harder, and steeping the wicks in spirits turpentine will make it burn some brighter. I write with one before me. Yours, W.

What Covode said about Webster, the "Spy."—At a meeting recently held in Philadelphia, the Yankee member of Congress, John Covode, made a speech, in which we find the following:

I went to Washington to see who it was that was carrying information to the rebels, and we got a man named Webster to carry the rebel mail from Maryland over the Potomac to Richmond; but it was carried through Washington, and assorted by me in the Committee room, in the Capitol; and I found who it was in the North that were furnishing information to the rebels, and when we got a large mail, there were a great many who had to go to prison. (Laughter and applause.) After a while the rebels found out Webster's devotion to the Union, and they hung him in Richmond.

The "Allen Pear Tree," in Salem, Massachusetts, which is two hundred and twenty-four years old, bore thirteen bushels of fruit this year. This beats the Stuyvesant Pear Tree, at New York, which, though two hundred and fifteen years old, bore some fruit last year, and also this year, but not in such quantity as the Salem tree.

Fighting for the Fat Gourd.—The true object for which the Lincoln Government is prosecuting the war, is well illustrated in an incident which occurred during the Federal occupation of the gallant County of Jackson, Ala. A patriotic matron annoyed, but not at all intimidated, by the uninvited visit of a Federal soldier, asked him—"What are you Yankees fighting for, anyhow?" He returned, for answer, the stereotyped lie—"Why, for the Union and the Constitution." "Well," said the matron, "I suppose you found the Union and the Constitution when you stole Mrs. Simmons' fat gourd, t'other day."

The North is fighting for the Southern fat gourd; in other words, to enrich themselves on the fat of the land at Southern expense, but they are much more likely to throw all of their own fat in the fire, says the Huntsville Confederate.

New Broom.—Dr. J. W. Parker shows an excellent broom made at the Asylum from the tops of the Sorgha or Chinese Sugar Cane. Dr. P. after making from about one acre of land 100 gallons of good syrup and grain in abundance for poultry, is now making a supply of these brooms, which are made after the fashion of the regular house broom, and appear to be a very excellent substitute.—Columbia Guardian.

A Happy Man.—We heard a man congratulating himself for being exempt, the other day, upon grounds that we should not consider in the highest degree exhilarating, although he appeared to be quite transported in contemplating them.

"I am exempt from the draft!" said he, rubbing his hands in glee, his face expressive of violent joy.

"How so?" we asked.

"I hain't got only one lung!" he yelled; "ha! ha! ha! pulmonary consumption has got the other—ha! ha! ha! I hain't got only one lung! ha! ha! ha!" and he laughed until he was seized with a coughing fit, which threatened to relieve pulmonary consumption the task of using up another lung.

A boy was asked what meekness was. He thought for a moment and said, "Meekness gives smooth answers to rough questions."
