VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE.
THE undersigned having recently undertaken public duties, incompatible with the management of the property hereinafter described, will sell at Auction, for Cash, (currency,) at 12 o'clock, M., on the 20th Jan'y next, (unless sooner disposed of at private sale,) his Tract of LAND in Moore County, on the Fayetteville and Western Plank Road, about 1000 acres, bounded by Dargue and Asheboro, containing about 507 Acres, of which some 50 or 60 acres is probably cleared, and well fenced, and some four acres good Meadow. It has on it a comfortable DWELLING, Kitchen, corn shed, great Barn, Store House, spacious Stables, &c.
The sale will be made at the premises, and immediate possession will be given to the purchaser.
He will also sell, at private sale, his Lots and Residence in the town of Asheboro, with, or without Two Farms, near the village. One of the farms about a mile from the village, contains about 100 acres, 80 acres of which is in cultivation. It has on it some 8 or 10 acres of good meadow. About 40 acres is seeded, in good order, with a superior variety of wheat, and with rye and winter corn. The remaining 20 acres is a corn crop. Three-fourths of the outside fence of this place is built of stone. The other tract, about 2 miles from the village, contains 305 acres,—about 60 acres in cultivation—some 16 acres of which is seeded in Winter corn—The remaining 140 acres is in good order for a corn crop. The property in Asheboro consists of several contiguous lots, containing about 10 acres, all of which is in excellent condition; has on it an orchard of more than 200 trees, in bearing condition—consisting of choice varieties of apple, peach, pear, cherry and other fruit trees—about 2 acres of highly fertilized and productive meadow.
The dwelling is 32 x 20 feet, with a wing 18 x 26 feet, both two stories high. The rooms of the main building are all plastered in Paris based finish style. There are 5 bedrooms, 2 bath rooms, a kitchen, a parlor, a dining room, and a library room, all fitted up with the most modern shelves, &c. The wing has two rooms with fire places, a dining room, and one room without a fire place, with fixed wardrobe, and a spacious and dry cellar under the building. The main buildings consist of a kitchen, three negro houses with two rooms in each of them, four of the rooms having each a fire place, and one of them a stove, well house with pantry, a large stable house, carriage house, wood house, two offices, each with two rooms and one fire place, a framed barn 34 x 30 feet, with stable room for 5 horses, space for sheep worth enough to produce 500 bushels, two oiled granaries capable of holding each 500 bushels of grain, with a basement story to shelter out the sand also separate stables, a well with house supplied with a constant stream of cool spring water. The buildings are all in excellent condition, and have been recently painted.
Persons desiring to make further inquiries, can apply to me at Raleigh, or my son or brother residing in Wilmington, my brother in Fayetteville, or to my son-in-law S. S. Jackson in Asheboro, who is fully empowered to make a sale.
I am anxious to remove to Raleigh I can give no more time to possession.

BLUE MASS! BLUE MASS!
I DESIRE to call the attention of Druggists and Physicians to the superior quality of the BLUE MASS I am now manufacturing by machinery.
The BLUE MASS made by me is warranted to be ONE THIRD MERCURY, and equal to any made in England, and much superior to most of that now brought into the Confederacy from the United States, (as nearly all that is deficient in Mercury.)
As an evidence of the superiority of the BLUE MASS made by me, I would ask your attention to the analysis of it by Professor R. Emmons, well known as one of the most scientific men in the country; also to the following recommendation from Dr. Edward Warren, late Professor in the University of Maryland, and now Surgeon-General of North Carolina.
R. S. FRENCH.
Dec. 13, 1862. 86-10-11

NOTICE.
Having had the best opportunity for testing the qualities of the Blue Mass manufactured by R. E. Saunders, at Chapel Hill, N. C., I am prepared to say that it is inferior to none in use in any particular. Therefore affords me pleasure to recommend it to the Profession at large as a most valuable and reliable preparation.
EDWARD WARREN,
Surgeon-General of North Carolina.
SEPTEMBER 29, 1862.
Mr. R. B. Saunders—Dear Sir—I had your Blue Pill Mass to be perfectly homogeneous all the mercury being converted into the Protoxide. By analysis I also find, after three trials, eight grains of Protoxide in twenty-five of the Mass. It is dry and I should remark that a small portion of the Oxide was retained. I am satisfied, however, that your Blue Pill Mass contains one-third Protoxide of Mercury, and must have been prepared with skill and care. Yours, truly,
E. EMMONS, State Geologist.

Orders for any quantity can be filled, and it can be sent by Express to almost any place in the Confederacy. Orders solicited.

"STONEWALL JACKSON."
The Army correspondent of the Savannah Republican furnishes the subjoined sketch of that noble Virginian, Gen. Thos. J. Jackson:
It is said the hero of the Shenandoah made his appearance on the field at Fredericksburg as a man in uniform, including a fine dark blue overcoat, and a handsome cap, with the requisite quantity of gold lace about it. His disguise was complete—so much so, indeed, that he was hardly recognizable by his intimate associates. Thout, since his ordinary apparel is very plain, and his tastes and habits exceedingly simple.
General Jackson is not yet quite forty years old. He is of medium size and height—weighs about one hundred and forty-five or fifty pounds—has dark, not black, hair, and wears short side whiskers. His complexion is rather pale, and his features, when at rest, are destitute of expression. His manners are wholly devoid of grace, especially among strangers, when he is both awkward and embarrassed. On horseback his appearance is anything but prepossessing, as it is almost under any circumstances, and one who should meet him on the road, would be apt to take him for a quiet farmer, with full barns at home, and no creditor abroad, going to the Court House, or, better still, for a country schoolmaster who, though all mused to the saddle, had undertaken to ride over to a neighboring patron's house on Saturday, and was meanwhile engaged in some difficult mathematical calculation as he joggled along. But place him on the battle-field—let the cannon begin to thunder, the small arms to rattle, and the sabres to flash in the sunlight—and the quiet farmer, the awkward, calculating pedagogue, becomes a hero—calm and self-possessed, it is true—but tall of fire and energy, quick as lightning and terrible as the thunder-bolt.

Though it is the boast of General Jackson's friends that he has not a spade in his army, yet it would be doing him injustice to suppose he is unmindful of the advantages of a strong position or that he neglects any honorable means which may contribute to his success. No officer in the army is more attentive to his duties, or labors harder and longer than he does. He is very careful to ascertain the strength and position of his adversary, and having done this, he swoops upon his prey like the eagle from his eyrie.
There is some diversity of opinion among military men in regard to Gen. Jackson's qualities as a strategist and commander of an army, but none as to his ability as a fighter. In his battles he has been attended with a larger degree of success than any officer in the army. He is the idol of the people, and is the object of greater enthusiasm than any military chieftain of our day. And this, notwithstanding the fact that he marches his troops faster and longer, fights them harder, and takes less care of them than any other officer in the service. Indeed, some go so far as to say that if he had no enemy to encounter, and nothing to do but march his troops about the country, he would yet lose one third of them in the course of a year. This indifference to the comfort of his men is only apparent, however—not real. No man possesses a kinder heart or larger humanity, but when he has anything to do, he is so earnest, so ardent and energetic that he loses sight of everything but the work before him. If, for example, he were required to move his corps from Fredericksburg to Richmond and had two weeks to do it in, he would be almost sure to perform the march in four days, or one-fifth of the time, because he does not know how to do anything slowly. His style of campaign, as he is reported to have told Gen. Lee just after the second battle of Manassas, is to seek for the enemy, and to strike him whenever and wherever found, in season and out of season, and whatever his position or numbers.

Gen. Jackson is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and a sincere and humble christian. He considers himself an instrument in the hands of God, and never arrogates any credit to himself when victory perches upon his banners, but ascribes all the praise to Him, without whose knowledge not a sparrow falls to the ground. Many apocryphal stories have been set afloat in regard to his religious practices after a battle—such, for example, as that he is in the habit of drawing up his troops in line and returning thanks to God for the victory. I am assured that nothing of this kind has ever occurred. He is too sincere a christian to indulge in such ostentatious displays of his piety.

It is said that the bold chieftain has but one weakness, and that relates to his middle name. It is generally supposed that his name is Thomas Jefferson Jackson, but this is a mistake. The J. does not stand for Jefferson nor Johnson, nor Jeremiah, nor Jeroboam, but for James. What, then, do you suppose it is, reader? Why John. John is the name (Uncle Jonathan) by which the United States are personified. The General does not want it to get out that he bears any such name, and it is hoped, Mr. Editor, that your readers will say nothing about it.

The Outrages in Fredericksburg.—A letter in the N. Y. Tribune dated Fredericksburg, Dec. 12th, says:
The old mansion of Douglas Gordon—perhaps the wealthiest citizen in the vicinity—is now used as the headquarters of Gen. Howard, but before he occupied it every room had been torn with shot, and then all the elegant furniture and works of art broken and smashed by the soldiers, who burst into the house after having driven the rebel sharpshooters from behind it. When I entered it early this morning before its occupation by Gen. Howard, I found the soldiers of his five divisions discovering themselves with rich dresses found in the wardrobe; some had on bonnets of the fashion of last year, and were surveying themselves before mirrors, which an hour or two afterwards were pitched out of the windows, and smashed to pieces upon the pavement; others had elegant scarfs bound around their heads in the form of turbans, and shawls around their waists.
We destroyed by fire nearly two whole squares of buildings, chiefly used for business purposes, together with the fine residences of O. McDowell, Dr. Smith, J. H. Kelly, A. S. Colt, William Slaughter, and many other smaller dwellings. Every store, I think without exception, was pillaged of every valuable article. A fine drug store, which would not have looked badly on Broadway, was literally laid low by broken glass and jars.
