The Wealth, Power and Crime of London .-The city of London now covers an area of one hundred and twenty square miles, and contains a pepulation of about three millions souls. It is stated in a late report of the Registrar General that its population has increased, since 1860, at the rate of one thousand per week. It far surpasses any other city on the face of the earth in wealth, and, alas-it must also be added-in human misery Two story Brick Tenement on South side of Hay also. The Registrar-General records the lament-street, adjoining Mr. E. P. Moore able fact that one in six of those who leave the The above property will be rented at the Market world, die in the public institutions—workhouses, House in the town of Fayetteville, on Tuesday Jan'y 12th, 1864.

M. A. RUSH. Adm'r. eleven of the deaths is in the workhouse. Every sixth person dies a pauper or a criminal! And how great a number who barely manage to escape this fate. The severe conrectition for to pass through. Cities are centres of great temptation, in which many persons sink every year from wealth to poverty, by a love of display beyond their incomes. Others again are tempted still deeper, and forsake the paths of virtue for those of vice. An Incident at Gettysburg .- A Surgeon of the Virginia army relates the following incident: As I was pushing my way through a crowd of idle spectators, at the 2d corps hospital, Gettys-burg, one of our wounded, from a North Carolina regiment, called to me in a feeble voice. I went to him, and he said:

"You are a Confederate surgeon, are you not?"
I answered him, "Yes; what can I do for you?"
He caught me nervously by the arm, and in a manner very striking and very eloquent, he uttered: "What do you think, doctor? I am wound-The Shaw plantation, on Cape Pear, Stoiles from the present year. For further particulars, apply to JAS. JENEINS. ed. "What do you think, doctor?"
