Type are now extensively engaged in the manufacture of a very superior entitle of LUBRICATING OIL. This Oil is made from Rosin, but by an enarchy new process, and so far surpasses the vegetable oils harelofore made in this country that good judges have pronounced it almost, if not quits, equal, for lubricating purposes to the best Train Oil.

It has been largely used by the Railroads in Virginia and North Carolina and fully answers all the purposes of the most expensive oils heretofore used. Wherever it has been tried it has given complete sattefaction, and has, permaneutly, taken the place of all other imbrigators IT IS THE VERY BEST VEGETABLE OIL MADE IN THE CONFIDERATE STATES.

We have now on hand, which we offer at a very low premises on TUE-SDAY the 29th November 1854.

The Land is in one body, and contains 485 acras, nearly sil of which is valuable Swamp Land, there being 80 acres well drained, cleared and under cultivation, yielding the best crops of any land in this section of the State. There is also about 200 acres of Swamp Land matter for them, and bring theirs with your own, on equally as good as that under cultivation, to be cleared, which may be easily drained, (some of which is already ditched and partly cleared;) the remainder is used for pasture and word land. The houses and buildings are atta convenient distance from the farming lands above described, on a healthy, high and dry part of the tract, with good water. The buildings are in good repair, in-oluding a comfortable dwelling house, convenient and well arranged negro houses; good fences, stables, barus, oribs, lote, gardene, &c. The plantation is 14 miles from Fayetteville, on the East side of the Cape Fear River, about one and a half miles from the River, and embraces what is known as Alligater Swamp, adjoins Johnson and others, and is not very far from the mouth of Godar Greek and the residence of Mr. J. The safety of Richmond.—Richmond has never been so safe, and never felt herself so safe, since the battle of Williamsburg, as at this day amounting to over 300,000 men, wielding at his absolute discretion military powers and resourers city of 50,000 inhabitants. What is most remarkable of all is that the greatest of yankee generals is here in front of the town yet: the wondrous siege is still in full blast: we can still hear his guns bellowing: by night we drop asleep to the fullaby of their hollow roar: in the morning they sound our reveille. The man is even now taking Richmond, vows he has it by the throat:—yet our city never felt so safe, never slept so tranquilly, nor awoke so hopefully, siace the day McClellan landed on the Peninsula.

The reason is, that we all know Gen. Lea her lately received and it was all he wanted a certain number (no need to specify how many) of the very choicest reinforcements, for the purposes of the present campaign, that the genuine old Virginia stock could afford him. By the revocation of details, and the present energetic administration of the conscript laws, especially by the flocking in of the reserves, boys under 18 and men over 45, a new force has been added to that veteran army which has fought the hosts of Grant since the 5th of May. The detailed men elso from North Carolina have been brought up in goodly numbers—the reserves of that State remaining for local defence; so that upon the whole Persons who wish to send Packages to Co. F, 24th N. C. Reg't, Cumberland Plow Boys, will leave them with A. A. Moout Indeed he has already partially found out; he has "felt" them; and it is with pride and high contenument, and a feeling, it possible, of increased security, cur citizens have learned the full and true results of the enemy's grand advance Qa Thursday last; in which the repulse of the yankees was both complete and shameful, and the disproportion of loss shows a heavier balance against the foe than even Spotsylvania or Cold Harbor .- Richmond Whig.

Messrs. Editors: As most persons have pressed their cane, I regret that I could not have given, through your columns, to the public, before this time, the results of my experiments with the Sorthum or Chinese Sugar Cane. But I hope it is not too late for some this year, and it may be of use to all next year.

I find that by a simple and cheap process, a good yield of excellent brown sugar can be made. I will state my process now, in as few words as possible, and promise at some leisure time to make a more full statement. The juice contains starch and gum or jelly, which it must be cleared of, before it can make either good syrup or sugar; and this must be done before it boils. For these purposes, I have a receiver under my iron mill, sufficiently large to hold enough to fill my boiler. Inta this I nour a half gallon of clear time water to 50 gallons of juice I manual m in it. The juice being pressed, and the starch baving settled to the bottom, I draw it off through a spile hole near the bottom, leaving the starch on the bottom, below the spile. It is now carried to the clarifier, which is a sheet iron bottomed boiler, on a flue so high that a tube may run iro the bottom to the top of the boiler proper. In this clarifier I simmer three hours. (It must not boil.) During the last half hour of this simmering, I cover the surface of the juice with bits of charcoal, chopped to about the size of the thumb ends. When it has simmered three hours, I put out the fire and allow the juice to get cold, the colder the better. Under moderate heat, the lime has done its work, a thick jelly has formed on the bottom below the tube, the coal has precipitated the lime and floats on the top, with the scum. I now draw off the juice, through the tube, from under the scum and from over the jelly, into the boiler, and boil the now clarified juice as rapidly as possible until it foams and assumes a beautiful vellow color; then draw out my fire and boil slow, until it has puffed steam for some minutes, the meanwhile stirring with a wooden paddle. The syrup is now removed to some open vessel to cool and granulate. If made properly, it will granulate before it is entirely cold, but it may take two or three days, or even more. If it does not in 24 hours, I sprinkle a little sugar over it. After it has granulated, it may be put in leaky barrels, or into a bag to drip. I have had it to turn to a solid lump of sugar as soon as cold.

I find that 100 pounds of cane will yield about

80 pounds of juice, or 8 gallons, which will make

4 to 6 pounds of good molasses, far superior to the syrup that is made without extracting the If any person who has boiled his syrup in the ordinary way, desires to see the effects of not getting clear of the gum or jelly, let him attempt to make candy of it, and when he pulls or eats it, I think he will be satisfied that it is akin to gum.

If any person will follow the principle above indicated, he will most assuredly succeed in making sugar. I will further add, if he will have the fixtures and follow my process he will find that he has made a good article of sugar by & cheap and easy process, that has cost him but little more than the common syrup that he has been making.

Cheerfulness .- Try for a single day, I beserob you, to preserve yourself in an easy and cheerful frame of mind. Be but for one day, instead of a fire-worshipper of passion, the sun worshipper of clear self-possession, and compare the day in which you have rooted out the weed of dissatisfaction with that on which you have allowed it to grow up, and you will find your heart open to every good motive, your breast armed with a panoply against every trick of fate; truly, you will wonder at your own improvement - Jean Paul Richter.

Vanity -- In the infinitely modified varieties of human vanity, the most unpleasant to the individual, and to those who are brought in contact with him, is irritable conceit. The vain man, who is not satisfied that all the world thinks as well of him as he thinks of himself, is a wretched creature. Pride, though an isolating passion, is, at all events, independent. Vanity is dependent upon others' opinions for its satisfaction, if act for its support.
