FRIDAY MORNING APRIL 27, 1860.

Charleston Convention.

We refer to our Telegraphic head for the latest news from Charleston. Our latest dispatch left Charleston at 2:45 yesterday afternoon. The Platform was to be reported yesterday evening and the voting for a candidate it was thought would commence to-day. Douglas' friends seem not but their anticipations will be realized. We shall expect further news to-night, and if the nomination be made to-day we shall probably be able to announce it to-morrow.

INDEPENDENT PAPERS.

After enumerating the independent papers in the State the Salisbury Watchman says:
"The Bulletin and Progress are equally determined not to be driven into party service. We have noticed these more particularly than the others, and therefore speak of them thus. The others may be quite as decided. They have our best wishes—we applaud them. If they will dispense equal handed justice; if they will take the pains to find out the truth and tell it, they will do the work for which we are looking, and we shall be glad to see them in the ranks of the party. We need independent papers: the people need just such an institution as these journals are, if it be possible for human weakness to act impartially in regard to political parties. Search honestly for the truth, gentlemen, and God speed. We have had political lying and misrepresentation until the people will scarcely believe truth when they hear it."

The Watchman is right. The Progress is not to be driven into the service of party. Our mission is a higher one. Whenever we feel it our duty to raise our voice in behalf of the Union, and for the rights of the States under the Constitution, we will do it, not caring whom we please or whom we offend, but we are not to be driven into a war of abuse and vilification of our neighbors and friends because they differ with us on matters of State and National policy. We know that we are sincere in our convictions and we have no cause to believe that those who differ with us are insincere, and claiming the right to exercise our own judgment and express, when we choose, our own opinions, we extend the same privilege to all men.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—Our thanks are due and publicly tendered to our old friend Pennington, of the "Progress," for his kind and disinterested attentions during our short visit to Newbern, last week. When, or how, can we serve you, friend P. —Rough Notes.

No indebtedness we assure you. We are not conscious of having done more, or even as much, for you as you have done time and again for us. Acknowledging our many past sins of omission and commission, we have determined, in future, under all circumstances and on all occasions, to endeavor to do as we would have others to do by us; and should we have the moral firmness to carry out this good resolve we shall only be accomplishing what is the duty of all men to strive for.

We hope that our friend W. will visit us often. We assure him that if any poor attentions we can show him will make his stay in Newbern pleasant they shall not be withheld.

DAILY ROUGH NOTES.—We have received the first number of the Daily Rough Notes, issued at Goldsboro, by Wm. Robinson & Son, Editors and Proprietors. It is the same size of the Progress, is democratic in politics, but will not devote itself entirely to party to the exclusion of general news. Of Mr. Robinson as a talented and spirited political writer it is useless for us to speak; his connection with the press heretofore has made him well and favorably known. But the people of Goldsboro' and of Wayne are the parties most to be benefited by the success of this enterprise, and they will study their own interest by giving it that liberal support which will place it on a permanent basis. We hope and trust it may succeed, and think it will. The wants of Goldsboro' require a Daily paper and there is no more favorable point in the State to make a good one.

PIOUS PEOPLE.—The good citizens of Raleigh must certainly be a very pious people. In addition to the usual number of fashionable and unfashionable churches for a small place, they, or some of their new-fangled religionists, have imported two female spiritualistic preachers from Yankeeedom who are holding forth in that benighted city. One of them is down on "free loveism." The position of the other is not given but we suppose she is for it. Really credits morality so fast that were the Apostles to return to earth they think they could scarcely tell who were their successors.

DIVIDEND.—The Directors of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad Company, have declared a dividend of four per cent on the profits of the last six months, payable on and after the 17th of May next.

REPORTERS AT CHARLESTON.—A New York correspondent of the Charleston Mercury thus talks about the Reporters of the New York press who are in attendance on the National Convention:

Poor Charleston! I pity her. What has she done that she should so be sneered from the profane intruders by every despot and caricaturist in the country; that her quiet citizens and their placid modes of life should be made the subject of impertinent inquisitiveness; that her little local peculiarities should be comically exaggerated, and all her in-conspicuousness made the nine days' wonder of all the people of these United States? I prepare to suffer, unhappy city! I already am newspaper correspondents descending upon thee in hordes, the mercenary manufacturers of sensation letters! Thy kitchens, cellars, attics and coal bins will no longer be sacred from the profane intrusion of the outside world! The New York reporter goes every where and probes everything! No keyhole is small enough to keep him out; no bull dog big enough to drive him away, when, with pencil and note book, he has entered on his professional task. What is no joke, as you Charlestonians will find before the Democratic National Pow-wow is over. Harper's Weekly starts out to-day with a general picture of your lovely home, a view of the building in which the Convention is to be held, and a caricature "at Charleston." The other illustrated papers are preparing to deliver whole broadsides of Charleston pictures.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

From Our Own Reporter.

SALISBURY, N. C., April 23, 1860.
Dear Progress:—After a pleasant ride of 12 hours, I find myself in this ancient borough, comfortably lodged at the old, but popular establishment known as the Mansion House.
Coming up this morning, when just in sight of Goldsboro, we were met by a couple of very polite good looking young men who had been sent out by the two very accommodating proprietors of the two deservedly popular hotels, at that place, for the purpose of giving us a cordial invitation to their respective houses, which they did by presenting us with a ticket, complimentary of course; and on arriving at the station we were met by about a dozen gentlemen, of African descent, who manifested extreme anxiety to escort us to the dinner table. Well, you know how such things puzzle a man, so I was somewhat perplexed to know which invitation to accept, but finally I determined to go to Baker's inasmuch as his agent had placed his card in my hand first, and I have had no cause to regret it yet, though I have no doubt that Griswold would have given me just as good a dinner as he did.

At Raleigh we were detained awhile waiting for the Northern train. When it came it brought a considerable crowd, among whom there was one delegate on his way to the Charleston Convention. I do not know his name or where he was from, he was, however, a very good looking man—rather better looking than Democrats usually are; but then I guess they always select their best looking ones to send from home.

Speaking of good Hotels reminds me of Miss Nancy Hilliard's supper house at the Company's Shops. Now it's no use talking,—the Newbern and Goldsboro Hotels are reputed good houses, and so they are, but not when compared with Miss Nancy's. Indeed, if she was a few years younger, I think I would go by her house on my way to any point whithersoever I might be steering, just to get one of her good suppers and hear her ringing voice as she orders the servants to bring the warm biscuits, eggs, &c. Really, it does seem a pity that any lady who can get up such good eating and who can step nimbly and gracefully around her guests while she distributes to each his portion in due season, should ever grow old or decrepit.

While we were talking supper at the Shops a coffin enclosing the remains of a lady who had recently died, was placed upon the train to be brought to this place for interment. Her name I have forgotten. Her husband died only a month ago.

Having arrived here late to-night, I have been unable to see many people or hear much of the gossip of the town. I saw, however, the bills of the Parker Family on the desk and learned from Mr. Rowzee that they are drawing very good horses except on rainy nights, of which there have been three very recently, giving the farmers a fine season.

I noticed several objects of interest on my way up which I have not time to mention as it is now 12 o'clock. One, however, I will call your attention to—that is the new Military Academy at Hillsboro', which, when completed, will not only be an ornament to the town, but to the State, occupying, as it does, a commanding view from the village and Railroad, and yet sufficiently removed from both to prevent any annoyance from either.

I am glad to hear that your friends of the Watchman and Banner are both well and prosperous. They are still pitching into politics with their usual zeal, though rumor has it that the Banner man has rather a tough time of it. Ad valorem, they say, is rather a dangerous subject for him up in this mountain country, inasmuch as the good points of the question are all on one side. I will not be able to see either of them until I return, as I go West early in the morning. So, good-night.

NORTH KERLINER, Ouselow Co.

Mister Editor:—I bin thinking for sum time to write a communication for your paper and sine my name to it, but my darter Jimmy tells me, "Ma every body will be laffin at your bad spellin and don't do it," but I want to see my name printed one time afore I die, specially in the Progress, so I have setted myself to drop you a line, which you can print if you see fit and if not then as the poet sez—"commit it to flames." I haint none of your educated wimmin fur I lives way off in the Piney woods whar the miskeeters swarm like bees and the ticks are as thick as the locusts was in egypt when Moses opened Pandure's box, I believe twine him, want it. There aint no town close here and we haint got but one post office in all the region round about.
