Raleigh. The declamation was gen rally cood -zome very good. Without disparaging any of the others, special mention might be made of Messrs. Me-Millan, Daniel, Wilson, Bunch and Taylor, of Raleigh.

At 7] o'clock P. M. we were ushcred into the Chapel, while our ears were greeted with strains of most excellent music, rendered by four of the students with guitars and accordeons. The Senior class, consisting of Messrs. B. F. Montague, of Wake: J. T. Bland, of New Hanover: J. L. Britt, of Wayne; B. F. Powers, of Sampson, took seats on the stand. when the exercises commenced and were conducted in the following or-

PROGRAMME.

1st Speaker-Mr B. F. Montague, Wake Fores, N. C. Subject 'Flowers Bloom only to Fade." 2nd Speaker-Mr J. B. Powers, of Pender county, "A Remedy for the

3rd Speaker-Mr. J. 1. Britt, of Wayne county, "Communion with the Wise gives Joy to a Noble Soul.' 4th Speaker-Mr. J. T. Bland, of Pender county, "The Future of our Republic."

Mr. Montague handled his subject with skill, and his delivery was excellent. His speech abounded in beautiful metaphors, and the application of his theme was apropos. Though "Flowers bloom to fade' and earthly happiness is evanescent, it can be attained by the devotion to duty and a compliance with the rejuirements of Holy Writ.

Mr. Powers prescribed as remedies for the evils of the day, viz: Paganism, irreligion and corruption generally, education and the spread of evangelical Christianity. Mr. P. is a forcible speaker, and his speech evinced both research and the power o grasp its results.

Mr. Britt delivered a dignified address, and in addition to the high merit of the address itself, excelled in appropriate gesticulation.

WAKE FOREST COLLIGE,) Dear News:-A week's sojouru at his venerable seat of learning has so mannored me with its pleasant, culivated society, its bracing atmosshere, its excellent water, and its all pervading morality, that I fear when business calls me I shall be loth to resume a metropolitan life. The air of gentility and refinement which genrally surrounds centres of learning and literature, abounds here in a preemittent degree. Without ostentation or display, the community puretes the even tenor of its way, seemingly independent of the outside world. Quiet, peace and order reign supreme, while a rigid rule of Christianity, temperance and other cardinal virtues seems almost to be the in--xorable law universal. Under the BR We have the assurance of the Washington Republican-the organ which plays exclusively for his Excellency-that Secretary Chandler received his appointment in reward Wh for his fidelity to principle and on account of his plain straight-forward-FM ness, as well as his sterling personal and political integrity. The office was tendered to but one other person, and the President is glad now that the other declined it. Now, who will dare to say that the new Secretary went into office without a character to lose? Or who deny, if that nameless one who is supposed to be most in need of a reccommend should by any chance get an appointment from the President, that he would receive the Republican's most hearty indorsement ?- Phil.
