> > SIMPLUALLY MINED -A small cart, attached to a one eyed, flap-cared mule, day before to-morrow became frightened at something on Wilmington street and hastily put a good distance between itself and the aforesaid mule, breaking to pieces slightly the hindmost wheels of the said mule in the sudden somersault given it in one of the gutters along the route by the infuriated cart. Several children in the street at the time might have been seriously damaged by the mad antics of the inturiated vehicle, but for the forethought of the quiet mule which was attached thereto, which by a noise peculiarly its own gave notice of the rapid approach of the four-wheeled animal. The eart finally got "on its ears" in the top of one of the trees in the Baptist Grove, and the detached mule was picked up from beneath the armory house, while the driver of this unruly couple walked forth unconcerned from Rogers' saloou, wiping his moustache with a bandanna, and looked serenely upon the wreck so lately breathing with posltive life and fury. The reporter waited to see no more, but silently and solemnly walked away, thinking of man's inhumanity to man, &c.

A COMPLIMENT TO RALEIGH .-The following communication came to hand vesterday, and though we do not know the author, we thank him for so much of the compliment paid as refers to the NEWS :

Mr. Editor: - It has been my privilege to tarry several days in your delightfully pleasant and thriving "City of Oaks, ' and among the many attractions which abound on every listed, the building of the News Publisting Company is not the least. I has been read by your humble ser-yant with much interest and pleasure, into busines in your city. I shall want the News, and through this ensured to make known to my friends abroad of my selection of a place for my future home. Om, and I may safely say the main and all ontrolling consideration with me in forming the favorable opinion which I have of your city, is the fact of your having such superior schools, male and finale, and from the moral tone of the people I judge it must be equal to any community, from the number of church sceepies in proximity to your State Capitol. Sunday I stepped into the Presbyterian Church and heard a good sermon and saw 16 young people join the church; it was very imposing sight. Rev. Dr.

COLLECTIONS FOR THE OXPORD ORPHAN ASYLUM.-We understand that the collections taken up in the different churches in the city to-day will be devoted to the Oxford Orphan Asylum. We hope this fund may be made a large one throughout the State. The people of North Carolina should give a hearty support to this noble institution.

THE RIGHT THING AT THE RIGHT TIME AND IN THE RIGHT PLACE.-Yesterday just as our sanctum had been thoroughly cleansed, refitted. papered, and put in somewhat decent shape, and we were looking complacently upon the result, Dr. Ellis, Steward of the Deaf and Dumb and Blind Asylum of this city walked into our office with two new brooms manufactured at the Asylum by the inmates, and desired that we keep the office in the same cleanly condition he then found it. TUCKER HALL.-The Holman English Opera Troupe made their first appearance in Raleigh last night, and achieved a genuine success. Of fenbach's celebrated Opera-Bouffe. "La Grand Duchess," was rendered in good style, and seldom have our citizens been regaled with so rich a musical treat. Solos, duets, trios, quartettes, choruses all were given in as perfect a manner as we can ever hope to witness in our city.

As to Miss Sallie Holman, the charming little Prima Donna of this troupe, she is the very incarnation of song, and music pours as naturally from her lips as honey from the famed bees of Hybla. From her first entrance she carried her audience captive, a veritable Grand Duchess. The support was all that could be desired. Mr. Brandisi is a superb tenor, and gave the music allotted to him with a purity of tone rarely equalled. In the third act he introduced La Marsellaise, and sang it in a manner never before heard in this section. During the French revolution of '48, the great actress, Rachel, chanting this soul stirring air, excited the volatile Parisians into a delirium verging on insanity. We can fancy that Brandisi, with his inimitable voice and style, could have wrought the same effect. The pom pous General Baum, with his "piff, paff, poof," found an admirable representative in Mr. Ellis Ryse. Julia Holman, George Barton, and the rest of this excellent Troupe, deserve praise for their valuable assistance.

To-night, the last of the Holman Troupe in this city, will be presented Lecoq's most brilliant opera "Girofle-Giroffa," with Sallie Holman as the Twin Sisters. This opera has been the greatest success of the past seasou in all the European capitals. The Philadelphia Enquirer, which should be recognized as good authority, has the following to say of it:

Wood's Museum was crowded to overflowing last evening to witness, for the first time in our city, Lecog's brilliant opera Girofla. Without the slightest hesitation we pronounce it the Lest work of the above great writer: it being full of pith and pretty music from beginning to end. Miss Sallie Holman as Girofle Girofla rever appeared to better advantage; her acting was superb and her singing such as to entirely captivate the immense assemblage and draw forth from them round after round of applause. The New York Herald justy terms her "The Queen of English Opera." Miss Julia Holman as Paquita shared the honors of the evening with her sister. Mr. J. Brandisi and Mr. Vernon Sydney the tenors were in capital voice and were all that could be desired. Mr. Ellis Ryse as Mouzourk favored us with one of the most comical pieces of acting we ever saw-his rich bass voice being greatly admired. Mr. G. H. Barton as Bolero could not have been better. In fact the whole company could not be seen to better advantage. The choruses were precise and showed great harmony. The wardrobe was to say the least, magnificent. The whole performance was a decided success and the Holmans may compliment themselves as having made the hit of the season.

MARRIED.-Col. S. R. Ruffin, of Alabama, was married in this city last evening by the Rev. Bishop Lyman to Miss Annie Haywood, daugh ter of the late Hon. W. H. Haywood.

Renovating Worn-out Lands, Farmer will be of interest in North Carolina, where there is so much land thrown out of cultivation, but which can be reclaimed:

The up-lands want clover and plaster, after good culture and some manuring, fertilizers or green-manuring such as plowing under rye, then peas, either one, or all-would be better. By such a process these originally very fertile soils can be recuperated in a few years at little cost, and more sure y done, than by a heavy cost of $50 to $80 per ton for guano and other fertilizers. True it is that a dressing of 25 bushels of lime per acre would be of great lasting benefit to most of the soils, but the lands of this section are filled with marl and can in a majority of cases dispense with lime-clover, is the grand, never failing specific. While indulging in our speculations as to the renovation of worn out lands, in the cheapest manner, we happened to have handed to us the last monthly report of the Agricul-tural Department of the United States, and it so completely supports our views with arguments and facts that we extract a paragraph which explains what we desire to say and so forcibly, we had rather call attention of our readers to its persual than write out our own views and our experience of years gone by. The report of the statistician, Mr. Dodge, "In one case in Butler County,

Pennsylvania, a section of thin, gravelly land, on which it was thought no one could secure a decent he clover fields has been made a val ity in poorer soils."
