One of the neatest improvements now seen on Fayetteville street is the fashionable clothing and tailoring establishment of R. P. Howell, at the old stand of the Carmer drugstore. Mr. Howell is running a lively trade and his house presents as tasty and stylish appearance as is to be found in the larger cities. Mr. Farriss, his cutter, has a reputation that all might envy and very few ever acquire. See Howell's ad.

An extensive line of all grades of furniture may be found at the furniture ware rooms of Mr. A. W. Fraps opposite market house on Fayetteville Street. Having been long engaged in the furniture business he is prepared to furnish anything in his line at remarkably low prices, and give entire satisfaction.

Movements of Cotton in Raleigh.

Receipts for the week ending March 11 h 1876, 453 bales; receipts for same week last year, 1,018; decrease in receipts for week this year, 565; whole receipts since 1st September, 1875, to date, 31,558; whole receipts for same time last year, 28,575; increase in receipts this year to date, 2,983 bales.

It will be seen that our receipts continue to decrease, which is no doubt caused by low prices. Our market closing at 11¾ for best grades. The market last year for same week closed at 15¼ cents.

"It frequently happens," wrote a traveler in the wilds of Buenos Ayres, "that the owner of a thousand oxen and horses, and five times as many sheep, has not a bed in his house, and is too lazy to take the wool from the sheep's back to spread on the ground beneath him. The skull of an ox serves him for a seat, and the horn for a cup, and this is all his household furniture.

A Narrow Escape In Johnston—A Store House Burnt.

We learn the storehouse of Joseph Penny seven miles from Clayton in Johnston county was burnt last Thursday night together with all the goods in it. Mr. W. W. Wellons who owned the goods and his clerk Simeon O'Neal were asleep at the time in the store and so narrowly escaped death that they singed their hair and burnt their clothes as they rushed through the flames at the door. They owe their lives to a dog that was sleeping in the store and that leaped on their bed and awakened them with his howls. About three weeks previous Mr. Wellons had been robbed at his house by three negroes of one hundred and sixty-five dollars and he had three men arrested on suspicion and jailed at Smithfield and two of these got loose and it is supposed the house was set fire to by these negroes for revenge. It was fired in two or three places. The loss on building and goods was fifteen hundred dollars. Mr. Penny owned the building and Mr. Wellons the goods.

A Widow and two little Girls

Sat down to supper in Lake City Minn. This was Oct., 12 1875, one of the children pulled the table cloth off the table. The lamp burning on the table fell to the floor, broke, the kerosene caught fire and exploded, set their clothing on fire and burned all three to death. If that Lamp had been filled with Pratts "Astral Oil" that family would be alive and well to-day. Pratts "Astral Oil" burns in any lamp. Used nightly in over 600,000 families. "Tis no new patent oil. Has been before the public for 16 years and never an accident directly or indirectly from its use. Julius Lewis & Co., Hardware Dealers, Raleigh N. C. Sole Agents for North Carolina.

An act of true Heorism.

On Friday morning last when the Raleigh & Gaston Train was backing over to the North Carolina Depot, as the train turned the curve in the road at the Oak City Mills a little boy, who is deaf and dumb was standing with his back to the approaching train, when Capt. L. W. Renn the gentlemanly Conductor who was standing on the platform at the risk of his own life sprang from the moving train and catching the unsuspecting child had just time to move him from certain death. Such acts speak louder than words.

Tried to Trick Him.

A penitentiary convict was farmed out to work the farm of our old friend Col. Russ a few miles from town. One morning the overseer went to sow clover seed and he found a bottle with a live ground hog in it among the seed. He opened his eyes and wondered. An old African by suggested it was meant to trick him and the convict was the man. The negro was called up and confessed the corn and took to his heels but the overseer caught him and marched him back to the penitentiary. It seems he had hunted all over the field to dig up this ground hog.

Town Talk.

—Minks.

—Guano.

—Fishing.

—Roller rink.

—Hyacinths again.

—So hazy and balmy,

—Old men whose corns hurt think it will rain.

—A grocer clerk had his mouth too full of raw potato to tell T. T. the news.

—All the flower yards on Hillsboro street are being robbed of hyacinths, —Lee and Whitaker buying cotton lively and want fifty bales at fancy prices of the Pierce and Peeler cotton.

—Mr. Dodd says his wife had just gotten a nice little start in her hyacinth bed and the double hyacinths had all bloomed and headed and were ready for plucking when some one the other night stole them all.

—The minds of several of the citizens as they sunned themselves in front of their business doors seemed to be running on catching fish. A wealthy banker went so far as to commence splitting the bullets and proposed to T. T. a fish on the next good day, remarking as he lifted his leg that he once caught a jack-fish as long as from his knee pan's down

—Quite a revival is now going on in the African Methodist church and one hundred and thirty five colored people have confessed the faith and two hundred more are seekers. Revs. Epps and G. W. Bredie are conducting the meeting. T. T. is glad to hear it and would say in the language of a colored woman, who threw her voice clear across Hillsboro street to another who said she had it, "Hold to it."

—Mink skins are as precious in market as gold dust and have sold as high as two dollars a skin, and Grocer Wooddell is very apt to run one down if it ever comes to town. But a yellow fellow ran with one to Wooddell yesterday and Wooddell said "scat" at him, "it ain't a cat skin, is it?" asked the negro. "It is," said Wooddell, "and a black cat at that." The negro nearly cried. He had just paid a man fifty cents for it, and "dog his cats" if it warn't all the money he had in the world.

—The skating rink at Holleman Hall is now in full talk and nice circulars will be printed with dead loads of poetry on them. A lady's slipper buckled on skates adorns the circular and after a charming little verse of how the young men take timid maidens in their arms and learn them to skate, the circular announces that the young gents are attentive as all gents should be and their care for the ladies 'tis pleasant to see. Such poetry as this is bound to win and the old folks had as well unchain the gate at once and let their daughters out if they have any regard at all for their happiness.

Digest of the Decisions of the Supreme Court.

Williams vs. Williams, from Person county (decided at last term). Judgment of the Court: Any judgment rendered in a Court of Probate is only binding to the parties to the action; therefore where the plaintiff, one of two distributees, alone sued the defendants, administrators, &c., it was irregular for that Court to do more than to adjudicate the rights of the parties before it, and give the plaintiff a several judgment for the amount of the estate due him.

Potter v. Mardre et al., from Perquimans, Eure J., presiding: If a person bestows his labor upon the property of another, thereby changing it into another species of article, (as if corn be made into whiskey, &c.) the property is changed and the owner of the original material cannot recover the article in its altered condition; but is only entitled to its value in the shape in which it was taken from him.

In an action for the claim and delivery of personal property, the issuing of a summons is necessary to give the Clerk jurisdiction to make order to the sheriff requiring him to take such property and deliver it to the plaintiff, and an order to that effect without such summons, is no justification to the Sheriff, or the defendant, for any action in the premises.

State vs. Wilmington & Weldon Railroad Company, from New Hanover, Kerr J., presiding: The provisions of the act of 1838, Bat. Rev. Chap. 104, Sec. 36, do not apply to Railroads, &c., constructed before the time of its passage. The proviso of the 27th section of the charter of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad Company, does not require the company to make and repair bridges, made necessary by roads laid out subsequent to the construction of said railroad.

State vs. King from Stokes. County Forcible Trespass. Cloud J. Presiding.

In order to constitute a forcible trespass, there must be some demonstration of force as distinguished from mere words; as by a display of weapons or other outward signs of violence; or by numbers, which supply the place of violence and are equally calculated to put in fear.

Curlee vs. Thomas from Union County Baxton J. Presiding.

PERSONAL PROPERTY EXEMPTION:

A. recovers a judgment against B. for $193, who subsequently obtained judgment against A. for $60 upon a cause of action existing at the time of A's judgment, but which was not pleaded as a counter claim. On a motion in the Superior Court, in which both judgments were docketed, to allow the judgment of B. to be credited on that against himself. Held, that A's, personal property exemption protected the judgment against B. from any such proceeding, as it is in the sense of Art. 10. Sec. 1 of the Constitution 1. final process.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.,
March, 10, 1876.

My Dear Sir—I offer the NEWS this reminiscence of the teachings we had while here together. It may serve to call to many minds the value of what Gov. Swain inculcated in his old recitation room. Well would it be for our country were he there still:

Mr. Editor, the discussions which we read now-a-days concerning the impeachability of Gen. Belknap will doubtless recall to us who heard Gov. Swain's lectures on Constitutional Law, his teachings as to the limits of time within which an impeachment can be sustained. These were the entrance on duty by a civil officer and his death. Gov. Swain, than whom there was never in North Carolina a more intelligent, cautious or capable expounder of the Constitution, taught us that this prolonged liability to impeachment was the inevitable condition of entering on an office, that the title "civil officer" in the case of impeachment, meant one who was at the time or ever had been a civil officer of the United States—that the punishment of removal from, and disqualification for office fell on those who, when punished, were in office, and that of disqualification only for office fell on any who had ever been in office. This interpretation was upheld as most reasonable, for it invested the offices of Government with dignity and tended to make officials careful of their duties—fearful lest a present concealment of "treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors," might, even after a term of office had expired, be followed by exposure and disgrace. It was also consistent with the doctrine concerning impeachment taught in Great Britain, whence we derive our notions concerning impeachment, and with the opinions of many of our own greatest expounders of the Constitution. Gov. Swain's pupils will remember especially his quotations from John Quincy Adams, who held the disqualification for office was that the only really fearful part of the punishment—that death only could relieve him from liability to examination and impeachment, and punishment for malfeasance in office while President of the United States.

I ventured to send you a communication last week, touching a needless assault on our University and State institutions. But I neglected to give you my name as its author. Shall protestants leave the education of their people to the denominations into which they are divided. We condemn the Roman Catholics for this assumption—the absolute and exclusive right to educate the community in all truths. But many among us inconsistently disparage the work done in institutions where all denominations cooperate that they may exalt that done by the denominations alone. It is wrong for the community to help the Romanists educate their youth apart. But it is right to help the Baptists, Presbyterians, &c, do the very same thing.

The canvass for the nomination to the Governorship is becoming lively. Everything is being pulled that will make a puppet dance. A letter was received not long ago in the north-eastern part of Orange mailed at Chapel Hill and claiming as its author a very respectable farmer of this neighborhood urging an early convention in this county to give due prominence to the county's claim to the Governship. When the receiver of the letter began to consult with the supposed writer they were both astonished to find that an imposition had been practiced—that that farmer was not the writer and knew not of the writing. This cramming for an examination, this ring-making while nug breaking is not to the mind of the simple and honest voters—I tell you this that forewarned some may be fore-armed. But of course you will not give me as authority—as I am not in politics. I think I can give good value for what I tell you. It is told because I hate wire pulling, ringing in &c.,

William Barney, of Davidson College, and one of its gradates in 1875, is studying Chemistry and Physics at Leipsig, in Germany. After a course of instruction there he will go to Berlin for another course. He is the first native North Carolinian to cross the ocean in pursuit of such discipline and knowledge. Mr. Barney is a nephew of the late Philo Henderson, well remembered by many as a young man of genius, whose political effusions gave promise of fame. Having stood at the head of his class while in College, his friends are confident that he will bring back from Germany all that his talents and industry lead them to expect.

I am yours,

ALUMNUS.

A female suffrage resolution passed by the Wisconsin House two weeks ago, failed in the Senate yesterday for lack of two votes.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

In the U. S. Senate, yesterday, Mr. Wright, of Iowa, submitted a joint resolution for final adjournment on the first of May, which was referred to the Appropriation Committee.

A naughty exchange says Alex. Stephens is convalescent. He is getting stouter, too. He can't crawl under the bottom crack of a door without scraping the buttons off his vest.

Mr. J. H. Wilcox has assumed the duties of Portsmouth editor of the Norfolk Virginian. He is an accomplished gentleman, and has our heartiest wishes for his success in this new field of labor.—[Norfolk Virginian.

We regret to know that the distinguished editor of the New Orleans Democrat, Col. Robt. Tyler, has resigned the editorship of that paper, in consequence of ill health. We had come to regard it as the best exponent of Louisiana political honesty.—[Mobile Register.

Knee-pants are actually coming into vogue again. We like that, for we are tired of the fashions which have been imposed on us bifurcators for the last thirty years. This is our Centennial year, and if we make a success of it we must go back thoroughly to the customs and fashions of '76.—[Mobile Register.

A pair of twins asleep in a baby carriage in the Capitol Square yesterday attracted a great deal of attention. A prettier picture could not well be conceived. They are children of a Mr. S., of this city. General desire to have a photograph of them as they sat in the carriage with their heads reclining against each other was expressed.—[Richmond Enquirer.

Every newspaper of Alabama is in favor of a dog tax law, as we learn from the Montgomery Advertiser.—We believe that the press of Georgia are nearly as unanimous on the same side. But the legislators of both States are not so easy to convince that one of the urgent needs of the South is fewer dogs and more sheep.—[Columbus Times.

Wonder if Grant ever heard this anecdote of President Pierce? A gentleman from Charlestown, Massachusetts, went to Washington and applied for an office. He was recommended, and would doubtless have received the appointment but for his name. "But I am no relative of yours," said the gentleman. "I know it," was the courteous reply of the President, "but your name is Pierce, and I might be accused of showing undue partiality to my relatives."

This morning as I was coming to the office I met a beautiful little boy in charge of a French nurse. He had big eyes and golden hair and velvet clothes. The French maid had on a French nurse's cap, a French white muslin apron—cut bias, I think a French calico dress, and a sweet smile. I wanted to know whose little boy the little boy was, but as I don't like to speak French to the lower classes I hesitated. I thought there were several people looking at me, so I said in English, with a fine French accent, "Ma'msell, whose nice little boy is this?" and I looked up at the maid's mouth for the sweet French answer. She smiled louder and said—I understood every word: "Well, sur, that wee choile is it, thin, the little darlint? Shure and whose choile wud he be but his mother's beyant?" What a wonderful language the French is!—New York Cor. Danbury News.

Sunday Facetiæ.

A young minister, somewhat distinguished for self-conceit, having failed disastrously before a crowded audience, was thus addressed by an aged brother: "If you had gone into that pulpit feeling as you now do on coming out of that pulpit, you would have felt on coming out of that pulpit as you did when you went up into that pulpit.

A pious Newark girl recently discarded a young man to whom she had long been engaged and gave her hand to a wealthy, gray-headed widower. She said she had made the matter a subject of prayer, and that God told her that with the rich man's money she could do great good in the world in the way of converting sinners, and so she took up the burden. It is only women who can sacrifice themselves.

A clergyman of a country village church desired to give notice that there would be no service in the afternoon, as he was going to officiate for another clergyman. The clerk, as soon as the service was finished, rose up with all due solemnity, and cried out: "I am requested to give notice that there will be no service this afternoon, as Mr. L, is going fishing with another clergyman."

The late Rev. John Angell James, of Birmingham, England, in preaching an ordination sermon, happened to say that he had seen three instances in which promising young men, beginning well, had been induced to marry young ladies of fortune, and in each case some affection of the chest or throat was soon discovered, and their wives persuaded their husbands to give up preaching. When Mr. J. left the pulpit, a young man followed him into the vestry, and wished to offer some explanation. "What for?" said Mr. J.; "have you married a lady of fortune, and have you given up your ministry?" "Yes," said the young man; "but I want to explain." "Oh, never mind," said Mr. J., "I can assure you that I was not alluding to you. You make the fourth, then, that I have known in the same circumstances."

She waltzed along our crowded street,
With "Pinback" and stiletto ... ing
She wore French slippers on her feet.
And was coughing. Oh! 'was shocking.
Gone to get a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.
