PARTYISM WHAT IT IS.

Demagogism, venulty and corruption cannot be better illustrated than in the his tory of parties in this & Butry A, change in the status of a party frequently produces an entire change to its measures and principles, and the party of to-day cond-mas utterly its own note of a few years later. The Freesoil, Republican or Radical party can show the most 'sconsistent, changelui and corrupt record, ever exhibited by any party in this country. Without a chadow of claim, it has professed to be a party of "moral ideas," or rather "the moral party." and, by finesse, deception and hypocrisy, has led the "religionists" of the North to join it. . The Churchevof the North, instead of purifying the party and preserving it. from corruption, have been seduced by the party from the old paths of purity and a sound Christianity, until nothing is more common than to find infidelity and fanati approval. Hence we cannot sanction the cism out cropping to every department of Northern Churches. The truth is the basis ty and efficiency, heretofore, in the support of abolitionism was a concealed infidelity. and its influence upon the Northern mind has been destructive of Christian charity and virtue, and productive of unmixed evil to the religious interests of the North and West.

The first exhibition of the hypocrisy the Pressoil or Radical party, and one which gave it an unwented influence, was the shedding of tears over spoor bleeding Kapsas." Its pistform in 1856, when Fremont was the nominee, (whose election, Holden, at that time, contended would be sufficient cause for the South to separate from the North,) spent its strength in condemnation of the cruelties and crimes of the Democratic party upon "poor suffering Kansas." Let the reader carefully note the following. resolve from that platform, and sak himself, if it be possible, that the same mee and the same party, who could lesue such a Jeremiad in 1856, could be guilty of perpetrating those crimes and outrages upon the Southern people, a few years after, that they had condemned in the opposing party, a short period before? The reader may refresh his recollection by the following from the platform of the Radical party in 1888 :
