THE SENTINEL.

JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28, 1869.

ORANGE COURT—TRUTH TRIUMPHANT.

Doubt thou the stars are fire;
Doubt that the sun doth move;
Doubt truth to be a liar,
But never doubt the presentment of a Grand Jury.

It will be remembered, by the readers of the Sentinel, that at the last Fall term of Orange Superior Court, the Grand Jury, with great propriety, presented the correspondence between Gov. Holden and Gen Miles, as stating facts that had no existence and intended for party purposes. They presented the Judge who held the Court, for entering into a heated political contest and declaring himself a candidate for Congress, while riding his circuit. In the presentment they quoted the language used by Judge Tourgee to his competitor "Hon." Windy Billy Henderson, charging that he was indicted for mule stealing, &c. They also presented the Judge for fighting on the train, in the ladies' car and in the ladies presence, with the "Hon." Windy Billy.—They, also, presented Chief Justice Pearson for writing that hypocritical political letter. They presented every Judge on the bench, except Judge Mitchel, for taking an active part in politics. They presented Congress for reconstructing us under such a Bureau officer, as Crocket, who had plundered and oppressed the people of Orange, and for pay, turned felons out of jail.

Judge Tourgee, in a letter to the Standard, denied that any such presentment had been made, and in the letter said, if it had been he would have put the Grand Jury in jail, &c.

We heard every word of the Judge's charge on Monday, to the Grand Jury of Orange. Alluding to the presentments made by the Grand Jury, at the last term of the Court, the Judge said, "it gave him no pleasure to recur to it. It was not creditable to the county or to the Grand Jury. He believed they had made the presentments without due consideration. As to himself he cared nothing for it, it did not hurt him." Such were the words of the Judge as near as we can remember. Now the charge don't tally with the letter of the Judge, that there was no presentment; for the Judge acknowledged and admitted it time and again, and alluded to the presentment as having been made, as in truth, and, in fact, it was made by eighteen as respectable gentlemen as ever sat in a jury box.

"Truth crushed to earth shall rise again,
The eternal years of God are hers,
But error, wounded, writhes with pain,
And dies among his worshippers."

ORANGE COURT—JUDGE TOURGEE AGAIN.

We take it from the charge of Judge Tourgee that Solicitor Bulla will not draw a bill upon the presentment made of the Judges, nor will there be another presentment of the Judges by the present Grand Jury. The purpose of the Grand Jury in presenting the Judiciary, was to call public attention to the prostitution of the Judiciary of the State, under the despotism of reconstruction.

Under reconstruction and the Federal sword, the new Constitution was forced upon the people of the State before one in fifty had read it.

The men elected to hold office under the new Constitution, were, many of them, unknown to the people. Many of them were ignorant and wholly unqualified for the places to which they were elected. Two or three of them were known murderers; one of them a convicted murderer; one Judge elected was presented for perjury by the Grand Jury of the Federal Court. Another Judge after his election, was arrested in the City of Raleigh as a drunken nuisance and carried to the door of the City prison, for the incarceration of his Judicial corporosity.

The wonder is that every Grand Jury of the State after such a prostitution of the bench did not present the Judges, as did the Grand Jury of Orange. It was a pitiable sight to see every Judge, save one, appealing by letter or speech to 80,000 negroes to secure their seats on the bench. The bar with entire unanimity condemned it and now condemn it. Instead of signing a protest, they should have called meetings of the people and denounced such unjudicial conduct and corrupting influence of the Judiciary. Judge Tourgee and Gov. Holden pretend that the Grand Jury of Orange went beyond the sphere of their duty in making the presentment. The Governor and Judge Tourgee were both gratified that the Grand Jury of Massachusetts presented President Johnson. The Grand Jury of England once presented the River Thames for overflowing its banks, and the historian says, with good and beneficial results to the nation. It called the attention of the nation to the fact that life and property were lost by the overflow of the Thames, and the nation took steps to prevent the overflow.

The Grand Jury of Orange have called the attention of the nation, and especially the attention of the people of the State to our Judiciary. The bar follows with a respectful protest. It is to be hoped that these two notices will prove a sufficient admonition to the prostitute Judiciary of the State; if it is not, then let the people hold frequent meetings and denounce the political Judiciary as they deserve.

The Judge concluded his charge to the Grand Jury by expressing the hope, that there would be no presentment by the present Grand Jury as there was by the last. He need not be alarmed. The good purpose of the Grand Jury has been fully accomplished. If the Judge does not fight on this circuit, as he did on the last, with "Hon." Windy Billy Henderson, the Grand Jury of Orange will take no further account of him.

SENATORS SPRAGUE AND ABBOTT.

The quarrel of these Senators, at Washington, created quite an excitement for some days. "Pistols and coffee" were said to be looked for, and some of the puritanical hypocrites like Sumner, seemed to be much alarmed.

We looked for nothing of the sort.—Sprague is a peace man, though inclined to a war of words, and Abbott is about Jo'te. Abbott once threatened to make war upon the editor of the Sentinel but took care not to attempt it.

Sprague in a conversation with a reporter is said to have made the following remarks:

"Mr. Senator, what do you think of Abbott?"

"Oh, well," he said, "he don't amount to much. He is one of those lawyers who have a great estimation of their own abilities. You see Abbott is a Yankee, and he is sharp enough to know that it would not do for him to go back to North Carolina after having been called a 'puppy dog' here in the Senate without some show at what they call chivalry in the South. Why, the very negroes down there would not speak to him. This is the way I account for his speech last night. I don't think he means any mischief; at least, I have no fears or apprehensions on the subject."

The redoubtable North Carolina Senator, in a conversation with the reporter for the New York Herald confessed all that Sprague had suggested in the paragraph above quoted:

"Senator Abbott, Well, there need be no hell loll about it. It has simply come to this, that Mr. Sprague must either retract or do worse. If I was from New England, perhaps, I would put up with such insults meekly; but not being from that peaceful region, I shall take the liberty of settling the affair in another method."

Abbott thus bows to Southern chivalry, but in his subsequent course, which ended in the settlement of the affair, he makes hot haste to break down. The truth is, there is but little fight in a carpet-bagger, unless you corner him and he can't get out. They remind one of Sherman's bummers, who were always conveniently deaf or blind, when carrying on their stealing. The only way to arouse them was to claim and wrest from them the stolen property.

WASHINGTON MATTERS.

Rumor for some days has repeated the statement that several of the Cabinet of President Grant will resign. The generally well informed correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch, "Wallace" says:

We have the best authority for stating that there is no foundation whatever in the report that Secretary Borie contemplates resigning his position. The same is also true concerning Secretary Fish and Attorney General Hoar. All these reports are put in circulation by parties who have some special object in view, and wish to make capital by making it appear that the Secretaries are not satisfied with their positions, and do not agree altogether with the President and his policy.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

The Government is in possession of information to the effect that the cause of the insurgents in Cuba is not at all flattering. It appears that their agents here and in New York have admitted that unless they obtain recognition or material aid from our Government they will be unable to hold out beyond sixty days. It is understood that the Administration is not disposed to interfere with affairs in the island beyond the protection of American citizens and their interests. The English and French Ministers understands affairs in Cuba and the attitude of our Government, and have advised their respective governments accordingly.

FERTILIZERS.

It is understood that many of our farmers are using largely, this year, fertilizers, in different parts of the State. We had hoped that the lesson taught them in 1867 would put them on their guard. We are of opinion that most of the manipulated guanos or other fertilizers are worthless. If farmers desire to use manipulated fertilizers, they should purchase the genuine ingredients and manipulate them themselves. Compost heaps, lime, stable manure, &c., are most reliable. Genuine Peruvian guano or pure phosphates, when used properly, as the soil needs, do well, but are frequently so used as to injure rather than benefit or do little good. Let the object of planters be more to enrich and improve their lands permanently, rather than to make a large crop for one year. In a word, let planters do what they can within themselves towards manuring. When they buy fertilizers largely, let them not forget 1867.

CHARLES A. DANA, Editor of the N. Y. Sun, was arrested in New York, to day, on suit by J. Russell Young, Managing Editor of the Tribune for libel.

We are tired of this thing called a Republican Government.

We are sick of seeing the people presided over by politicians as the fishermen preside over the fishes—to catch them in drags or bait them to death on soft mush and sugared bait.

We are tired of this thing called suffrage. Whereby the people as a mass, (who are always silly things when taken collectively,) vote like idiots for the very worst men over the very best.

What is this structure that the people of the United States in the full exercise of their suffrages have erected? It is a structure that they have once torn half way down and have ever threatened to destroy.

It is an old mansion house that part sleep in and part sleep out and both sides are smartly disgusted with.

It is a habitation for duck legged justices that can neither spell nor expound the law; for congressmen and legislators the majority of whose spirits will never fly higher than their heads towards heaven; and for swashing bullies and swaggering blackguards whose ambition it is to strut "cock of the walk" at home and to clean out "any" other man for office in the "Department." It will not be always thus though. Things are working.—Hills. Record.

The 17th of May has been fixed as the date for the meeting of the Old and New school General Assemblies of the Presbyterian church in New York, when then the question of re union will be finally settled, both northern churches.

PEN AND INK SKETCHES OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, AS IT HAS BEEN.

DEDICATED TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE, AND TO THE ALUMNI OF THE UNIVERSITY.

N. 2.

ITS FIRST PRESIDENT.

A great literary festival was held at Princeton last Fall on occasion of the inauguration of their new and distinguished President, Dr. McCosh, and the Alumni of the old College were gathered from all parts to assist in the solemnities, and to rejoice in the prosperity of their Alma Mater. Two graduates of the class of 1795 were present! Bending with years and honors, these venerable men were saluted by the vast assemblage with reverence and enthusiasm. One would like to enquire what are their recollections of the young and obscure man who was their Tutor at Nassau Hall seventy-four years ago, who became our first President, and who was destined by the Providence of God to play an important part in our State, and to have his name handed down with reverence to distant generations.—Whether or not he impressed his associates at that early age with any distinct sense of his superiority, it is certain that Dr. Caldwell was a remarkable man, and singularly well fitted to be the first President of a new University.

HIS APPEARANCE.

In the first place he was a man to magnify his office. He had a high sense of the dignity of Letters, and never forgot what was due to his position. Though not above the middle height, his appearance and manners were impressive, formed in the old school of dignified and formal courtesy. His eyes were dark and penetrating, overhung by bushy eyebrows, his dress was always neat, precise and handsome. He looked the President and thorough gentleman.

He was perhaps something of a martinet in his notions of authority and discipline, though this was always tempered with be nignity and kindly advisance. No man could be in Dr. Caldwell's company without at once acknowledging that here was a man to be respected, and deferred to, beyond ordinary limits. He was well known to be an ardent and unflinching student, his tastes inclining him to the exact sciences, though his classical attainments were also extensive and accurate. He was an admirable Latinist.

HIS CHARACTER.

A man however may be a gentleman and a fine scholar, and yet make a very poor presiding officer. We cannot look at what Dr. Caldwell alone and unaided, did in the early years of this country, for the struggling infancy of the University without feeling that he possessed other qualifications more rare than those which mark the close and successful student. He had very great administrative ability, and the power to inspire unlimited confidence in all who approached him. His integrity was known to be inflexible, he was utterly fearless in the discharge of duty, his bare word had the authority of an oath. I can scarcely imagine the indignant scorn with which he would have repelled any suggestion of underhand dealing, or intrigue—more especially for his own interests. All men felt instinctively that a mean or selfish thought was never harbored in his breast; that he was in the fullest sense of the word what we in these later days would call re ttabla.

Added to this power of impressing and controlling others, Dr. Caldwell had great intuitive sagacity in judging of character, and in operating on those around him.—But what most distinguished him perhaps in that day of small things in North Carolina, was his far seeing and liberal views of Internal Improvement, and plans for the public good. He was in many things singularly ahead of his generation. A man who looked far beyond and over the narrow agitations of the day, and thought for posterity.

THE "CARLTON LETTERS."

It has been now ten or fifteen years since I saw Gov. Swain with a copy of Dr. Caldwell's "Carlton Letters" in his hand,—letters written forty or fifty years ago to the people of North Carolina on the importance and advantage of Railroads, and now forgotten, but which would do good if in circulation now. Gov. Swain loved to speak of them, and point out their excellencies. There is a homely humor and force of illustration, a plain way of putting the argument, with such evidence of keen and sagacious observation of the common people, their ways and their wants, as we rarely see in a close student and man of letters. In those points they are not unlike Sydney Smith's admirable lectures to the poor of his parish.

One of these letters, I think, took the form of a dialogue. The old hard-headed farmer is shown the advantage of quick returns for his crops, and the advantage of a variety of crops on his little farm. Charles the son is told how, instead of lounging and yawning away his odd hours, round the country store or tavern, learning to drink and talk politics, he might easily acquire skill in some light handicraft, to be carried on in the interests of farm work,—say basket-making,—baskets made from rosiers grown on the creek side, and shipped to Newbern and Beaufort per Railroad, and sold directly. While the girls, Polly and Betsey, would find ready sale in the same market for their knitting, and weaving, and butter and cheese. Thus profits are shown to flow in through a dozen small channels before unthought of,—toil is sweetened, life invigorated and brightened, and advantage gained everyway. "From the mountains to Beaufort," was Dr. Caldwell's great idea,—and as many side branches as you please. There are plenty of farmers in the State today, who would do well to read those letters penned by the first President of the University for their fathers and grandfathers.

WHAT HE DID FOR THE UNIVERSITY.

When Dr. Caldwell came to North Carolina, its so called University was little more than a Grammar School. Its resources were far from corresponding to the magnitude of its plan. People had relapsed from their first enthusiasm and were comfortably settled in the belief that with so many thousand acres of wild land, and so many indefinite waifs and strays conferred on it by the Legislature, its future was secure. Its pretensions, however, were in reality very humble. But two Instructors were employed, the scale of studies exceedingly contracted, and the patronage slender.—The population of the country was rude and uncultured, and the young men untrained and impatient of restraint. Among Dr. Caldwell's early associates too, were men of loose principles and habits, infected with the infidelity of the day which the French Revolution had made fashionable. There was very much to try the patience and the feelings of one to whom was entrusted the task of maintaining discipline, and giving instruction.

For the first nine years of its existence, no one of the officers of the University was distinguished as President. But Dr. Caldwell, immediately on his entrance into the Faculty, became its master spirit; and was the presiding Professor till 1804, when he was formally elected President.

It is clear that upon the character of the President more than any other man connected the University, hung its life and repute. It was for him alone to digest and arrange the course and methods of instruction and plan of discipline. It was his to lay broad and deep the foundation of morality and reverence for the Christian Religion, so that they could never be disturbed, a lack of which sad, all too high proved fatal to the existence Universities of sister States! It was his to manage its resources, to secure co-operation of his colleagues, the respect of his pupils, and the entire confidence of the Board of Trustees, and the people the State. A hard, but noble task for any man.

Dr. Cal threw himself into the work of building the University with all the energy and devotion of his character. He did not himself. His reputation as a scholar, instructor, and disciplinarian steadily need, and with it the patronage of the public, until in 1811 it was found that new wings and ampler facilities were necessary to accommodate the increasing numbers. The Legislature, in its wisdom, built by that time drawn one of the sources of revenue bestowed, and refusing further assistance, Dr. Caldwell appealed to the private munificence of the people of the State. He spent vacations of this year (1811) traveling over portion of North Carolina, and soliciting. So generally was he respected, and such was the confidence felt in his administration, that he obtained the sum of $20,000, in a short time, and with this was enabled to complete the South Building which had stood for several years, but a shell a half high, and unroofed. The success of the University was beyond doubt.

CHAPEL HILL IN DR. CALDWELL'S TIME.

A body of professors began to gather round the Head who would have given reputation to College in the land, and who strength and upheld his administration in every way. A society began to form in Chapel Hill which naturally expanding with growth of the village, was yet guarded by the conservatism of the College, and possessed a prestige of its own. a society in which by the prolonged lives of its heads, 2 generations were closely linked, so that came down to this day unimpaired one, yet elevated and improved by culture of the day; a society that has entirely been broken up and dispersed four, but the like of which North Carolina will not soon see again.

Such communities are the fruit of long years of culture, the growth of more than one century.

CITIZENSHIP MARRIAGE. The Supreme Court of the United States has rendered the long decision in the case of Ellen Kelly & Edward Owens, on appeal from the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, viz: That any alien white woman married to a citizen of the United States is a citizen under the act of 10th of February, 1855, which is the following language "A woman who might lawfully be naturalized under the existing laws, married, or who shall be married, to a citizen of the United States, shall be deemed and taken to be a citizen of the United States." He has hitherto been a great diversity of opinion as to the construction of the above act by the laws of the country, but the above decision settles the matter beyond controversy.

Lightning struck two trees at Milton in the baptist church yard and shocked several persons that were near by, during a storm several days ago. I learn that during the same storm lightning struck a tree at Country's meeting house 2 miles from this place and tore it all to pieces scattering it all over the yard.—Hillsboro Reorder.
