Reconstruction.

Friends of Boston, are still fulminating against the Government. The Mass. politicians have all got the idea that the were successful, and knocked the old Unionists, and it is now the duty of Massachusetts loyal southerners, co-operating with Johnson, are progressing in the restoration. They believe the Union except our army saved it from the fate it intended for it, and now all that is necessary is to bring these States again into connection with the government, when the most popular government will soon make a concession of the popular wish. They will make this matter better than the three next.

The questions are practical ones, controlled by existing laws, and the man who is real work to do will best know how to responsive to these laws. By the time the friends of Boston have made all their reconstruction speeches, they will find that the will be restored by the practical men, and all the state institutions will be harmoniously with those of the general public. —Philadelphia Ledger, July 29.

NEW YORK HERALD'S BUDGET.

Great Disaster at Sea.

LOSS OF STEAMER GLASGOW.

THE ATLANTIC CABLE TO BE LAID.

From the Rio Grande!

GENERAL GRANT

&c., &c., &c.

[From the New York Herald of the 4th.]

The steamer Glasgow, of the Inman line, was burned at sea on the 21st ultimo, but by the good management of Captain Henry Manning, under divine Providence, no lives were lost. The vessel took fire at noon on the 31st. When discovered by the passengers great excitement ensued, and a rush was made for the railings in front of the life boats. By the personal exertions of the captain and his subordinates this momentary panic was suppressed, and as it inspired by his cool manner, with full confidence in the gallant captain, the passengers were restrained from swamping the boats by hastily endeavoring to escape from the burning wreck. The boats were carefully lowered and filled, the women and children going first, under an order from Capt. Manning to shoot any man who endeavored to enter the boats before the women and children were saved. Signals were displayed and minute guns fired, with a coolness remarkable under the circumstances; and the attention of the bark Rosamond attracted. On the approach of this vessel the lowered boats of the Glasgow, filled with the crew and passengers, all of whom were eventually saved, put off from the burning steamer and were received with every display of kindness and consideration on board the Rosamond by Captain Walter. Not a single life was lost. Even the baggage of the passengers was saved. The Rosamond and the steamer Erin, which subsequently came in sight, returned the passengers to this port last evening.

The steamship Asia brings no later news regarding the progress of the Atlantic cable. Our Valentine correspondence is to the 19th ult., giving details of the arrival of the Great Eastern at the mouth of the bay, and the appearance on the 19th of the Caroline, with the shore end of the cable on board. Arrangements were to have been immediately made to proceed with the laying of the Valentine end. It is hoped that the next steamer—due on Saturday next—will bring full details of the successful departure westward of the Great Eastern. The work of repairing the Newfoundland submarine cable is being rapidly advanced. Our Heart's Content correspondence gives some details of the preparations making there to meet the Great Eastern.

The news from the Rio Grand is to the effect that a battle had been fought between the imperialists under Lopez and the liberals under Correa, in which the latter was defeated. The battle took place between Matamoros and Camargo.

General Grant has arrived at Augusta, Maine. His progress from Boston, via Portland, was one continued ovation. A special train, handsomely decorated, conveyed him and his party from Boston through to Portland. At the principal intermediate points he was welcomed with great enthusiasm.

The Trial of General Lee.

In this connection the Richmond Republic says:

It has been repeatedly stated, and generally believed, though never officially announced, that Gen. Lee and other officers of the late Confederate army were indicted at the last term of the United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, held at Norfolk. At the next term of this Court, to be held in Norfolk in October, it is said these indictments will be called up; but it is understood in Washington that these cases will not be prosecuted, but the President will direct such protest to be entered, and dispose of each defendant as he proposes to dispose of other leading Southerners who have been active participants in the war, namely, by putting them on long probation; and then, as a condition precedent to pardon, imposing such penalties and restrictions as may be justified by the circumstances.

NEWS FROM BUENOS AIRES.

War Still in Progress.

A SEVERE FIGHT.

(N. Y. Herald's correspondence from Buenos Ayres)

The great war here, involving three nations, is increasing in extent. A short, sharp battle was fought on the 25th ult., resulting in the capture from the Paraguayans by General Paunero, of the city of Corrientes, capital of the province of the same name. It was a bold movement and was well conducted and well fought. He took the city at the point of the bayonet, but there were telegraphic wires connecting with the Paraguayan capital, and before the cannonading ended six thousand men started for a reinforcement, and General Paunero had to retire.

On June 4 a large number of dead and wounded arrived. Some one hundred to two hundred had to be sent to the Hospital, where many have since died. Several young men of good families here were among the twenty-six officers that fell killed or wounded.

President Lopez still keeps his forces in three strong divisions—one in Paraguay, one progressing through the province of Corrientes, and one about to enter the Brazilian province of Rio Grande. President Mitre leaves this city in a few days as Commander-in-Chief in the field. It is said that President Lopez, of Paraguay, will also take the field in person. A few evenings ago President Mitre gave a splendid supper to the English Lodge of Freemasons in this city. The diplomatic body also waited upon him as he was about to depart.
