NEWS BY THE PAPERS.

Washington Correspondence

Clipped from the New York Herald.

The Billing of the Political Catron. The political action here begins to show signs of coming to the boiling point. The bubbles on the surface are more frequent. There is evidently a considerable disturbance of the waters. Well known political hacks, and no men, who are ambitious to become agents in the wire-working, log-rolling, tin-panning and other mysterious arts practiced in the conduct of party conventions and partisan tactics, are coming and going with anxious impudence, as if "big with the fate of nations, and of words."

The Equanimity of the Administration Undisturbed.

But, after all these family quarrels do not disturb the Presidential equanimity, nor do they find much sympathy on either side just now in other branches of the government. Mr. Johnson is too busy with his reorganization of the Southern States to undertake to settle all the domestic difficulties of the loyal communities. They ought to be ashamed to bother him with such matters while he has the "weight of Atlas on his shoulders," and is compelled to listen to a thousand applications for pardon per day, one half of them from women, who will not be denied audience. The Secretary of the Treasury is too much occupied with his financial arrangements, and the calculations how to make both ends meet until the next appropriation by Congress, to spend his time in listening to electioneering schemes. All he cares for is to carry the Treasury along right no matter who is Senator or how any State goes. Stanton is wrapped up in the mantle of his own originality. As long as he has a lease on the military power it does not matter to him who is President or Senator, or anything else. In the sublimity of his auto-craze he is content to let the outside world take care of itself, and even senators and governors, if they cross his path, may go to Old Scratch, or to the Old Capitol about the same thing. The Postmaster General has not been long enough in the business to be bored to a great extent. The Interior Department is not considered of much account any longer, and old Grandmother Welles is never thought of politically. Thus all these political wire-workers are turned over for the time being to the State Department, where they are received with the smile in modo that characterizes that establishment, and, like boars surrounding a reigning belle, retire, each one satisfied that he has made a good impression, and has carried his point.

The President oblivious to these Small Matters. The fact is that the administration cares little for these local squabbles. It is engaged upon matters of much greater import. The efforts of the friends of the administration are not unappreciated; but it is presumed that every loyal man, of whatever party antecedents, at the North and in the loyal States, is a friend of the administration, and there is no time now to talk of party politics. The reorganization of the Southern States, the restoration of integrity to the Union, the redemption of the whole country from the serious losses sustained during the last four years of desolation, are the tasks Andrew Johnson has on hand, and he has addressed himself to them with a singleness of purpose and self-sacrificing devotion which challenge admiration. He will not for a moment be led away from any of these great projects to attend to any petty political contentions. It matters not to him who may be elected Senator, or even what party may be successful in a State election. He counts upon the support of the whole loyal people, whether republicans or democrats (except the Chase-Sumner faction who don't belong to the people), and he is proceeding with his work with an eye single to the one great result of a perfect restoration of the Union. Called to the executive office without the immediate aid of any party, he is forming a party for himself. He has enunciated plainly his policy and his ideas of reconstruction, or rehabilitation, or reorganization—whatever it may be called. They are plain and unmistakable. He intends to adhere to them because he believes them to be right. They are the rode mecum he has set up for politicians, and those who cannot agree with them are at liberty to oppose them. He is conscious that their rightfulness will recommend them to the good men of all parties, and whoever may be Senator or Governor, will rally around him a popular support that will defy and destroy whatever opposition may be offered.

The Cholera in Turkey. Our Minister at Constantinople officially informs this government that the cholera continues to extend its ravages, and says, had the proper quarantine regulations been enforced at first the introduction of the disease from Egypt might have been prevented. It seems to him from the experience at Constantinople, that it is advisable for the United States to guard against it by the most rigid quarantine regulations. Mr. H. M. T. Foster is still at Willard's and professes to have received encouragement concerning her husband's pardon from President Johnson. Bedford Brown, ex-Member of Congress from North Carolina, arrived in town last evening, and stopping at Willard's.

PROSPECTUS OF THE MERCHANTS, MECHANICS AND FARMERS JOURNAL.

IT is proposed, in connection with a general printing business, to publish a Daily, Semi-Weekly and Weekly Journal in the city of Raleigh, bearing the above title. As it seems important, it will primarily be devoted to the interests of those classes of the community embraced in the designation, and will strive to elevate and advance them in accordance with the progressive ideas of the era. At the same time it will not be unmindful or unappreciative of the wants of the general public. While it will not enter the arena of political discussion, it will be made the vehicle of independent discussion of State or National exigencies, as they may arise, always consistent with an unswerving loyalty to the common Government.

It will give all the latest news, foreign and domestic, to show the very form and body of the times. And it will have a sub-Editor or correspondent in every County in the State, thereby ensuring a local interest which cannot fail of rendering it attractive to all sections.

Every effort will be made to render the "Journal" an acquisition, especially to the business community, and a valuable medium through which their wants and operations may be made known. Advertising will be arranged at low rates and the most attractive inducements to secure it be afforded.

The size of the "Journal" will be double medium, and it will contain thirty-two ready printed pages. It will be gotten up in the best style of typography and printed on new material.

TERMS: Daily, for one year, $5.00; Daily, six months, $3.00; Daily, one month, $1.00; Semi Weekly, one year, $5.00; Semi Weekly, six months, $3.00; Weekly, one year, $3.00; Weekly, six months, $2.00.

Persons desiring to subscribe will send in their names immediately, but may withhold the price or subscription until the receipt of the first number. If sufficient encouragement is realized the first number will be issued on the 1st of January, 1866.

THE GREAT LITERARY WEEKLY RESUMED

Having no party purpose to subservise, and no political aspirations to gratify, we shall whenever we feel called upon to do so, speak our honest sentiments in regard to the great measures affecting the interests of the people, untrammelled by partisan feeling or personal animosity.
