

DAILY SENTINEL.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1865.

The Progress asserts that "mobs consisting of many men, in many cases were piled down simply because they were such," and attributes Judge Pearson's defeat to his Unionism, and gravely insinuates, rather than openly charges, the people of Yadkin county of being disloyal. We are not informed of the peculiar views of the successful candidate, but will venture the opinion that he was unexceptionable on that ground. We do not believe the Judge's sentiments to the Union had anything to do with the election. We have reason to know that a large number of the citizens of that county even during Confederate times clung to the Union, and were opposed to the war.

We visited Yadkin during the winter of 1864, and heard and saw more evidence of disaffection to the Richmond Government than we had ever before met with. We have no doubt that the people of Yadkin county is to-day as loyal and as anxious to be restored to their rights and privileges as the Editor of the Progress himself. There must have been other causes at the bottom of this, which we are not informed of now. We do not know what questions were sprung upon the people, what appeals were made or what measures were reported to, to procure their result. But we apprehend that the Judge remained at home in dignified retirement, while his opponent canvassed the County. His defeat is to be regretted, for the Judge was eminently qualified for the position. Such has too often been the fate of great minds in this State, to be "barked at by Tray, Blanche and Sweetheart," until many well-meaning persons believe it is wrong to vote for "a college lame man" while there are so many natural repuges among them. W. H. & R. S. Tucker.

Mr. Pennington feels a little sore at the result. Some may be "ardent" enough to suppose that that disastrous event was not owing to his being "a consistent ultra Union man," but that some other objections may possibly have had somewhat to do with it. You all know Mr. Pennington has had up in this section the reputation of being a very consistent ultra Unionist, and yet he was elected. We have no blatant secessionist here. Perfect homogeneity of feeling prevails. It seems that all the "originals" have gone in the beautiful city of cake, or the vicinity. But may we not ask without being presumptuous, are such articles in good taste, and are they not by making a wrong impression, calculated to do an enormous deal of harm, and would it not be advisable in the present state of public feeling at the North, to be certain that disloyalty exist before we institute a charge so grave against any people? - Charlotte Times.

Henry B. Foote.

The Nashville correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, under date of September 16, writes as follows respecting three well known Tennesseans: - The remarkable Mr. Henry B. Foote is again with his family and friends, and may be seen not infrequently in the centre of an inquisitive group, at a street corner or in some public place, who have landed or surrounded him, no doubt for the purpose of asking the question which is uppermost in the minds of all inquiries - "What is the political prospect?" Hon. John Bell returned to his home in this city many weeks since. He has not many times been seen in public. At least it has not been my fortune to see him. It is said his health, which was but feeble at the beginning of the war, has been further impaired by the contemplation of our national troubles. Ex-Governor N. S. Brown, another of those who struggled long in the effort to avert revolution, but who at last wrapt away upon its turbid waters, is pursuing his profession in this city as of old.

QUEEN VICTORIA AND HER SPINNING WHEEL. - The Paris correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, after announcing Queen Victoria's departure for Germany, relates this piece of gossip:

Before leaving she took a turn to spinning, and ordered a châche of Spina fiddle to make her a spinning wheel. He finished one of so exquisite workmanship that she ordered one for each of her palaces and castles. The good royal matron resumes the occupation of the simple ladies of the old and unaffected times, and, be sure, her example will not be lost on the crinoline and jeweled ladies of our age. The inclinations and fancies of queens dictate the fashion at the spinning wheel as well as at the court toilet.

THE CIVIL WAR. - The rupture between the Low Church clergy and Bishop Potter, in N. Y., growing out of the practice of the former in permitting non-consecrated ministers to officiate in their pulpits, is approaching a crisis. On Sunday evening, 17th instant, as if to make contempt for the recent pastoral forbidding any such practice, as emphatic as possible, Rev. S. H. Tyng, Jr., invited Rev. Dr. Storer (Presbyterian) to preach in his pulpit, and the invitation was accepted. Among the clergy present on the occasion was Dr. Tyng, Jr., and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. Bishop Potter's organ, the Church Journal, noticing this event in a double leaded editorial, employs this emphatic language: "After what has already taken place, this act can no more pass unnoticed than the attack on Fort Sumter. It is an open declaration of war."

THE WEBSTER FAMILY. - The only person left to perpetuate the family name of Daniel Webster is his grandson, Ashburton Webster, a son of Fletcher Webster who is a very promising young man now in the American navy. Fletcher Webster left two sons and a daughter, the last still living. Edward Webster, Major, who died in Mexico, left no children. There are four other grand children by his wife, beloved Julia, bearing the name of Appleton. This is all of the family of Daniel Webster.

The play of the "Confederate Doctor" is having great success in one of the theatres on these trees. Gen. Butler appears in it as the tyrant of New Orleans, making love, mainly to a Confederate's daughter, but is killed by a faithful negro, who has a fight with Butler and beats him with the broad sword to a square fight. Butler afterwards undertakes to hang the lover of the said daughter, but he is reproved. - Butler is removed from command, and the Confederate daughter triumphs. The play is highly exciting.

FENIAN. - The term Fenian is derived from the Gaelic word Fionn. In the antiquated Gaelic it is written Fionn. It was a name given to an order or class of professional soldiers among the Pagan Irish, long before the Christian era. In ordinary times the Fionn consisted of three legions, in each legion were 3,000 men, but in war there were usually seven legions.
