THE SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL, Proprietor.

From the New York Times.

THE SOUTH AND RECONSTRUCTION.

The Richmond Enquirer puts to us the following questions:

"We wish to ask the New York Times a question: Are the Southern people bound, so far as their own action and agency are appealed to, to support the Constitution?—We have been required to take an oath to support it—must we keep that oath? If the answer be in the affirmative, how can we become a party to the Congressional legislation in reference to the Southern States? We can submit to force—and endure while Congress does—but can we take part and give acceptance and concurrence without perjury?

* * * * * * *

"We will suggest further—if the Government is in a state of revolution, such as the Times describes; and if this revolution receives the sanction of the people to such a degree as to command respect, as the Times seems to argue; would it not be decent to suspend the oath to support the Constitution until the job is ended? It would save a great deal of perjury in high places—as such things are understood in the benighted South."

We will answer these questions as well as we can:

1. We do not see that the Southern States "become a party to" the legislation of Congress by accepting it as law and obeying its requirements. Congress has passed a law providing for elections, conventions and other steps in the reorganization of governments in the Southern States. That law may or may not be constitutional, but the Southern people are not responsible for it. They were not "parties to it" in any sense. They did not vote for it; its validity does not depend on their accepting or assenting to it. It will go into effect, and the Southern State governments will be organized under its provisions, whether they accept or reject it. All they do is to "submit to force." They take the law as they find it,—as it is made for them by those who, for the time, have the power to make it.

We cannot see that their taking an oath to support the Constitution has anything whatever to do with this question. That oath does not forbid their obeying an unconstitutional law—though it might forbid their making one. They find a certain law in force—they are in no wise responsible for it—they had nothing to do with making it—they are merely the parties upon whom it is to take effect. They avail themselves of power which it puts in their hands, for their own protection against others whom it clothes with the same power. It requires very sharp optics to detect in this anything like "perjury."

2. Perhaps it would be "decent" to "suspend the oath to support the Constitution until the job is ended," but what of that? Does the Enquirer expect to get it suspended? Or will its opinion that it ought to be suspended, in the least change the consequence of its refusal to act under the law? The question may be sharp as a taunt,—but it has little practical importance.

We should be glad if the Enquirer and all other Southern journals could act upon the fact that this whole matter of reconstruction has become one for practical action, not for argument or speculation. In our judgment, the great, pressing, necessity of the Southern States is to get back into the Union,—not theoretically, but actually;—not to demonstrate that they are there according to the Constitution—but to get there in such a way that they can be recognized, can send Senators and Representatives into Congress, can have a voice and votes in making laws and electing Presidents and shaping the action of the National Government. The sooner they can do this the better for themselves. Until they do it they are more subjects of a power ab extra,—wholly separate and alien to them. They have no share in making the laws which force compels them to obey. They are utterly powerless, and must so remain until, by some means or other, they can resume their actual representation in Congress.

The law of the last session provides a way of doing this. It may or may not be constitutional—but that is not their affair. They did not make it, nor help to make it, nor give any assent or consent to its being made. But it will bring them again into the actual possession and exercise of their share of political power in the national government—and it will thus give them precisely what they lack, and what they must have before they can do anything whatever to help themselves, or to protect their own rights and interests as part and parcel of the American Union.

If the Enquirer and others among their advisers deem it wise to stand aloof and discuss the constitutionality of the law, very well. They have the right to do it. If they prefer standing upon scruples and refinements of law or of logic, very well.—They can do so. But that is all they can do. They cannot affect the practical action of the government, upon this or any other matter, in the slightest degree, one way or the other.

This does not seem to us either sensible or manly. Inaction is not practical and can not possibly advance the interests or secure the rights of the Southern States. Grant that the law is the result of a revolution in the practical administration of the National Government,—as we think it is,—still it is an actual revolution;—it comes from a government in possession and exercise of sovereign power,—a government which makes laws, and has the power at command to enforce them. It strikes us as wise and right to obey those laws at all events until they can be changed,—and to use the power they confer, if with no other motive, in order to get the power to help change them.

This is our reply to the queries of the Enquirer.

A Washington letter to the Huntsville (Ala.) Advocate roundly asserts that Gov. Patton, of that State, had promised, under certain circumstances, to secure the vote of Alabama for the Radical candidate for President at the next election; but in reply to a dispatch from Mobile addressed to Governor Patton, at Montgomery, and asking if the report was true, his private Secretary telegraphed: "Governor Patton is absent. Not one word of truth in the report to which you refer."

A Democrat, at Worcester, Mass., who won $3,000 on the Connecticut election, gave the workmen in his employ, 400 in number, a holiday, paying them full price for their time, and gave vent to his joy by firing a salute of a hundred guns.

ASTROLOGY.

THE WORLD ASTONISHED

AT THE WONDERFUL REVELATIONS

MADE BY THE GREAT ASTROLOGIST,

Madame H. A. PERRIGO.

She reveals secrets no mortal ever knew. She restores to happiness those who, from doleful events, catastrophies, crosses in love, loss of relations and friends, loss of money, &c., have become despondent. She brings together those long separated, gives information concerning absent friends or lovers, restores lost or stolen property, tells you the business you are best qualified to pursue and in what you will be most successful, causes speedy marriages and tells you the very day you will marry, gives you the name, likeness and characteristics of the person. She reads your very thoughts, and by her almost supernatural powers unveils the dark and hidden mysteries of the future. From the stars we see in the firmament—the midnite stars that overcome or predominate in the configuration from the aspects and positions of the planets and the fixed stars in the heavens at the time of birth, she deduces the future destiny of man. Fail not to consult the greatest Astrologist on earth. It costs you but a trifle, and you may never again have so favorable an opportunity. Consultation fee, with likeness and all desired information, $1. Parties living at a distance can consult the Madame by mail with equal safety and satisfaction to themselves, as if in person. A full and explicit chart, written out, with all inquiries answered and likeness enclosed, sent by mail on receipt of price above mentioned. The strictest secrecy will be maintained, and all correspondence received or destroyed. Information of the highest order furnished those desiring them. Write plainly the day of the month and year in which you were born, enclosing a small lock of hair.
